They re-named Sears Tower to Willis Tower in 2009 . No, not after the original jeep maker , it's an insurance company .

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks, which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons,"

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their offshore accounts.

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

"...incompetence cannot explain the suppression of efforts to prevent the attacks."

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the

Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

This remains undisputed.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,
and electronic 'voting' will keep putting such into office.

If it's electronic, it's no election.

Make a note of that.

It's significant.

No, they didn't. (Democrat) Governor Abercrombie said publicly he couldn't find the original birth record. So where did the one they passed around at the White House come from?

Don't you find that the least bit curious. Or are you so gullible that you beleive whatever story is told?

Strange every service man takes an oath to uphold and defend the Constitution, isn't?

Should they decide to uphold that oath, and actually read the Constitution, and the wisdom to read the forefathers and know their true intent, the shadow government should have hell-to-pay!

The Monks addicted to caffein had their crop of coffee destroied by mear-cats.These little monkeys had the same addiction and at night they raveged the coffe crop.

The monks,willing to get their fix at any cost, picked up the droppings and found the coffe beans had survived the digestive fluids and just dusted them off and made use of what was left!

They found the cat shit enhanced the flavor of the coffee beans and soon would not have their coffee any other way. Now it is being sold for mega money because they harvest the dropping and grind them up into gourmey blend.
That just sounds like a CATASTROPHY but it is a moneymaker$$$$$$$$$$$$$ $$$$$$

A box, even with "nothing" in it, isn't empty, it contains air. Take the box into space, it isn't empty, it is filled with ether.

A truly empty box would have all of its' sides "touching." And, actually, would appear as a condensed cube of compressed plant fibers and chemicals used in processing/manufacture.

Why the common pubic isn't aware of this is a mystery? But the schools are at the root of the problem ...

Maybe the mars rovers are like the "fake moon landing." And, all they did was build some rovers and drive them around on a movie studio, in the desert, while filming them!

Your talking to your self John. Read this when you get a chance!

Great Britain owns USA
From my archives. This one should stir up some debate. Hopefully it will get a lot of attention! I did not write this, I am just passing this along.
For a long time, I felt that our "presidential" elections were to elect the president of the Corporation, NOT the 50 states United. I guess I was correct, and to be correct, do you want Obama or McCain as President and CEO of the United States Incorporated, a Delaware corporation.

Begin Post here:::::

Great Britain owns USA
By: Stephen Kimbol Ames Queen Elizabeth controls and has amended U.S. Social Security, as
S.I. 1997 NO. 1778 The Social Security (United States of America)

Order 1997 Made 22nd of July 1997 coming into force 1st September 1997. At the Court at Buckingham Palace the 22nd day of July 1997. Now, therefore Her Majesty in pursuance of section 179 (1) (a) and (2) of the Social Security Administration Act of 1992 and all other powers enabling Her in that behalf, is pleased, by and with advise of Her privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered as follows:

"This Order may be cited as the Social Security (United States of America) Order 1997 and shall come into force on 1st September 1997." Does this give a new meaning to Federal Judge William Wayne Justice stating in court that he takes his orders from England? This order goes on to redefine words in the Social Security Act and makes some changes in United States Law.
Remember, King George was the "Arch-Treasurer and Prince Elector of the Holy Roman Empire and of the United States of America." See: Treaty of Peace (1738) 8 U.S. Statutes at Large. Great Britain which is the agent for the Pope, is in charge of the USA 'plantation.'

What people do not know is that the so called Founding Fathers and King George were working hand-in-hand to bring the people of America to their knees, to install a Central Government over them and to bind them to a debt that could not be paid. First off you have to understand that the UNITED STATES is a corporation and that it existed before the Revolutionary war. See Respublica v. Sweers 1 Dallas 43. 28 U.S.C. 3002 (15). Now, you also have to realize that King George was not just the King of England, he was also the King of France. Treaty of Peace (1738) * U.S. 8 Statutes at Large 80.

On January 22, 1783 Congress ratified a contract for the repayment of 21 loans that the UNITED STATES had already received dating from February 28, 1778 to July 5, 1782. Now the UNITED STATES Inc. owes the King money that is due January 1, 1788 from King George via France. Is this not incredible that the King funded both sides of the War? But there was more work that needed to be done. Now the Articles of Confederation which was declared in force March 1, 1781 States in Article 12 " All bills of credit emitted, monies borrowed, and debts contracted by, or under the authority of Congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States, and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged."

Now after losing the Revolutionary War, even though the War was nothing more than a move to turn the people into debtors for the King, they were not done yet. Now the loans were coming due and so a meeting was convened in Annapolis, Maryland, to discuss the economic instability of the country under the Articles of Confederation. Only five States came to the meeting, but there is a call for another meeting to take place in Philadelphia the following year with the express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation On February 21, 1787 Congress gave approval of the meeting to take place in Philadelphia on May 14, 1787, to revise the Articles of confederation. Something had to be done about the mounting debt. Little did the people know that the so-called founding fathers were acutely going to reorganize the United States because it was Bankrupt. On September 17, 1787 twelve State delegates approved the Constitution. The States have now become Constitutors.

Constitutor: In the civil law, one who, by simple agreement, becomes responsible for the payment of another's debt. Blacks Law Dictionary 6th Ed. The States were now liable for the debt owed to the King, but the people of America were not because they were not a party to the Constitution because it was never put to them for a vote. On August 4th, 1790 an Act was passed which was titled - An Act making provision for the payment of the Debt of the United States. This can be found at 1 U.S. Statutes at Large pages 138-178. This Act for all intents and purposes abolished the States and created the Districts. If you don't believe it look it up.

The Act set up Federal Districts, here in Pennsylvania we've got two. In this Act each District was assigned a portion of the debt. The next step was for the states to reorganize their governments which most did in 1790. This had to be done because the States needed to legally bind the people to the debt. The original State Constitutions were never submitted to the people for a vote. So the governments wrote new constitutions and submitted them to people for a vote thereby binding the people to the debts owed to Great Britain. The people became citizens of the State where they resided and ipso facto (by the fact itself) a citizen of the United States.

A citizen is a member of a fictional entity and it is synonymous with subject.
What you think is a State is in reality a Corporation, in other words, a Person (artificial- person). "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is Person." 9 F. Supp 272" Word "person" does not include state. 12 Op Atty Gen 176.
There are no States, just Corporations. Every body politic on this planet is a Corporation. A Corporation is an artificial entity, a fiction at law. They only exist in your mind. They are images in your mind that speak to you. We labor, pledge our property and give our children to a fiction.

Now before we go any further let us examine a few things in the Constitution.
Article Six Section One keeps the loans from the King valid it states; All Debts contracted and Engagements entered into, before the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the Confederation. Another interesting tidbit can be found at Article One Section Eight clause Two that states “Congress has the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States”. This was needed so the United States (Which went into Bankruptcy on January 1, 1788) could borrow money and then because the States were a party to the Constitution they would also be liable for it.

The next underhanded move was the creation of The United States Bank in 1791. This was a private Bank (just like the Federal Reserve Bank) of which there were 25,000 shares issued of which 18,000 were held by those in England. The Bank loaned the United States money in exchange for Securities of the United States. Now the creditors of the United States, which included the King, wanted to be paid the Interest on the loans that were given to the United States. So Alexander Hamilton came up with the great idea of taxing alcohol. The people resisted so George Washington sent out the Militia to collect the tax, which they did. This has become known as the Whiskey rebellion. It is the Militia's duty to collect taxes. How did the United States collect taxes from the people if the people are not a party to the Constitution? I'll tell you how. The people are slaves! The United States belongs to the “floundering” fathers and their posterity and Great Britain.

America is nothing more than a Plantation. It always has been. How many times have you seen someone in court attempt to use the Constitution and then the Judge tells him he can't. It is because you are not a party to it. We are SLAVES!!! If you don't believe it read Padelford, Fay & Co. vs. The Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah. 14 Georgia 438, 520 which states, "But, indeed, no private person has a right to complain, by suit in court, on the ground of a breach of the Constitution, the Constitution, it is true, is a compact but he is not a party to it."
Now back to the Militia. Just read Article One Section Eight clause (15) that states that it is the Militia's job to execute the laws of the Union. Now read Clause (16). It states that Congress has the power to provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the Militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States. The Militia is not there to protect you and me, it is there to collect our substance. As you can plainly see all the Constitution did is set up a Military Government to guard the King's commerce and make us slaves.

If one goes to 8 U.S. statutes at large 116-132 you will find "The Treaty of Amity, Commerce and Navigation”. This Treaty was signed on November 19th, 1794, which was twelve years after the War. Article 2 of the Treaty states that the King's Troops were still occupying the United States. Being the nice King that he was, he decided that the troops would return to England by June 1st, 1796. The troops were still on American soil because, quite frankly the King wanted them here.

Here is the key to were this started: Many people tend to blame the Jews for our problems. Jewish Law governs the entire world, as found in Jewish Law by MENACHEM ELON, DEPUTY PRESIDENT SUPREME COURT OF ISRAEL, to wit:

"Everything in the Babylonian Talmud is binding on all Israel. Every town and country must follow all customs, give effect to the decrees, and carry out the enactment's of the Talmudic sages, because the entire Jewish people accepted everything contained in Talmud. The sages who adopted the enactments and decrees, instituted the practices, rendered the decisions, and derived the laws, constituted all or most of the Sages of Israel. It is they who received the tradition of the fundamentals of the entire Torah in unbroken succession going back to Moses, our teacher."

We are living under what the Bible calls Mammon. As written in the subject Index, Mammon is defined as ("Civil law and procedure"). Now turn to the "The Shetars Effect on English Law" -- A Law of the Jews Becomes the Law of the Land, found in "The George Town Law Journal, Vol 71: pages 1179-1200." It is clearly stated in the Law Review that the Jews are the property of the Norman and Anglo-Saxon Kings. It also explains that the Talmud is the law of the land. It explains how the Babylonian Talmud became the law of the land, which is now known as the Uniform Commercial Code. The written credit agreement -- the Jewish Shetar is a lien on all property (realty) and today it's called the mortgage! The treatise also explains that Great Britain owns the Jews and the Jews are in charge of the Baking system.

We are living under the Babylonian Talmud, it is where all of our problems originate. It was brought into England in 1066 and has been enforced by the Pope, Kings and the Christian churches ever since. It is total and relentless mind control, people are taught to believe in things that do not exist.

Now before you scream that the UCC is unconstitutional I'm sorry people, you are not a party to any constitution. Read the case cite below. "But, indeed, no private person has a right to complain, by suit in court, on the ground of a breach of the Constitution. The Constitution it is true, is a compact, but he is not a party to it." Padelford, Fay & Co., vs. Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah 14 Ga. 438, 520.

You have to understand that Great Britain, (Article six Section one) the United States and the States are the parties to the Constitution not you.

Let me try to explain. If I buy an automobile from a man and that automobile has a warranty and the engine blows up the first day I have it. Then I tell the man just forget about it. Then you come along and tell the man to pay me and he says no. So you take him to court for not holding up the contract. The court then says case dismissed. Why? Because you are not a party to the contract. You cannot sue a government official for not adhering to a contract (Constitution) that you are not a party too. You better accept the fact that you are a Slave. When you try to use the Constitution you are committing a CRIME known as CRIMINAL TRESPASS. Why? Because you are attempting to infringe on a private contract that you are not a party to. Then to make matters worse you are a debt slave who owns no property or has any rights. You are a mere user of your Masters property! Here are just a couple of examples:

"The primary control and custody of an infant is with the government" Tillman V. Roberts. 108 So. 62
" Marriage is a civil contract to which there are three parties-the husband, the wife and the State." Van Koten v. Van Koten. 154 N.E. 146.
"The ultimate ownership of all property is in the State: individual so-called "ownership" is only by virtue of Government, i.e. law amounting to mere user; and use must be in accordance with law and subordinate to the necessities of the State. Senate Document No. 43 73rd Congress 1st Session. (Brown v. Welch supra) You own no Property because you are a slave. Really you are worse off than a slave because you are also a debtor. "The right of traffic or the transmission of property, as an absolute inalienable right, is one which has never existed since governments were instituted, and never can exist under government." Wynehamer v. The People. 13 N.Y. Rep.378, 481

Great Britain to this day collects taxes from the American people. The IRS is not an Agency of the United States Government. All taxpayers have an Individual Master File that is in code. By using IRS Publication 6209, which is over 400 pages, there is a blocking series that shows the taxpayer the type of tax that is being paid. Most taxpayers fall under a 300-399 blocking series, which 6209 states is reserved, but by going to BMF 300-399 which is the Business Master File in 6209 prior to 1991, this was U.S.-U.K. Tax Claims, meaning taxpayers are considered a business and involved in commerce and are held liable for taxes via a treaty between the U.S. and the U.K., payable to the U.K.

The form that is supposed to be used for this is Form 8288, IRPTA-Foreign Investment Real Property Tax Account. The 8288 Form is in the Law Enforcement Manual of the IRS, chapter 3. The OMB's-paper-Office of Management and Budget, in the Department of Treasury, List of Active Information collections, Approved Under Paperwork Reduction Act is where form 8288 is found under OMB number 1545-0902, which says U.S. withholding tax return for dispositions by foreign persons, of U.S. Form #8288, #8288a.

These codes have since been changed to read as follows: IMF 300-309, Barred Assessment, CP 55 generated valid for MFT-30, which is the code for the 1040 form. IMF 310-399 reads the same as IMF 300-309, BMF 390-399 reads U.S.-U.K. Tax Treaty Claims. Isn't it INCREDIBLE that a 1040 form is a payment of a tax to the U.K.?

Everybody is always looking to 26 U.S.C. for the law that makes one liable for the so-called Income Tax but, it is not in there because it is not a Tax, it is debt collection through a private contract called the Constitution of the United States Article Six, Section One and various agreements. Is a cow paying an income tax when the machine gets connected to its udders? The answer is no. I have never known a cow that owns property or has been compensated for its labor. You own nothing that your labor has ever produced. You don't even own your labor or yourself. Your labor is measured in current credit money. You are allowed to retain a small portion of your labor so that you can have food, clothing shelter and most of all, breed more slaves. Did you ever notice how many of the other slaves get upset if you try to retain your labor? You are called an extremist, terrorist and sometimes even a freeman. They say that you are anti-government. When the truth of the matter is you just don't want to be a slave. But, you do not have the right to force others to be free if they want to be a slave that is entirely up to them. If they want bow down and worship corporations, let them. The United States, Great Britain and the Pope are not the problem, it is the other slaves. We would be free if the want-to-be- slaves were gone. The United States, Great Britain and the Pope would not even exist, because no one would acknowledge them. I for a matter of fact, think that those who are in power are also tired of the slaves. All the slaves do is stand around and MOO!!! For free healthcare, free education, free housing and they beg those who are in power to disarm them. I do agree that a slave should not have access to a firearm. How can you disagree with the government passing out birth control? I hope the breeding of slaves stops or at the very least slows down. You see we are cows, the IRS is company who milks the cows and the United States Inc. is the veterinarian who takes care of the herd and Great Britain is the Owner of the farm in fee simple. The farm is held in allodium by the Pope.

Now to Rome. "Convinced that the principles of religion contribute most powerfully to keep nations in the state of passive obedience which they owe to their princes, the high contracting parties declare it to be their intention to sustain in their respective states, those measures which the clergy may adopt with the aim of ameliorating their interests, so intimately connected with the preservation of the authority of the princes; and the contracting powers join in offering their thanks to the Pope for what he has already done for them, and solicit his constant cooperation in their views of submitting the nations." Article (3)Treaty of Varona (1822)
If the Sovereign Pontiff should nevertheless, insist on his law being observed he must be obeyed. Bened. XIV., De Syn. Dioec, lib, ix., c. vii., n. 4. Prati, 1844. Pontifical laws moreover become obligatory without being accepted or confirmed by secular rulers. Syllabus, prop. 28, 29, 44. Hence the jus nationale, (Federal Law) or the exceptional ecclesiastical laws prevalent in the United States, may be abolished at any time by the Sovereign Pontiff. Elements of Ecclesiastical Law. Vol. I 53-54. So could this be shown that the Pope rules the world?

The Pope is the ultimate owner of everything in the World. See Treaty of 1213, Papal Bull of 1455 and 1492.

I could go on and on, his is just the tip of the iceberg. Don't let this information scare you because without it you cannot be free. You have to understand that all slavery and freedom originates in the mind. When your mind allows you to accept and understand that the United States, Great Britain and the Vatican are corporations that are nothing but fictional entities that have been placed into your mind, you will understand that your slavery was because you believed a lie.

juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

At present, Monica Pignotti, unable to secure a tenured faculty position, works in the pornography industry.

She produces incest pornography using Larry Sarner and his adult stepdaughter, Emily Rosa, as models.

Dr. Pippin Whitaker, who graduated a year after Pignotti, has joined the prestigious South Carolina faculty.

Monica Pignotti is oblivious to the damage she has done to her reputation via associativity with hate groups and their Internet attacks on certain therapists.

At least of of her 47 "endorsees" is having second thoughts.

Looking to the West: The Ritual Cup
The ritual cup is a magical and mystical symbol and a tool important to both pagan and Christian spirituality and mysticism. The cup represents the element of water. As a ritual tool representing water, it rests on the western side of the altar. As a meditation on the water element, the cup is associated with water, emotion, sensuality, intuition and the deeper consciousness, and also selflessness, sacrifice, and the pathways between worlds.
In Wicca and neopagan traditions, it represents the Goddess. As a representation of the Goddess, it has a prominent place on the pagan altar. That place is left of center, which is the area associated with the moon and the divine feminine. In ancient times, the cup was an item associated with both the sacrifice of the dying and resurrecting god and the potential for ecstatic gnosis in states of liminal consciousness.

In the second part of Book ABA (Book IV), the mage Aleister Crowley refers to the "Magick Cup" as a symbol of the magician's Understanding. He compares it with one of the sephira of the Kabbalist Tree of Life called Binah. Binah is associated with the feminine/lunar polarity and with the planet Saturn. Simply put, the "Understanding" or "Knowledge" implied by Binah concerns that of duality and limitation in contrast to union in the divine reality. It is the knowledge about the hard realities about life but also the assurance that there is a way to enlightenment in the divine source.
Crowley says: "This Cup is full of bitterness, and of blood, and of intoxication." On the one hand, the statement refers to the cup's association with the sephira Binah. On the other, it refers to its association with the unconscious-the place of dreams and unwieldy thought processes. In achieving self-mastery, the magical worker must strive to know the self and master personal consciousness instead of being mastered or led astray by it. In practice, this can be like walking a razor's edge teetering between self-actualization and insanity. Like in Dionysian rites, the path is initiatic and typically of a "shamanic" or "Tantric" type.

Crowley's statement also refers to sacrifice wherein life gives of itself for life. This concept is strongly seen in the Christian, Mithraic, Bacchic and other pagan mysteries.

Cauldron and Grail Mysteries

In Gnostic and mystical Greco-Roman/Middle Eastern paganism at the turn of the first millennium CE (the same time as the emergence of early Christianity),the highest idea of God was that of the divine light. The sun was a symbol of this. The vegetation god-that is, the dying and resurrecting god-was a manifestation of this light and sustained life through self-sacrifice, often symbolized by grain and fermented drink. One of the iconic symbols for this concept of life, death, and regeneration was the cup or chalice or the drinking horn/ horn of plenty, which, if we travel north, is related to the cauldron. Although the drinking horn, chalice, or cup were utilitarian and special objects in and unto themselves, they also may be miniaturized versions of the cauldron-which became associated with a "greal" (also spelled "graal" and "greel") from which we get the word "grail." We think of the grail as a chalice. In Arthurian legend, it is said to be a vessel that 1) collected the blood of the crucified Christ and 2) was used at the Last Supper either as a chalice that held the wine or a platter on which the pascal lamb was served.

"Greal' is an archaic French term for the medieval Latin word "gradale." A gradale is a wide, deep dish used to serve a fancy meal. Gradale, in turn, is related to the Latin word, gradatim, which means "great" and abundant. Some also say that the word grail is derived from the Latin garalis or cratalis-which also mean "crater," or "big bowl."

In An ABC of Witchcraft Past and Present, Doreen Valiente says of the cauldron:

A cauldron is an all-embracing symbol of Nature, the Great Mother. As a vessel, it represents the feminine principle. Standing upon three legs, it recalls the triple moon goddess. The four elements of life enter into it, as it needs fire to boil it, water to fill it, the green herbs to cook it, and the fragrant steam arises into air.

She goes on to say:

[It] is itself a vessel of transformation, because it takes raw uneatable things and transforms them into food; makes herbs and roots in to medicines and potent drugs; and is the emblem of woman as the greatest form of transformation, who takes the seed of man and transforms it into a child. In a sense, to the pagans all Nature was a cauldron of regeneration, in which all things, men, beasts, plants, the stars of heaven, the lands and waters themselves seethed and were transformed.

Valiente notes that the Rosicrucians, a Hermetic Christian order of occultists, agree. She quotes Hargrave Jennings in The Rosicrucians, Their Rites and Mysteries which was published in 1870: "We claim the cauldron of the witches as, in the original, the vase or urn of the fiery transmigration, in which all things in the world change."
But although the cauldron is part of legendary witch lore, it did not originate with "witches." It was an important item in Druidic and Celtic homes and had religious value because of its life-sustaining properties.
Various Celtic myths, such as those of Cerridwen and Gwion and of Bran-the-Blessed, celebrate the value of the cauldron by referring to it as an instrument of wisdom and regeneration. In the first myth, the goddess Cerridwen brews wisdom in her cauldron, which she intends to give to her son, Morfran. Some of the brew spills onto the finger of a dwarf-servant named Gwion, who then attains the gift of knowledge. Cerridwen is angered by this. Both characters shapeshift as the one chases the other until Cerridwen, in the form of a hen, swallows Gwion, disguised as an ear of corn. Cerridwen becomes pregnant because of this. Nine months later, she gives birth to Taliesen, the greatest of all the Welsh poets. In the Celtic legend of Bran-the-Blessed, Bran, a warrior-god, obtains a cauldron of wisdom and rebirth from Cerridwen. The cauldron can resurrect the corpse of dead warriors placed inside it.
Elements from these myths figure into the Arthurian Grail legend, which combines Christian lore about the chalice used at the Last Supper with more ancient Celtic pagan lore about cauldrons.

Rosicrucian writer Manly P. Hall, says:
There is evidence to support the claim that the story of the Grail is an elaboration of an early pagan Nature myth which has been preserved by reason of the subtle manner in which it was engrafted upon the cult of Christianity. From this particular viewpoint, the Holy Grail is undoubtedly a type of the ark or vessel in which the life of the world is preserved and therefore is significant of the body of the Great Mother-Nature. Its green color relates it to Venus and to the mystery of generation . . .
He goes on to say that "The earliest Grail legends describe the cup as a veritable horn of plenty. Its contents were inexhaustible and those who served it never hungered or thirsted." Here he seems to be referring to the Cauldron of Dagda, the supreme deity of the Celts. Note that Dagda means "shining divinity" (derived from Proto-IndoEuropean "Dhagho [brilliant]-deiwos [deity, divinity, "shining one"]," so we are talking about a transcendent solar deity here.
The cauldron is said to be gifted to the Tuatha de Danaan by the sun-god,Lugh, whose self-sacrifice (although in some early version, the self-sacrifice of his mother) is commemorated during Lughnasadh. In myth, the cauldron of plenty feeds a thousand people and revives warriors after battle. This regeneration of warriors is believed to be depicted on the Gundestrup Cauldron, which is dated to the 1st century BCE.

Form Is Emptiness

Having pointed out the association between the ritual cup and the womb of the Great Mother, the Holy Grail, the cup of sacrifice and regeneration, I would like you to put it together and think out of the box about the ritual cup.

To summarize:

To modern pagans and Wiccans, the ritual cup represents the Goddess, named by some simply as The Lady of the Moon, and collectively referring to all goddesses that personify the cycles of Nature, Time, and spiritual or occult mysteries. The ritual cup symbolizes water because cups hold fluid. Thus, the cup represents the water element and its meanings and correspondences. The cup is associated with the Arthurian legend of the Holy Grail, which is related to both Celtic pagan spirituality and Christian legend and spirituality. In this sense, it is the cup of enlightenment and the cup of self-sacrifice and regeneration.

The cup then not only represents the divine feminine but the divine masculine as well: the divine mother and son, which is also the divine sun reflected in the waters of life.

But to say that the cup represents the divine feminine-or the Goddess-or that it or its contents represent the divine masculine-or the solar deity, which essentially is the god of death and resurrection, is to say that the cup is really Us. It represents our body-our form. What it contains is life and spirit, the containment and limitation of which is only seeming. As the cup, we are the microcosm in which the macrocosm is reflected.

In its association with the West, the realm of the setting sun, the cup symbolizes liminal space-the space between worlds-where the manifest and unmanifest meet.

In ancient times, waterways were considered to be the pathways between the world of form and the spiritual world of formlessness. Indeed, the cup symbolizes the mystical relationship between form and space, perhaps harkening to the famous line from the Tibetan Buddhist scripture Prajnaparamita Hridaya Sutra (The Heart Sutra of Supreme Wisdom): "Form is emptiness; emptiness is form. Form is none other than emptiness; emptiness is none other than form." And again, a passage from the Yoga-Vashishtha , an Advaita Vedantist scripture, says: "The world is in the mind like space in a jar." These adages speak about the nature of Self and of Reality as well as the relationship between inside and outside, spirit and matter, form and formlessness. In considering this, we can go beyond patent or sentimental ideas about the ritual cup and touch gnosis.

A look at pagan symbols and their meaning

Many pagan symbols are concerned with the changing of the seasons and a desire for good harvests and fertility. This is not surprising when you consider that the very survival of towns, villages and entire populations depended on the benevolence of the weather, good harvests and production of young animals - and children- to maintain the population.
In temperate areas, it was during the depths of winter that many families and communitites needed additional support so various beliefs and traditions grew up - many of them had practical meaning as well as spiritual.

Pagans believe that every thing has a spirit and by respecting that spirit, even if you are killing something to eat - you will contine to receive bounty and fulfilment. So, if you cut wood, ask the tree spirit first, if you slaughter a cow, ask the spirit for forgiveness and blessing first.
Evergreen plants were seen as symbolic and powerful because they keep their leaves and strength long after other trees have lost theirs. Also, they smell good so bringig them into the home and laying the on the floor not only provided fresh bedding in winter but gave the home a fresh scent - which, when you perhaps had animals in at night and several members of the household who rarely washed- could have been a real blessing.
Fruits and berries held mystical meanings because they could be used for food in some cases and in others induced a state of euphoria or forgetfulness, which made the dark, cold days easier to bear.
Herbs became valuable for their medicinal and culinary benefits and pagan priests with a good knowledgeof plants could hold tremendous sway becuase of their knowledge of how to harm or heal.
Certain days held immense significance for pagans and one of these was the winter solstice. It symbolised a time when, at last, days would start to lengthen and the promise of warmer times and good food supplies ahead was in the air. The summer equinox - the time when day and night are equal also held significance because it was the time when the crossingof the two worlds of light and dark could occur.

The longest day was a time of special celebration because it symbolised the epitome of summer, a promise of harvest for those who worshipped and gave gifts and it also held great religious symbolism for pagans. The day was used to its full advantage with a dawn rising , sunrise observed and rituals performed well into the evening.
The sun herself is a powerful pagan symbol. She is the giver of life, has power to kill or bring forth bounty and provides energy upon which all other things survive. The moon is the suns' companion in the heavens and pagans knew the moon held influence on tides, river surges and other forces. Crops were planted according to the cycles of the moon (and some still practice moon gardening now) because the pull of the moon affects the sap rising in plants.
Metals were seen as valuable by pagans even though they did not really knowhow rare they were and precious, they put great symbolism on their strength, the ability to create weapons and their longevity. Leaders were buried with chatels and weapons of the most strong metals and the most rare stones, which also held great symbolic strength.
Pagans, although strongly regulated by the cycles of the earth iself, showed us perhaps ways to respect nature and work with her instead of against her. Because their lives were so closely tied with the cycle of life and the seasons, it is no wonder they placed huge importance on gaining favours to obtain fertility and good harvest so they could get through each year and survive into the spring and summer.
Whatever faith we have ourselves, sometimes, you begin to think a little touch of the pagan is not such a bad thing!

A Look at Pagan Symbols and Their Meaning
A symbol is an object used to represent something else. That something else can be something physical, or an ideal, a concept, a relationship or a state of being. Your brain loves symbols, you dream in symbols and they are a very useful tool in any spiritual path.
What a symbol means to one, it may not mean to another. No one group can hold a symbol purely as their own, although many try to, and as such ‘Pagan symbols’ can be difficult to define. Symbols common within Paganism is probably a better description.

Well known symbols include the Pentacle. The Pentacle is the five-pointed star (Pentagram) within a circle. Each point represents an element – Air, Fire, Water, Earth and Spirit, and the circle around it is the Universe containing all within it. The Pentacle is used in Tarot cards to represent Earth and all things material. The Pentacle has been used by nearly every Religion at one time or another to represent many different things – the five wounds of Christ, the five books of the Pentateuch; Pythagoras called it the Pentalpha, made of 5 interlocking As.

The Cup, Chalice or Cauldron is used for Water. Water in its elemental sense is about emotions, feelings and intuition. In Tarot you'll also see water appear in some cards or an amphibious creature like a crab or lobster coming out of the water to represent dreaming and intuition.
The Dagger, Sword or Athame is used for Air. Elemental Air is about thinking, intelligence and imagination. There are some groups that believe as they're weapons, they should be representing Fire, and use them quite successfully in this aspect, but most commonly they remain as Air.
The Wand is used for Fire. Fire is about energy, passion and creativity. In Ceremonial Magick, there are a number of Wands made – one for each element, but in modern Paganism, Witchcraft and Wicca it is usually Fire. Wands in Tarot are also representative of the Fire aspects.
The elements also have the triangle symbols to represent them, and their properties.
Fire is symbolised by an upward pointing triangle, as it is volatile and dangerous.
Air is also an upward pointing triangle, but with a bar across it, putting a brake on the ascending nature of Fire.
Water is downward pointing as it is a descending element.
Earth is downward pointing, crossed like Air, as Earth halts the fall of Water.
The Star of David, while best known as a Jewish symbol is used to represent everything combined. The triangle symbols of the elements combined make the Star of David. It points in all directions – east, west, north, south, up and down. It can show energy flowing or being directed upwards and downwards.
Then there are all the other little things that can be used as symbols – Incense can be used for Air alone or as a combination of Air and Fire. Salt is commonly used for Earth, and saltwater as a combination of Earth and Water. A feather or wind-chimes can be used for Air. A candle or red fabric for Fire. Anything blue or sea shells can be used for Water. Soil, a plant, acorns, or leaves can represent Earth.
The Triquetra is another commonly used symbol. I've heard it described as representing Triple Goddess, being a Celtic protection symbol and I saw it as a beautiful brooch on the Secretary of the Catholic Womens League who was being interviewed on TV – I'm guessing that for her it was representative of the Trinity.
The important thing is that the symbol means something to the person using it.

Back in the days when the world was young, various beliefs had absolutely nothing to do with religion and everything to do with superstition. And with the exception of the Jews everyone was a pagan. Each society had their own names for their gods and goddesses - those who they believed ruled various aspects of life. For those people nothing occurred without the gods having a hand in it. If there was a drought then the god or goddess who ruled the rain must be angry at you for some reason. If you had a baby then the god or goddess of live and fertility was pleased with you. Many animals were sacrificed in the name of the gods.

While the world today is a much more enlightened place there are still groups of people who cling to the old way. Long forgotten are the Druids, Norse gods, and the mythology of Egypt, Greece, and Rome; except for brief studies in a classroom that are soon forgotten.
But in some ways the old way have never left us. People still fear that which they do not understand. The ancient ways of the Wicca who worship the goddess of mother nature have often been persecuted and are always misunderstood. All too frequently the terms pagan, witch, and Wiccan are thought to be interchangeable. This is not so. But the old ways die hard, if at all.
The 12 signs and symbols of the zodiac all stem from pagan symbols. Thought by some as devil worship or pagan, millions of people simply cannot start the day without first having read their horoscope in the paper.
In the last century the knowledge of the world has exploded; but before that it was possible for a learned person to know all there is to know. Before science was a science men believed that there were four elements air, earth, water, and fire. Today the symbols used to indicate these four elements are thought to be pagan symbols. These four element symbols are used today by those people who practice Wicca.
Other symbols widely used today that are of pagan origin include the dagger which is a symbol for the male. The cup or chalice represents the feminine. The five pointed star has been used for numerous connotations; for the Wicca the star signifies an integration of the body and spirit to become one.
For centuries people have tried to tie members of Wicca to witchcraft and not is a favourable manner. As a result, the picture of a wicked old crone wearing a pointed hat and riding a broom seen at Halloween is the image often portrayed as the witch. The broom symbol is used in Wicca, but not as a mode of transportation or any other negative connotation; but as a symbol for cleanliness as in sweeping away the bad things to cleanse the body and spirit.
No symbol is exclusive to any one group or people. What means one thing - good or bad - to one group can mean its exact opposite to another group of people. There is no such thing as a pagan symbol. There are; however, symbols that are used by various groups of people who participate in what are called pagan rituals. For example, the symbol ^ means one thing to an editor. It is also used to indicate rank on military uniforms, and it is the symbol for male in some pagan groups. Obviously the military is not a bunch of pagans looking to cast evil spells and pillage the town. Symbols like beauty are in the eye of the beholder.

Pagan symbols are actually quite interesting and controversial as well. There is a confusion between many people as to what is Pagan and what is Wiccan; however, some are very similar.
There are five basic symbols in Paganism that all Pagans learn.
1. Earth - Earth is symbolized by a triangle upside down with a horizontal line 1/4 from the base of the triangle. It is also used to represent all things in the physical world.
2. Air - Air is symbolized by a triangle sitting on its base with a line 1/4 of the way up from the base. It is also used to represent all things in the spiritual world.

3. Fire - Fire is symbolized by a simple triangle sitting on its base and also represents the power and vision of the divine.
4. Water - Water is symbolized by a reverse simple triangle. It also represents cleansing.
5. Spirit - The last elemental symbol is resenting the 5th element. That is the Element of Spirit. By uniting Fire and Water - the power and vision of the divine while cleansing on oneself first; then you can begin to use and feel the power of the element of the Spirit. This symbol is also used in the blessing rituals, and is the basis of the pentacle many wear today. Although, the shape and design have been altered from the original version. Crowley was the first to alter symbols when creating his own version of the Wiccan symbol of the 7 pointed star.
While there are literally thousands of symbols that have been attributed to Paganism, these are the only five symbols that are consist in every ancient archaeological writings that can be found. Oddly enough, the symbol for fire and water are the same symbols that the ancient Christians used for blade and chalice and combining them to be the Star of David.
The Pagan symbols after these five are truly representative upon the path one follows. As said earlier, many Pagans adapt the Wiccan symbols, others Egyptian symbols and others Celtic. The meaning of each of these symbols, although could be considered Pagan in nature, are really symbols that are representative of the spiritual path. For example, the Celtic cross or the triple spirals or triple moons.
To many Pagans, however, the five simple symbols embody all other symbols and are all that is necessary in the simplicity of worship and ritual. Ancient man was not a complicated man. Life was simple. Beliefs were simple. Symbols were simple.

Even though the terms pagan and paganism have shifted in meaning to the general public over the years, even though there has never truly been a consensus accepted definition of these terms, we do know that there are many traditional pagan symbols that resonate throughout all forms of paganism, from ancient polytheism to modern neopaganism. Thus it is ironically easier to define their meaning than the meaning of paganism itself!
There are thousands of symbols and one would not be able to list them all in a book let alone one short essay. That said, there are some which stand above the rest in terms of importance and frequency of use and it is those I have come to write about here.

The most well known of the pagan symbols is the pentagram. Unfortunately it is also the most misunderstood. It is the symbol people who are against pagan concepts use to distort paganism into glorified Devil Worship. The horror movies do not help matters. Seeing as how pagan concepts predate all forms of Catholicism and Christianity this view is patently false.
That is not to say this symbol is not used in Black Mass and other forms of Satanism. It is. But it is turned upside down and for those people symbolizes something entirely different than the pagans they stole it from!
In rituals it is used for protection from evil spirits. It symbolizes with its five points the five elements of life, those being spirit, earth, fire, water and air. The circle that surrounds them is meant to symbolize the never ending circle of life that encompasses these elements, the continuous cycle of dying and being reborn to start anew. This is possibly the most important symbol in the entire pagan belief system, no matter what era.
Another popular pagan symbol is the ankh. This is a cross which is often simple and sometimes with a circular head instead of the traditional Christian cross. It was most heavily used by the Egyptians who adopted it from pagan rites. The circular head represents again the circle of life, the cycle of death and rebirth. In many sects it symbolized eternal life. In Egypt it was used often to convey a sense of the power of the sun to breathe life into the earth and was the predominant symbol of those who worshiped Ra the Sun God.
The figure eight was often used as well to convey the eternal circle of life. One specifically pagan variation of this is called the Celtic Oval. It looks like two eights placed over and perpendicular to each other, like a cross with each piece a circle instead of a rectangle. It is quite beautiful and still used in jewelry today. It symbolizes the everlasting nature of love.

The Triskele is another popular symbol. It is shaped like a triangle but accomplished through four half circles overlapping. It is also beautiful but not seen as often in jewelry, though it can still be found easily if one goes looking specifically for it. The meaning of this symbol is very clear to all aspects of paganism. It was used to worship the goddess and revere her in her three stages of life, the beautiful youth, the loving mother, and the wisdom of the elder.
An interesting fact is that Easter Eggs were originally a pagan concept. The symbols listed above and countless others would be painted on eggs under the premise that the life inside them gave the egg magical properties. Though many are under the impression that this is a Christian concept this is not the case.

Paganism has become a sort of attack word that religious extremists use to demonize any sect they disagree with on a personal level. The sad truth is that hardly any of these vocal hate mongers know much about the subject at all! Pagan symbols above all have been distorted and their beauty turned to ugliness through films and attack rhetoric that have been bought hook, line and sinker by the general public. Now you are well on your way to knowing better and seeing their true beauty. Thanks for reading.

Pagans and Wiccans of all pasts and traditions use symbols for many things such as rituals, spells, ceremonies and in everyday life. There are many different symbols with many different meanings. Each symbol has a basic meaning but they all mean different things and represent different feelings and actions to different people.
This is a list of common symbols.
Pentacle
The five-pointed star within a circle is the most common Pagan symbol, and it is typically used to identify oneself as a Pagan or Wiccan. The five points represent the 4 elements plus the spirit, and the circle connects them all. A five-pointed star without the circle is sometimes called a pentagram, rather than a pentacle. Based on numerology, the five points means the pentacle symbolizes the Earth element and can be used as an Earth symbol on an altar.

Inverted Pentacle
The inverted (or upside down) pentacle is typically associated with Satanism, though that is not a completely accurate description. The true emblem of the Church of Satan is the sigil of Baphomet, which is a symbol with a goat's head and an inverted pentacle. Within Wicca, the upside down pentacle stands for the 2nd degree in some traditions.

Triquetta
This symbol was seen on the TV show Charmed. Like the triskele, this Celtic symbol embodies the sacred number 3, as seen in the 3 phases of the Goddess (maiden, mother, crone) and the 3 elements of nature (land, sky, sea). During the period of early Christianity, the triquetra took on further meaning as the Holy Trinity. This symbol is also seen with a circle going though it. Each triquetra (triangle) is constructed of one line to represented strength and give protection to the wearer.
Triple Moon
The triple moon is a Goddess symbol that represents the Maiden, Mother, and Crone as the waxing, full, and waning moon. It is also associated with feminine energy, mystery and psychic abilities. You often see this symbol on crowns or other head-pieces, particularly worn by High Priestesses.
Ankh
The short and traditional meaning for the ankh symbol is "everlasting life". This symbol is a hieroglyph seen in countless ancient Egyptian carvings, usually held in hand by Gods and pharaohs to show how they preside over life (in other words, are immortal). In these images, the ankh is held by the loop rather than the base. The ankh is a popular symbol among Pagans, likely due to the similarity to a Christian cross which makes the ankh much less shocking to others, as compared to a pentacle.

Seven Pointed Star
The seven pointed star has a few names: septagram, septacle, Elven star or fairy star. The number seven corresponds to the spirit realm, which is why this symbol is associated with elves or fairies. There are no set representations for each of the points, but they are sometimes labeled: earth, air, fire, water, above, below and within. The septagram is also associated with astrology because the classical view of the sky contained seven planets.

The Eye of Horus can be a bit of a confusing symbol. It is seen sometimes as the right or sometimes as the left eye. The left eye is Eye of Horus and is connected with the moon. When it's the right eye, it's the Eye of Ra, and associated with the sun. Though some sources say there is no distinction at all. The Eye represents the eye that was lost by Horus when he fought with Seth over the murder of his father, Osiris. The symbol is worn for protection and to ward off evil spirits.

Celtic Crosses
Symbolize the bridge to the "other world" or "worlds" and also to higher energy and knowledge. This is shown by the vertical axis which represents the celestial world, and the horizontal axis that symbolizes Earthly world. Celtic Crosses are also considered solar symbols and the source of light and ultimate energy. The first Celtic crosses had four equal points representing the four directions (north, south, east and west), and the four elements (earth. air, fire and water) and were enclosed by a circle that represented the sun. It may be noted that these early crosses were also used to mark holy spots in pre-Christian times and are often associated with the Tree of Life.

The Spiral
Symbolizes the continuity of life and spiritual growth. It is the constant flow of nature's processes moving outward then back inward as Heaven and Earth are joined. It is also about how death is a rebirth, whether of a human life, the seasons of the year, the astrological skies or anything in the natural or supernatural world The spiral was found on many Dolmans and gravesites. Its true meaning is not known for sure, but many of these symbols were found as far as Ireland and France. It is believed to represent the travel from

Hexagram
The hexagram is a variation of the 6-pointed star. The more traditional way of drawing a 6-pointed star is in the double triangles of the Star of David. But Aleister Crowley created his own design, to create a symbol that could be drawn in one continuous line. The number 6 represents unity and balance, specifically balance between man and the Divine.
Eye of Horus
The Eye of Horus can be a bit of a confusing symbol. It is seen sometimes as the right or sometimes as the left eye. The left eye is Eye of Horus and is connected with the moon. When it's the right eye, it's the Eye of Ra, and associated with the sun. Though some sources say there is no distinction at all. The Eye represents the eye that was lost by Horus when he fought with Seth over the murder of his father, Osiris. The symbol is worn for protection and to ward off evil spirits.
Celtic Crosses
Symbolize the bridge to the "other world" or "worlds" and also to higher energy and knowledge. This is shown by the vertical axis which represents the celestial world, and the horizontal axis that symbolizes Earthly world. Celtic Crosses are also considered solar symbols and the source of light and ultimate energy. The first Celtic crosses had four equal points representing the four directions (north, south, east and west), and the four elements (earth. air, fire and water) and were enclosed by a circle that represented the sun. It may be noted that these early crosses were also used to mark holy spots in pre-Christian times and are often associated with the Tree of Life.

The Spiral
Symbolizes the continuity of life and spiritual growth. It is the constant flow of nature's processes moving outward then back inward as Heaven and Earth are joined. It is also about how death is a rebirth, whether of a human life, the seasons of the year, the astrological skies or anything in the natural or supernatural world The spiral was found on many Dolmans and gravesites. Its true meaning is not known for sure, but many of these symbols were found as far as Ireland and France. It is believed to represent the travel from the inner life to the outer soul or higher spirit forms; the concept of growth, expansion, and cosmic energy, depending on the culture in which it is used.
To the ancient inhabitants of Ireland, the spiral was used to represent their sun. The spiral is the cosmic symbol for the natural form of growth; a symbol of eternal life, reminding us of the flow and movement of the cosmos. The whorls are continuous creation and dissolution of the world; the passages between the spirals symbolized the divisions between life, death, and rebirth. Another idea states that the loosely wound anti-clockwise spiral represent the large summer sun and the tightly wound, clockwise spiral their shrinking winter sun. Also a double spiral is used to represent the equinoxes, when day and night are of equal length.
The Cauldron Symbol or the Three Spirals

Represent the Maiden, Mother and Crone aspect of the Goddess. The Cauldron is under the power of the Earth goddess Ceredwen the goddess of transformation. Transformation or Shapeshifting was an integral part of Celtic belief, this symbol is found all over Celtic artifacts. In the Cauldron, divine knowledge and inspiration are brewed.
Tuim Knot
Interweaving knotwork said to represent thefourseasons the four seasonal lunar holidays, and the four elements earth, air, fire, and water
Serpent and Dragons
The dragon represents change, the necessity that we not only adapt to circumstance but we ourselves become the active agent of change.Ancient Celts believed the fiery breath of the Green Dragon would give new life Dragons are the combination of the forces of the depths. The serpent, the wings of a bird, and horns, represent regeneration and grown. The dragon is the gatekeeper to other worlds.
The "Tree of Life"
This is an ancient philosophy common to many cultures and mythologies. Often regarded as an all-nourishing, all giving Mother, many myths speak of the Tree of Life or World Tree as involved in the creation of the universe. Britain was once covered by mightly oak forests, and tree reverence is a major feature within Celtic religion. Trees reflect a link between the upper and lower worlds. The Ancients envisioned the entire cosmos in the form of a tree whose roots grow deep into the underground, its branches reaching high into the heavens and sky. Druids had their teaching centers in the midst of Oak groves, and the words for wood and wisdom are similar (Welsh gwydd and gwyddon).

motifs of Celtic Art, found both on Northumbrian and Celtic crosses and on illuminated manuscripts, Portrayed as the Golden Bough, vine, or mistletoe.
The ancient Celts envisioned the cosmos in form of a great tree. The roots were deep in the earth and branches stretched to the heavens. The Celtic Tree of Life is the symbol of balance between these worlds; the unification of above and below; a symbol of Balance and Harmony. It's branches and roots form a map of the cosmos wherein all things are interwoven and connected. Many Celtic Tree of Life designs emerge from a pot. This pot symbolizes the Earth Mother from which all life springs.
Birds of Rhiannon

The Welsh Goddess Rhiannon was accompanied by magical birds whose enchanted songs could awaken the dead and lull the living to sleep.
The Horse - Sovereignty, Guidance
The horse was reverred by the Celts for its speed and sexual vigour. Epona and Macha are Celtic horse goddesses who watch over the land, protecting its abundance and insuring a good harvest. As protectors of nature, they both grant sovereignty over the land and are the goddesses of the stable. As goddesses of maternity, prophecy, and prosperity, they guide and protect mortals on their journeys through life.
Serpent - Earth Healer
Symbols of healing and wisdom, serpents live within the depths of the Earth Mother and have mastery of all her secret knowledge and vital forces. Both Brigantia and Stroni, Celtic goddesses of healing, use the serpent's mystical powers to work their cures. Because of their wave-like movements, serpents are also assoc-iated with healing waters and sacred wells, sources of the regenerative healing powers from within the earth, and thus are protectors of health and well-being. Coming from inside the Earth, the serpent was believed to be all knowing of the world's secrets and having divine wisdom. The ram-headed serpent is named Cerrunos, who is lord of the underworld, and king of all animals. Cerrunos is the symbol of strength and virility.
Birds - Spirits of Prophecy
Birds play a prominent role in Celtic myth and legend. As symbols of freedom and transcedence, they represent the human soul in flight, liberated from earthly ties, able to soar in spiritual communication with the heavens. Returning to earth, they bring messages of prophecy and guidance, aiding mortals on their spiritual and earthly journeys.
The Bull
Represnted divine power and strength. For the Druids it was a symbol for the sun and the procreativity associated with its forces.

Dogs or Hounds
Often seen with various gods & goddesses, the hounds may be a domestic guardian as well as a source of healing power.
The Labyrinth
Dates back to prehistoric time, and to many anceint cultures, and even in some today, is perceived as sacred space. It was part of many cultures including Celtic, Mayan, Greek, Cretan, and Native American. Labyrinths are different from mazes in that they have one well-defined path that leads us into the center and back out again unlike a maze which may have many paths that are meant to confuse any who enter it. These are really spirals in straight lines. When connectied, they become a processional path, leading through a complex maze to the sacred omphalos (the navel) at the center - the point where Heaven and Earth are joined.

Have you been asleep? Are you just going to go on repeating what I have always been saying here?

Of course the criminals are in charge. That is simply why all my posts have been about wresting government by the people, and for the people, back from the criminals and restoring Constitutional law.

This is why republicrats = democans.

Money is the control mechanism which allows them to salt the ballots with only criminals they have chosen ... the 1%, the richest elite have
"the button" which decides the elections. They own both sides before "the race" begins. It is simply a fixed game which they always win ...

Them always winning is getting quite tiring, don't you think?

When enough have had enough, expect changes, not before ... you attempt to call the race before a STRONG attempt is made to "change horses" ...

all the horses we have seen, for decades now, all have the same owners -- puppet masters!

JS

Wrong . He was claimed to be dead FOUR times before the heavily publicized 2011 'death' .

Yeah, the particularly dense have a problem here, understanding this, for some strange reason, and, like I said, it doesn't seem to be taught in schools, so, let me rephrase:

"Nothing can't hold something."

The logic of that statement is self-explanatory. You can NOT "put" something into nothing because there would be no "space" to "put" it into!

Indeed, if you "succeed" in putting something into nothing -- it would cease to exist! DUH!, there would be "nothing" to hold the "something!" (and exemplified with the cube of plant fibers ... although an over simplification.)

JS

We were talking about "empty" being an impossible concept ...
"impossible" in the fact that we simply have no physical examples of such existing ... it is only a concept at this time.

So far as we know, there has always been "something", even before the matter of what we can see, feel and hear existed ...

I warned you, the particularly dense have a great problem in the comprehension of the reality of things ...

The electrons cannot move, if they have "nothing" to move through ... logic dictates, they cannot even have an existence if they have "nothing" to exist in.

Put simply, you cannot lay something on a table, unless you first have the table to lay it upon ... and so it is with matter, it must have a platform to exist/travel in ...

Thanks, you have a great one too!

JS

Indeed. Look, you seem to be a nice sport.

I don't know what you have against the propagation of EM waves in a vacuum. Is it ideological? Philosophical? Religious?

Most kooks that espoused your views have the decency to invent the "aether" (or ether, if you will), that explains waves propagation in a "vacuum".

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Luminiferous_aether

(Hint: the way to convince is not to disparage a given theory, but to actually, positively provide a working alternative theory!)

So: how do satellite TV receive their signals?

Good luck for that Nobel prize!

I don't even see where that question applies! It is you who has a religious belief in the imaginary concept of "nothing", and, although you do refer to it as "a vacuum", you assign it the concept of "nothing." The electrons "transversing the vacuum" are actually being conducted by the either!

> Most kooks that espoused your views have the decency to invent the

The "electron wave theory" MUST have a medium, I don't care if you are talking about "shooting bullets" though "something" or having waves of some frequency transversing a medium, both share the dependence of having to have "something" to travel in.

> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Luminiferous_aether

Yes, but I think Einsteins gravitational either is, probably, a bit more towards correct ... but then, at this time, we don't even have a "bottle" which will hold the stuff! It travels though the spaces of the atoms of our matter as easily as the wind passes though a wire screen!

If we can't even "hold a sample" of it, let alone "see" it or "touch" it, how are we even to begin to study the fabric of space (your vacuum?)

> (Hint: the way to convince is not to disparage a given theory, but to

The "particles" composing the either (or waves generated within) seem to interact with antennas made from our matter, usually of metal construction. At this time, the only model I can conceptionalize is that of a bullet being shot from a gun (or an emitted electron), or a wave transversing a pond -- so, at this time, I must accept that the either is transversed in a logical and similar manner, and imitating what I can realize/know/see/model/etc. ... such as Einsteins example (model) of using a bowling ball and a mattress to conceptualize the warping of gravity on space/time.

> Good luck for that Nobel prize!

As you pointed out, with the theory of the Luminiferous Aether (or, Einsteins' gravitational either) man has long been aware of the existence of it -- they don't give nobel prizes for "rediscovering" something ... but, thanks for the support!

JS

I would not put much stock in his aetherial explanations. He's a KooK.

Well, it was Einsteins view upon it, I simply think he has it "close to right."

But then, "they" are questioning his theory on relativity -- which, I might add, depends on the gravitational ether for validity! And, Einstein first denied the Luminferious ether, but when his theory kept demanding such a medium, he made allowance for a gravitational ether -- you are aware of this, right?

So, give us your "non-kook" version of "what-is-REALLY-goin'-on?"

Indeed, let me be more specific, in regards to Einstein theorizing and modeling the warping the "space/time", what exactly is gravity warping in space? Is it warping the vacuum? And, wouldn't you first have to have "something" to be able to warp it?

I am afraid, I have very set ideas on this, so before I put them to text, you should first give me the "non-kook truth", of how you warp "nothing?" :-)

Yanno'? I was just thinking, we need to agree on the ground rules first, we do agree that "nothing" and "time" (as our concept of it defines it) don't exist in reality, right? They are only imaginary concepts constructed to put "order" and "understanding" on "our universe?" (and yes, it is weird we put "time" into equations, since it is only relative, and has no existence in reality.) In this regard, I am speaking to time as ONLY being movement, and measured by the earths rotation, so has NO meaning to someone on the other side of the universe. Indeed, even very impressive "ATOMIC CLOCKS" are really just measuring "radioactive decay", or the movement of atomic particles -- which I might add, we just discovered is NOT uniform and predicable, at the present time -- this just being discovered ...

I mean, unless we get the "kooky stuff" out of the way first, everything else will fail, in just being based on "kookery!"

As, I have to point out, your definition of "kook" and mine seem to have far different meanings! So, if we are both looking at the same phenomenon, and arguing the reality of them, we need to find out who is in error!

billmc@agora.rdrop.com

Band allocations and time zone conversions for the USA. Includes broadcast bands used outside the USA. For multi-use bands, primary usage is shown.
Some stations operate outside official bands. Information is from Oct 2008 FCC rules and Sep 2009 NTIA manual, see Chapter 4 of:
http://www.ntia.doc.gov/osmhome/redbook/redbook.html

Frequencies are in kHz. Usual spacing in shortwave broadcast bands is 5 kHz. Frequencies above 10000 kHz tend to propagate better during the day; frequencies below 10000 kHz tend to propagate better at night.

Please e-mail suggestions and corrections to billmc@agora.rdrop.com.

Phone line as SW antenna

Changes preceded by "|".

WARNINGS AND DISCLAIMERS

Connecting unapproved devices to phone lines may be illegal in your area.
Telephone lines present a potential shock hazard. Do not use this antenna for transmitting. Use at your own risk.

INTRODUCTION

This article describes how to use a phone line as a shortwave receiving antenna. Performance will vary depending on the kind of phone line you have. Overhead lines usually make okay antennas, while underground lines | usually don't. Phone lines carrying DSL service may be unsuitable because | DSL operates over a wide spectrum. A phone line antenna will generally pick up more power line noise than a dedicated antenna, so don't expect to | use it for DX work. Nevertheless, I found that it outperformed the | telescopic whip antennas built into many portables.

A reader sent in this suggestion: If you're concerned about connecting the phone line directly to the receiver, try wrapping the phone cord several times around the receiver's telescopic whip antenna instead.
Performance may not be as good as a direct connection, but it will probably be better than the whip antenna by itself.

Someone else wrote asking about lightning protection. I haven't thought much about it because thunderstorms are rare in my area. Most phone lines have lightning arrestors on them where they enter the house, but the lightning arrestors may pass enough energy during a lightning strike damage a receiver. My suggestion is to disconnect the antenna when not in use if you experience frequent thunderstorms.

HOW TO DO IT

The simplest connection is a single capacitor between the phone line and receiver. The capacitor eliminates all phone line voltages, including | ringing, so that they will not harm the receiver. The capacitor should | be rated 250 volts or higher.

Phone line RF connector
red .01 uF center cond. / \ or o--------||------------------------------|-o | To receiver
green \ /
50 ohm coax |
ground |
or o-----------------------------------------+ N.C. shield

N.C. = no connect. I originally connected the phone line ground (yellow wire) to this terminal, but reception was better without it (if you do this, play it safe and put a .01 uF capacitor in series). If another ground is available, you can connect it to this terminal.

If you are picking up local AM or FM radio stations on the shortwave bands, it is likely that your receiver is overloaded. Inexpensive and portable receivers usually lack the filtering needed to eliminate this interference, but you can make your own filters. Filters can also be | purchased from shortwave dealers (see below for recommendations).

A high-pass filter can be used to remove signals below the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from local AM stations and presents a high impedance to the phone line at audio frequencies so that the phone line remains balanced.

A low-pass filter can be used to remove signals above the shortwave bands. It rejects interference from FM and TV stations, as well as VHF 2-way radio transmitters. If you use both filters, connect the output of the first filter to the input of the second (don't forget to connect their ground terminals together). It doesn't matter which filter is connected first.

These filters also work well with random wire antennas. Just connect the antenna in place of the phone line.

The filter(s) should be connected to the phone line in this manner:

Phone line RF connector
red -------- center cond. / \
or o----| |-------------------------|-o | To receiver
green | | \ /
| FILTER | 50 ohm coax |
ground | | |
or o----| |----------------------------+
```

| RECOMMENDED FILTERS

| performance, are well-built and affordable:

| Model 420 HF lowpass filter (30 MHz lowpass)
| http://www.iceradioproducts.com/filtersrf.html#3
| (scroll down a bit to see the model 420)
| If you have a random-wire antenna, the following unit will provide | impedance matching and lightning protection (connect antenna to 450-ohm | terminal):

FILTER PLANS

The original credit for the high-pass and low-pass filters goes to Paul Blumstein and John Shalamskas, respectively. Edited versions of their articles are included here:

Date: 09 Jan 91 00:54:08 GMT
From: paulb@harley.TTI.COM (Paul Blumstein)
Subject: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

The following ascii-schematic diagram is a high pass filter that will filter out Broadcast Band (MW) stations. I found it a great boon to my shortwave listening since local MW stations overload my ATS-803A front end & appear in SW, especially with a long antenna.

If you remember my antenna saga, I went from 50 feet to 150 feet & had overload problems causing me to cut back to 50 feet. (Even at 50 feet, I still have some MW interference). I took the advice of Gary Coffman and looked up filters in the ARRL Handbook. With the filter in place, I intend to try to increase my antenna length again.

Anywho, here is the filter, for interested parties.

--------||---+----||-----+----||-----------
} }
{ {
} }
-------------+-----------+-----------------

The outer capacitors are 1500 pf ceramic disks.
The inner capacitor is 820 pf ceramic disk.
The squiggly things are coils (two total). Each one is 2.7 uh.
(a close value will do).

From: bill@videovax.tv.tek.com (William K. McFadden)
Subject: Re: BC Band Hi-Pass Filter

I built the filter that Paul Blumstein posted recently and measured it on a gain-phase analyzer. Here are its characteristics:

100 kHz -120dB
500 kHz -68dB

1000 kHz -38dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2100 kHz -3dB

The source and load impedances were 50 ohms. Because the filter has five elements, the attenuation is 30dB per octave. The measurements confirmed this.

This filter seems to be a good compromise between interference attenuation and passband response. There is very little attenuation in the 120m band and above. It could use a little more attenuation at the upper end of MW, which could be done with more stages or a higher cutoff frequency. Alternatively, you could build two of these filters and put them in series. (Since two 1500pF capacitors in series are really 750pF, you could eliminate one cap.)

Just for fun, I put 470 ohms in series with the input to see how the filter performed with an antenna mismatch. The response was:

100 kHz -105dB
500 kHz -60dB
1000 kHz -35dB
1600 kHz -15dB
2300 kHz -3dB

These figures are normalized to the passband response of -15dB, which is due to the impedance mismatch between the source and load and would have been there without the filter. Hence, the filter works almost as well in spite of the mismatch, which is good news to those who use long-wire antennas.

Subject: Construction of filters for SW reception

Several people have asked for construction details of the filters I built for my DX-440.

The high-pass filter helped some, but in my location the VHF/UHF broadcasters are also causing problems. So, I dug out the ARRL handbook and chose a 7-element Chebyshev low-pass design that is -3 dB at 35 MHz, -20 dB at 43 MHz, and -50 dB at 64 MHz (all calculated; it works well in practice!)

LOW-PASS FILTER (Rejects FM, TV, etc.)

chassis ground

I had to do a little more improvising at this point. I used .33 uH instead of .36, and .66 uH instead of .42, but it works fine.

The 5-lug terminal strips were perfect for these circuits, since there are 4 lugs plus a grounded lug. All "ground" connections go to the lug that is mounted to the chassis, and the other 4 lugs are used for each of the connections on the signal line. One terminal strip is used per filter. Since both filters were necessary to clean up the hash, I am going to put them both into one box when I get the time.

signal in ------- filter 1 -------- filter 2 -------- signal out

There is no difference between ends. They are "bilateral" which means you can't possibly hook them up backwards. (In the above schematics, left and right ends are interchangeable.)

COIL WINDING

You can make the coils yourself using this formula:

L = 0.2 * B^2 * N^2 / (3B + 9A + 10C)

L is the inductance, in uH
A is the length of the coil, in inches
B is the mean diameter of the coil, in inches
C is the diameter of the wire, in inches
N is the number of turns

For small wire, you can assume C = 0.

I can give you a true example of "nothing."

You have a small box, the inside dimension of 1x1x1 inches. Into this box, you place a 1x1x1 inch O.D. cube.

Now you have an example of "nothing." As, there is "nothing" between the outside of the cube and the inside of the box -- and, you don't have any possibility of movement of the cube within the box!

And, the reason is simple, you can't move "something" into "nothing!"

This is what "nothing" is.

While it is true, I am speaking of myself, it is not true "they" own the USA. I did not sell them the country, and I do not believe most of my fellow citizens sold them their country.

If a crime has been committed, and someone has falsely promised "them" the USA in exchange for money, then those people should be delivered up to "them" for punishment -- and, "they" will have to look to "them" for the recovery of their monies ... I mean, it is like, DUH!

Put simply, it is like this, if I create fraudulent documents, and negotiated the sale of YOUR house to someone, and they come to collect, would you expect me to be delivered up for punishment and to make restitution to "them?" Or would you willingly give them your house, or else give them the money they paid me? I mean, again, like, DUH!

Your logic and reasoning is rather faulty, you need to refine that a bit, or else be willing to lose your home ...

JS

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

John Smith a citzen of the USA cant buy a home here in the USA.If you think your a home owner you need take a closer look at your bill of sale!
The only way to keep them from taking the house you live in is to have a lien put against it for lots more money than what its worth.

Then Great Britain can over power your lien since they own all the land and dwellings built on their property,They wont do this because every one would quit paying property taxes and income taxes if the public knew they were but slaves paying rent to the Queen of England and making moneies off her majesties property to repay the USAs Bankruptcy note!

There was once a problem that cut Great Britains profits down on taxation and slavery.

So they created a massive population killoff by pitting the North against the South and financed both sides of the revolution just to teach us peasants a lesson.Most people today and back then thought it was to free the Slaves,this is farther from the truth because they had the market of the slave trade.

Old Christopher Columbus was the son of Vlad the Impaler and took over his Slave Trade business and called it a Westward Route to India so Span could finance his voyages to collect slaves in the black-market .This was the birth of the term Black-Market a continued slave market after Europe said no more slaves!

Now we are all their SLAVES and have not been freed to purchase to own!

So you name one thing that was correct in the NIST report and claim your not the IDIOT.Failure to do soo after you have been shown several inconsistances in the NIST report puts your intelect in jeopardy.Fact is is that its by far harder to find just one thing that is not a lie in the NIST report!

You have 30 seconds to prove your not the idiot, GO!

I understand why to GPS. Why support that AND WWV. No scientists uses WWV anymore. It was valuable when you used celestial navigation to steer and zero beat oscillators to tune, but those are lost arts these days.

Now WWVB is still important, as it sets all my clocks.

It's a study in stupidity by you, kook. I guess you're too stupid to see the error that the blogger made. Hint: He's looking at the wrong building. Blatant and obvious error by yet another 9/11 kooker!!

You sure did not earn your money tonight from your hero Cheeeeeney, Poor poor WrongTurnJoe!! STILL failing to understand the nature of his task!!

Joey, YOU are the one who is supposed to NAME ONE THING in the NIST report that you "think" is wrong. So far, across these many months and years, you have been utterly INCAPABLE of doing so. The fact is, EVERYTHING in the NIST report is verified TRUTH and CORRECT, and this is why you continue to RUN AWAY from your challenge! Too funny! But we knew you would.

> Failure to do soo after you have been shown

OH THE FUCKIN' IRONY!! "Intelect?" BWAHAAHAAHAAAAHAHAHAHAA!! "Inconsistances?" BWAWWWAHAAAAAAHAAAAHAAAAHHAAA!!! "Soo?" BWAHAAAHAAAHAAHAHAHAAAHAHAAAA!!!

Joey, I think you've been missing your ride on the short bus!

Hint: You have not yet shown ANY inconsistency at all. None. FAIL.

Now let's all watch WrongTurnJoe RUN AWAY AGAIN!!

Mighty Iarnrod correctly predicts WrongTurnJoe will once again FAIL to NAME ONe THING!!

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Here we go, AGAIN!

You begin telling me what I have pointed out to many before you, as if you just discovered it, or somehow think you are thinking thoughts never before developed, before your existence!

Funny to watch, by annoying ...

Yes, the taxes are unfair, yes, these are taxes now being levied by criminals -- in the past we got something for our taxes, now we continue paying the taxes "they" have either cut the services, or a cutting the services, but "they" still expect us to continue on paying the taxes!

"They" have over taken our military, which is supported by OUR taxes and use it as "their" own personal military to steal the resoures of the world and punish those who stand in their way of corporate profits -- as, but, one example!

Yeah, this is why I am saying, "WE MUST THROW OUT THE CRIMINALS BEFORE WE CAN EVER, DO YOU GET THAT "EVER", EXPECT ANYTHING TO CHANGE!" Until this is done, progress will be small or none -- all energy needs to be focused on the illegal public servants and their puppet masters ...

Regards,
JS

I was thinking about feeding some chili beans to my dog, having the dog eat them and "process" them, then recovering the processed beans. Now, I would add the processed beans back into a new pot and invite my enemies over for a chili bean feed! And, giving them the old standard like delivered up before a royal screwing, "Hey, I think it was time we had a get together and let bygones be bygones ... " <wink>

Of course, I an thinking I would have set aside another pot of "special beans" for myself. :-)

Here we go, AGAIN!

You begin telling me what I have pointed out to many before you, as if you just discovered it, or somehow think you are thinking thoughts never before developed, before your existence!

Funny to watch, by annoying ...

Yes, the taxes are unfair, yes, these are taxes now being levied by criminals -- in the past we got something for our taxes, now we continue paying the taxes "they" are using, BUT "they" have either cut the services, or are cutting the services, YET, "they" still expect us to continue on paying the taxes!

"They" have over taken our military, which is supported by OUR taxes, and use it as "their" own personal military to steal the resources of the world and punish those who stand in their way of corporate profits -- as, but, one example of "their" crimes!

Yeah, this is why I am saying, "WE MUST THROW OUT THE CRIMINALS BEFORE WE CAN EVER, DO YOU GET THAT "EVER?", EXPECT ANYTHING TO CHANGE!" Until this is done, progress will be small or none -- all energy needs to be focused on the illegal public servants and their puppet masters ...

The criminals need thrown out, and we need to return to the forefathers meaning of what they wrote in the Constitution -- NOT falsely interpreted "meanings" delivered to us by nine appointed criminals to the supreme court. If you elect a criminal president, expect him to appoint criminals -- AND, remember, the ballot only contains candidates which are loyal to the shadow government -- this is done by causing a candidate to need tens or hundreds of millions, or more, then the shadow powers only giving these large sums to their candidates ...

Yeah? You do huh? Doesn't even sound close to plausible to me!

The ether is a super conductor, a loss-less conductor of radio frequencies. Even after billions of years of travel, the radio waves contain all the RF energy first delivered to them -- the radio waves have just spread out. (except for minute quantities absorbed by particles and such in their travels, and converted to heat.)

What you propose would cause such losses as to be impossible on first consideration ...

Weak. You can't build such a device. If you could then you could not place one box into the other and have it touch bottom as the air would be compressed and have no means of escape.

So consider it as a thought experiment and ignore all of modern physics. Then explain how you would tell the difference between an infinite number of such boxes and nothing.

When you are done tell us how this nothing precludes your idea of an "aether"

The only thing "weak" about that statement, is the mind which thought-it/believes-it! You can "cast" the block in the box out of a liquid which solidified. You can first insert the block into just the four assembled side of the box, then attach the top and the bottom, etc., etc.

Again, you don't give me an example of anything but your VERY limited powers of reason and logic!

Why would I now go into a tangent, off the subject discussed, so you can baffle us with bullshit? Because, you sure as hell ain't going to be dazzling us with your brilliance!

Since the ether can fit between the atoms of all matter known to us, it would be impossible to ever be able to create a "space" devoid of ether.

Once again, you demonstrate your VERY limited powers of logic and reason
... apparently, you think you accomplish something else?

We have been in a depression, for some time now.

But, it will worsen ... ask the next guy you see, who is unemployed, and been there for some time, if he/she thinks this is a depression.

Life is so strange you couldn't make up that stuff about the monks. Life is weird and wonderful. I'm not a Connoisseur, but people getting the most out of their food experiences is not a bad thing, I guess. It's hedonistic and indulgent when I hear the Yuppies, describing to the ninth degree how they love this or that delight; beer, wine, food, cigars. It gets degrading.

Your computer sound card provides enough precision. Does your radio go

They don't ever seem to get that, do they?
Name one communist country that actually works.
The only one that didn't become a shit hold right off the bat was Cuba, and that was because they were getting so much cash from Mother Russia.

Now they they don't have other people's money to play with some harsh realities have come home to roost.

Photon and microwave losses are as you say unavoidable because of the mostly cold matter getting in their way. Either getting absorbed/converted, reflected/diverted seems perfectly normal.

However, photons do seem to be rather intelligent in how they act/react with matter.

First, what is "cold matter?" Never heard of the stuff, but got some cold stuff in my freezer.

Reflection and RF converted into heat is not really in the material being discussed, why do you feel it of importance here?

Post any material you have on "intelligent photons." Sounds bizarre to me ...

I can remember digging holes when I was an apprentice construction worker. Indeed, I got all the "shit-jobs!" Thank gawd that was over 40 years ago, had to attend college at the same time, was a real killer!

I don't do that anymore ... haven't in about 40 years ...

If it's existing at or below 2.7 K, that's cold and about as dark or stealth as it gets. A 2.7 K speck of dust or carbon buckyball isn't going to increase temperature by all that much if hit by a photon.

Are you suggesting that photons can't be reflected or converted?

Any brief search tells us:
Photons align and spin-up or spin-down atoms.
Tunneled or wave-guided photons are capable of FTL.
Photons are used to stop and hold atoms dead in their tracks.

I believe that a FM photon can transfer a multi-bit packet, possibly a 1024 packet.

Interesting, but, we only remarked on the change of RF to heat as a "loss" of RF energy, in this regard, doesn't matter how cold the object is ... could strike the hot matter of a sun with no difference in importance.

I am saying you are attempting to present a subject matter which I did not remark on and have no interest in this time -- a remark of your favorite bourbon would be about as on topic. Beside, "photons" cease to be photons if exhibiting no movement, and, about as relevant, they suddenly gain mass ...

Apparently campings people had a belief that world was about to end, and just about as relevant to the original remarks ...

Again, disassociated "facts" which go off on a tangent from the original posts.

Absolute cold = NO movement of atomic particles. Interesting phenomenon which, so far, has no practical uses in functional devices.

Your argument(s) seem to just go off on a tangent where you seek to dazzle us with brilliance, on off topic subjects and speculations ... again, you demonstrate a need for personal ego inflation ... I must tell you, I have much better things to do ...

We should have never been there, Vietnam.

The justification(s) we finally came up were bogus, we had none ... one would first have to past this to even begin to "find" honest reasons for our involvement ...

A lot of very square brains are stuffed into square skulls of the exact same volume here in Google Groups or Usenet/newsgroups, thus you've nailed the problem. They've managed to put to much of something into nothing, or vise versa.

I said, your responses have been off topic to the matters being discussed, and, specifically, the post(s) I responded to ... again you go off on a tangent and note that those discussions were off topic to the subject of the thread, which is first mentioned in your post ... I didn't care when I made my first off topic post, and your pointing out that I didn't care does nothing to change me mind now.

I mean, it is impossible to provide logical responses to your bizarre inquiry(s.) Every one of your questions simply requires me to point out it, it itself, the question(s), attempts to go off topic and establish groundless foundations to your rants ... again, something I just chalk up to your "self indulgent ego stroking."

Photons of light (Wheels of Light) spinning clockwise and photons of light spinning counter clockwise could mean computers that can never be hacked.
There actually are some people studying just how that would work.I read something about that in 1999 or 2000.

Again, I was commenting on "empty", "space", "nothing", "matter", etc.

Your need to now branch off on, yet, another tangent of what appears is going to now center on personal attacks, due you your ego suffering imagined damages, simply takes the context of the matters out of the discussion, and now leaves another discussion in their place.

Interesting, but like I said, I simply have no comments of any importance to make on subjects which I have no interest in.

Perhaps such NGs as alt.support.self-esteem, alt.self-improve, alt.support.self-harm or even alt.recovery.panic-anxiety.self-help would be much more fitting forums/platforms to your directions?

For your easy diversion into subjects, other than the ones under immediate discussion, perhaps you could consider starting a newsgroup such as "alt.support.maintaining-focus?"

Bin Laden 'probably' dead

The US Federal Bureau of Investigation's counter-terrorism chief, Dale Watson, says he thinks Osama bin Laden is "probably" dead.

(Moron twoofer?)

http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-1212851/Has-Osama-Bin-Laden-dead-seven-years--U-S-Britain-covering-continue-war-terror.html

The theory first received an airing in the American Spectator magazine earlier this year when former U.S. foreign intelligence officer and senior editor Angelo M. Codevilla, a professor of international relations at Boston University, stated bluntly: 'All the evidence suggests Elvis Presley is more alive today than Osama Bin Laden.'

(Moron twoofer?)

There are other doubters, too. Professor Bruce Lawrence, head of Duke University's religious studies' department and the foremost Bin Laden expert, argues that the increasingly secular language in the video and audio tapes of Osama (his earliest ones are littered with references to God and the Prophet Mohammed) are inconsistent with his strict Islamic religion, Wahhabism.

(Moron twoofer?)

This week, still more questions have been raised with the publication in America and Britain of a book called Osama Bin Laden: Dead or Alive?

Written by political analyst and philosopher Professor David Ray Griffin, former emeritus professor at California's Claremont School of Theology, it is provoking shock waves - for it goes into far more detail about his supposed death and suggests there has been a cover-up by the West.

The book claims that Bin Laden died of kidney failure, or a linked complaint, on December 13, 2001, while living in Afghanistan's Tora Bora mountains close to the border with Waziristan.

His burial took place within 24 hours, in line with Muslim religious rules, and in an unmarked grave, which is a Wahhabi custom.

"congratulations for your willingness to look at the proof about 9-11"

http://www.911proof.com/

Notice that the bushkultie won't be able to address
any of the facts from the above site at all.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks,
which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

You always do.

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer
assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

"If a group of people made a public statement saying that having a new Pearl Harbor would be the only way the public would support their agenda, and these same people were in positions that would allow them to conduct, permit or enable such an event when that event actually took place...would they deserve your suspicion? Well this is EXACTLY what happened. The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before

Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

So you believe in fairy tales? Man has never survived a trip to the moon.You saw the lunar modual on TV(just like the cartooned planes hitting the buildings),now explain how they docked the lunar modual and got into the splash down modual!

Its television not reality!

We tossed the Titanic,the Lusiatania,the Murrah Building,Pearl Harbor,ect why not the rest?

The planes on TV that noone at the scene saw .The ones they spliced(overlayed) onto the live feeds on 911 at the precise momets to hoodwink the audience into believing they were real! A few live feeds did not have the overlay and published the view without planes! They even hologramed the south tower plane hit.

Then perhaps you should stick with the original topic.

My replies were all related to what Warhol thinks about radio waves not propagating through nothing, and I can somewhat understand that interpretation because as far as we know there's no such thing as nothing. So I can't be certain or much less prove that photons can function within absolutely nothing.

Obviously you are a very naysay kind of guy, and yet you believe anything your K-12 peers and government has to say. Go figure.

We must keep going and going and going again and again. People still think the Constitution is still the Supreme Law of the Land,They have not been taught in schools that the real Law is the UCC and no cases before 1935 are considered legal.The oldest law that can be considered legal to declare a case is Erie vrs Thompson.This brought about the term "RAILROADED"

Shoot it first, then laugh. John Smith needs to lighten up, take a breath and if need be, fart before his head explodes.

There's no place in this universe as having nothing, so there's no way of ever knowing how photons and radio waves propagate through absolute nothing.

He's a bit less dense than Warhol, but how do these elementary school

Radio Waves are very happy to traverse the Universe.ET Phoned Home.

out who Joan Crawford looked like, Boris Karloft.

Most K-12s are not wise enough to find or much less utilize Google Groups or these Usenet/newsgroups. Home schooling (always sequestered inside a cave) might explain Warhol. John Smith may have skipped a few grades, but at least his interpretation of nothing seems reasonable enough.

But were they, to quote your claim, "Moron twoofers"?

> You can't argue with FACTS, even though > that's what you moron twoofers do day in and day out.

Those are factual cites of expert opinion of the day.

> SPECULATION by people does not constitute FACT, idiot.

No such claim has been made,

All that has occurred is that evidence of credible experts opining regarding bin Laden's status was disseminated through the mainstream media.

Let's return now to your claim, that "Moron twoofers" were "running around" and feeding some kind of "echo chamber".

The real world tote shows we have:

1. The FBI's counter-terrorism chief.

2. A former US intelligence officer and BU profesor.

3. The foremost bin Laden exert and a Duke professor.

4. A political analyst and a philosophy professor.

Somehow, even in your fevered mind, I doubt you can truly make the case that these sources are all:

a. "Morons"

b. "Twoofers"

But feel free to sacrifice your own meager credibility upon your self-made alter of rank egoism, as is your regular wont here.

And understand that there are several other government spokespersons who claimed the bin Laden tapes to be fake and opined as well that he was deceased.

There is no such thing as "nothing" in a vacuum, you still have it filled with the ether. The perfect media for RF and light ... light and RF are one in the same, just different frequencies of the same phenomenon ...

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Since this now allows you to rant on subjects you know nothing about, you can make insane guesses, hold insane beliefs, and propose impossible situations which obey none of the real laws of science and math ... and, doing all with no sense of how insane it sounds to those who have a knowledge of all this. Since you don't know any better, you think none do -- gee, akin to winos giving PhD dissertations on complex matters of importance!

Yep, and absolutely NONE of them stated that Osama was positively, absolutely and conclusively dead. They all included wiggle words, such as appears, or seems, or based on the evidence, etc. In short NONE of them stated he was factually DEAD.

Further, most of them seemed to be expressing their OPINION of his status rather than any factual knowledge that they absolutely knew he was dead.

Really, until you can separate opinion from fact, and not overlook the wiggle words that turns a statement into something non-conclusive or binding, you're never going to be able to separate out what is actually factual from mere assertions.

Easy, the "internet" was ARPANET and funded by DARPA under the department of defense when I worked for various contractors and lawrence livermore labs., back in the late 70s and early 80s.

An interesting historical fact is, the first packets ever to be exchanged over the ARPANET (later to become "the internet") happened in late 1969.

It the 1980's it was beginning to be made available to certain uses in the public sector, and was eventually transferred over into the main public domain -- most here probably had their first exposure to it sometime in the 1990s, it they were old enough then and had access to a computer.

Although the original users of the internet (ARPANET) were government, government contractors and academic institutions, more data is now exchanged by these institutions using the net than ever before.

USENET was started up around 1979-80 based on UUCP (UNIX TO UNIX COPY PROTOCOL) and came out of bell labs, my first exposure/use of it was in 1980.

You only got to use the internet when the people I worked for were pretty much done with it and wanted it made available to you ... again, you even have the basic facts of that WRONG! Back then, we didn't allow people like you access!

I have watched all of this, I can tell you, just like slum neighborhoods and ghettos are created when you allow certain classes of people to enter them, so has gone USENET and the internet ...

ROFLOL ... what an idiot!

Vlad III Tepes Draculea (1431-1476) ! Theoretically - possible . But, he is a different king . Wlad III was a Polish-Lithuanian vs.Wallachian Dracul. .

Vlad III or Vlad Tepes ? This is becoming very confusing . There were at least 23 rulers under such name in Eastern Europe .

Ether is a fluid... air or Et2O... compressed it forms a liquid...

So ether is a liquid gas and in space it's vacuum... we have a conflict here.

so no air wave can travel thru the emptiness of the universe... To communicate with other worlds we need to use Light... smoke won't work nether... and sound neither.

Jeane Dixon and Joan Quigley ! Just wondering-- who is being consulted at present time . WH can't do without an astrologer , I guess . . .

The intoxicating ether you are sniffing, as you make these insane posts, has noting to do with the ether under discussion, your ether places you at a severe disadvantage in being able to recognize this:

THIS:
1) a: the rarefied element formerly believed to fill the upper regions of space.
b: the upper regions of space : heavens

2)
a: also aeï¿½ther, a medium that in the wave theory of light permeates all space and transmits transverse waves.
b: airwaves

The only thing "weak" about that statement, is the mind which thought-it/believes-it! You can "cast" the block in the box out of a liquid which solidified. You can first insert the block into just the four assembled side of the box, then attach the top and the bottom, etc., etc.

Again, you don't give me an example of anything but your VERY limited powers of reason and logic!

Why would I now go into a tangent, off the subject discussed, so you can baffle us with bullshit? Because, you sure as hell ain't going to be dazzling us with your brilliance!

Since the ether can fit between the atoms of all matter known to us, it would be impossible to ever be able to create a "space" devoid of ether.

Once again, you demonstrate your VERY limited powers of logic and reason ... apparently, you think you accomplish something else?

what do they mean with "the upper regions of space" hah what a definition for the upper regions of the mesosphere...

http://sccscience.files.wordpress.com/2009/05/atmosphere.jpg

In the thermosphere you have no aether... there is only the void... and as we all know waves can't propagate in the void...

A gas has a mass and a weight... Vacuum has no mass or no weight... see the difference?

Oh, you are sober now and recognize that?

Yeah, around the time they were referring to it as aether, they believed it only "inhabited" the upper regions of space.

We now know it permeates every region of "space" which we can see, the earth itself, and all forms of matter ... even our bodies.

since a few NASA employees post here maybe they have something to sat about this?

Also the opposite of what NASA says is the truth... They will have

No one wishes to stick their neck out and call it "ether" (or aether) for that matter ... even Einstein attempts to acknowledge "it" as the "cosmological effect" (basically, but denied by many, to be equiv. to a "cosmic ether.")

I find many high schools and colleges are even "unaware" (or in some form of denial) to Einsteins admission of a "gravitational ether."

Like I say, there is relatively "handful" of people who come right out and deal with ether as a substantial material, in academic and research branches.

An example of what I am referring to is this abstract:

http://adsabs.harvard.edu/abs/1991PhLA..152..458A

Or, this one:

http://arxiv.org/abs/physics/0608164

Investigating with search terms composed of "gravitational ether", "cosmic ether", "cosmological effect", etc. will show the debate is far from over ...

However, the "effect" which seems to go wanting for a proper name has already been covered under the name of "ether." However, since many have denied its' existence, but now are forced to admit "something is there", attempt to hide their mistaken denial in a "name change ploy/tactic." This has more to do with human nature and the refusal to admit mistakes than anything else ...

Actually, quite funny to watch! Very smart people also suffer from such ego worship ... and the fear of being ostracized by their peers ...

Simply put, you can still deny the "ether" if you just name "it" something else, since then, you deny the "it" is ether! ROFLOL

JS

I wont talk anymore about this, since ether is known to be air... just consult the ancient encyclopedia's.

and in space there ain't no ether found... there is only the infinite void... Space does not bend. A ray/ a Beam does.

http://apod.nasa.gov/apod/image/0109/3c175_vla.jpg

And what is an atomic clock? what a joke... science filled with untrue claims. THE GREAT ATOMIC CLOCK SCAM! Like false religion, if they contradict each other each time.

Maybe I should start a thread; "FAKE of CENTURY"

BTW E = mc2 is not Einstein's equation at all... The big E just made "h" (plancks constant usable)... no such thing as dark energy/mass

no anti gravity

no black holes

Space don't bend by gravity

No Cosmic Ether

if you have specifics perhaps ask

Yids deliberately associated his name with it though for the usual reasons of deception and promoting the meme that the self chosen are superior intellects... the bastards who think they know, have no p.h.u.c.k.ing clue...

PSS Ether, or luminiferous Ether, was the hypothetical substance through which electromagnetic waves travel. It was proposed by the greek philosopher Aristotle Eric Weisstein's World of Biography and used by several optical theories as a way to allow propagation of light, which was believed to be impossible in "empty" space.

http://scienceworld.wolfram.com/physics/Ether.html

So it was and they changed the laws by fraud and made all students very dumb... the ancient knew what we don't know anymore.

Actually, the only way you can bend a light beam (or, any other electromagnetic beam or photons) is to bend the material which contains the beam.

But, if you said something correct now, you would ruin your record of being 100% wrong -- good save!

I can show you how to "see" the ether!

Place a strong magnet under a sheet of paper, now sprinkle iron filings on top of the sheet of paper. The iron filings will form them selfs into a pattern showing the lines of magnetic force in the ether ...

These lines of force, OBVIOUSLY, do not have magic "photons" flowing along them, and, if they are "waves", they are static ones!

The bend of the iron filings DO show the magnetic field AND the warped ether though which they are conducted ...

Really?

So then he didn't acknowledge that the "gravitational ether" existed?

He didn't acknowledge that space is bent like a mattress by a bowling ball, and subject to the forces of gravity?

You are claiming lines of space (ether) penetrate through the earth as perfectly straight lines?

Let's see the sources which cause you to reach that/those conclusion(s?)

Wow. Two words and you misread it. I stand in awe.

Einstein was quite clear that space was a non-Euclidian construct. That, in fact, it was quite flexible, and that there were no straight lines. And that it was finite.

Well you may have to buy his book!

New book proves Christopher Columbus was a Royal Prince, son of King Vladislav III and his Portuguese noble wife

Badajoz, Spain, November 26, — Christopher Columbus was a Royal Prince, son of a Portuguese noble lady and exiled Polish King Vladislav III, according to Columbus' new biography, "COLON. La Historia Nunca Contada" (COLUMBUS. The Untold Story), by Manuel Rosa, just released in Spain.

The author has already piqued the interest of a National Geographic producer and is currently in Portugal and Spain taking part in conferences and TV documentaries about his research.

It has taken 20 years of slow methodical investigation, but this historian now says he has proof that the history of Christopher Columbus included intentional lies to protect the identity of the discoverer's father.

In formulating this new argument, the author utilizes medieval documents and chronicles from multiple kingdoms to cross-reference historical events and personalities, plus ancient genealogy and heraldry, explaining the whole scenario in a scientifically investigative fashion, thus garnering the support of many scholars:

World-renowned Prof. Joaquim Verissimo Serrao, ex-Dean of the University of Lisbon, who wrote the Preface, declares that he “agrees one hundred per cent.”

“This book will forever change the way we view our history,” says Prof. Jose Carlos Calazans of Lusofona University in Lisbon.

Prof. Antonio Vicente, History Professor at Lisbon University, says, “For the first time ever a book was written about Columbus without starting from any preconceived certainties and every piece of the puzzle is explained point by point.”
“I never started out to look for Columbus,” says Rosa, who works at Duke University in North Carolina. “It was Columbus who came looking for me.” His journey began fortuitously with the translation of Mascarenhas Barreto’s 1988 book about a Portuguese secret agent.

Like the rest of the world, Rosa thought the history of Columbus was settled long ago. But this new book, by “the sheer weight of the evidence presented makes the old tale of a Genoese wool-weaver so obviously unbelievable that only a fool would continue to insist on it.”

Facts Rosa disputes with solid, researched documentation include:

Columbus was married to a high noble Portuguese lady in 1479, 15 years before the first voyage.

Both he and his brother had direct access to four European courts – hardly the life of Genoese peasants.

A last will dated 1498 in which Columbus is said to have written “being I born in Genoa” is now proven to be a forgery as a result of this investigation.
“‘Another nutty conspiracy theory!’ That’s what I first supposed as I started to read … I now believe that if Columbus is guilty of huge fraud carried out over two decades against his patrons,” wrote professor James T. McDonough, Jr., who taught at St. Joseph’s University for 31 years.

Obviously lensing proves the flexibility of space and perhaps even that of time which at least photons seem to respect, thereby establishing that it's by no means empty unless 1000 atomic particles plus whatever flow of gravity and magnetic fields per cubic meter is supposed to represent emptiness.

If space were truly empty, photons could ether travel FTL and thereby become invisible to our best instruments, or perhaps not manage to go anywhere.

Yes, really; Einstein showed that space bends, and therefore disagreed with the statement that "Space does not bend".

I'm not sure that actual lines of magnetic force exist, other than depicted by those paramagnetic iron filings which tend to create their own patterns or lines. Moving a magnet (big or little, powerful or weak) past any sufficiently neutral or nonmagnetic conductor does not suggest or otherwise indicate a given test magnet or artificial magnetic field as offering lines of force.

Space is not empty, unless 1000 atomic particles per m3 qualifies, plus scads of energy and force always passing through each and every m3.

I'm not sure the innards of a black hole are empty, but there is that remote possibility of that robust sphere of positrons being hollow and thus having nothing at its core.

our ancient TV Tubes work with a bended electrical arc Beam in vacuum...

http://www.physicscentral.com/elementadmin/ask/images/beam-img.jpg

http://www.edsavhandbook.com/CRT%20Ilustrationn.jpg modulating electron beams navigate from left to right, top to bottom, and illuminate the red, green, and blue sets of phosphor located behind a fine wire mesh screen, the shadow mask, near the screen’s surface. Thus the original video image is recreated.

So here we have the proof rays/beams can be bended... The cathode ray tube is the technology that launched TV and dominated video displays in the 20th century. Its key component parts consist of the cathode, the anode, two electromagnets, a steering circuit.

Get a sheet of paper and fold it into pleats, as though you are making a fan to wave back and forth to cool yourself.Some people say/hypothesize Space/or a part of Space, the distance could be shortened similar to a sheet of pleated paper so as to shorten the distance when traveling from place to place in Space in Spaceships.

There's nothing sane about Google Groups or much less Usenet/newsgroups that are 99.9% populated with rusemasters or FUD-masters of the mainstream status quo.

At times you need a really good battery of loose cannons in order to return the favor, along with a good sense of humor and sadistic zingers that'll help define those trying to make your existence as insignificant or nonexistent as possible.

Giving a topic or one of its replies a reasonable swag is fair game.
Otherwise I like to stick within the regular laws of physics and interpret from the best available science, whereas others here seem to prefer to topic/author stalk and to use those highly social/political and even faith-based conditional laws of physics, plus they usually exclude/banish or obfuscate on behalf of any science that doesn't happen to agree with their closed mindset that is usually based upon worshiping all things Einstein.

here you are right, BG, it doesn't line up with the magnetic force... since ether atoms have a mass... Ether must be seen as layers of oxygen and other gasses... the heavyset atoms are below and the lightest above... (hydrogen is lightest)... why a balloon can fly very high until it reach vacuum and there it will remain as positive loaded atom which shall form a kind of Faraday cage around earth...

Por favore - While we're on the topic of medium wave, Do you know of any websites that have good listings of NAm MW stations with power and hours, formatted like the old White's Radio Log? That was such a useful tool - I miss it.

Thanks,

Aww yeahhhhhh,,,,, my old house is plum Full of dust and dog hair and my cig smoke and my old junk.What it is, I am in the process right now (soon as I get off of my WebTV comfort zone, ala doggy's couch) of toteing a Lot of my old junk up my step ladder and I set it on the attic floor up there and I push it over (while still standing on my step ladder) as far as I can, then I tote some more junk up there, over and over and over some more.Tonight I will get up there and move that junk way over so I can tote some more junk up there.As slowwwwww as I am, It will probally take me a couple of weeks of doing that sheet.Someday, doggy and I will have some room to walk around in my house without bumping into junk.

Really Really - and it was proved by Walter Sydney Adams in 1925 and in the Pound-Rebka experiment of 1959.

No that is 3 dimensional thinking. spacetime is distorted by a sufficiently large mass. Gravity is an effect of that distortion not the cause.
The behaviour we ascribe to the force of gravity is actually the result of inertial motion within the four dimensional curved geometry of spacetime.

That could be where all those billions of tonnes worth of helium are hidden, as under a shell/layer of hydrogen, or as otherwise getting solar heated and wind blown away from the gravity pool we call Earth.

You repeat statements not supported my modern science, "logic and reason" and don't seem to be able to actually explain much of anything.

I even gave you an out by allowing perfectly flat surfaces, something impossible at the scale you want to work and you explain nothing.

More important you don't give evidence, you give opinion. My high school physics class gave evidence that your belief system is wrong.

This is where the confusion begins, too many think:

space = (truly) empty

Space doesn't bend, the ether does ... I mean, DUH! How can "nothing" bend?

See, that is why you are wrong on most points, you get the basic laws screwed up and how do you expect anything else you are going to say to make any sense -- IT WON'T!

"The aether of the general theory of relativity is a medium without mechanical and kinematic properties, but which codetermines mechanical and electromagnetic events." -- Einstein (Source, Pais, "Subtle is the Lord" p 313.)

AND --

page 16: But on the other hand there is a weighty argument to be adducted in favor of the ether hypothesis. To deny the ether is ultimately to assume that empty space has no physical quality whatever. The fundamental facts of (quantum) mechanics do not harmonize with this view.

page 23: Recapitulating, we may say that according to the general theory of relativity space is endowed with physical qualities; in this sense, therefore, there exists an ether. According to the general theory of relativity space without ether is unthinkable; for in such space there not only would be no propagation of light, but also no possibility of existence for standards of space and time (measuring-rods and clocks), nor therefore any space-time intervals in the physical sense.

From here:
http://www.helical-structures.org/einstein_about_ether.htm

And:
http://www.blavatsky.net/science/ether/ether.htm

And:
http://adsabs.harvard.edu/full/1958AuJPh..11..279B

You need to jump off that wagon and now jump on the "hair-splitting" wagon of what Einstein meant!

But then, that is what I like about you, YOU ARE CONSISTENTLY WRONG!

You are going to have to look to Einstein to even get a "sense" and a "feel" about the slippery stuff, ether.

It is not like any matter we know, it is completely alien to us. We do not possess senses to detect it, and there are no instruments, yet, which will.

One very un-intuitive quality of ether? It passes through your vacuum tubes like the glass envelopes don't even exist, and all other parts of the tube, for that matter ... but then, I doubt you have a mind which can even begin to fathom speculation on ether -- so you are pretty much stuck where you are!

Obviously, I would tell by the choice of your words, the tact you took, and the points you chose to attempt to argue ... you were going to begin splitting hairs on such as "flat surfaces" and such and yet expand the tangents ... all to confabulate, obfuscate and baffle us with your bullshit ...

No, you didn't mislead me for a second ... I knew.

And, I already admitted that, high school physics teachers get it wrong, indeed, colleges get it wrong, indeed, and even worse, textbooks repeat the error(s.) I know, been there, done that ... one of the hardest things to get rid of is an error injected into the system(s!)

You missed the whole importance of my text, you are too willing to keep looking for "nothing." "Nothing" doesn't exist in our world. Construct an indestructible bottle, pump all the gasses out, created a perfect vacuum, and you simply have a container of full ether.

You are intent on having those lines of force, mentioned in your text as "patterns or lines", as what? Photons jumping across the expanse of "nothing?" Static magnetic fluxes/lines existing in "nothing?"

Just as Einstein pointed out, without ether light could not transverse space ... and neither could those lines exist! They ain't using the air, you do that that, right?

Usually these brown-nosed clowns just try to destroy the credibility of everyone that dares to post a topic or even reply to any other. As a rule, FUD-masters that seldom if ever admit who they really are or who they truly represent are out to get anyone that dares to revise history or interpret anything of physics or science differently than their mainstream closed mindset, and clearly most of these pesky guys and a few gals are public funded and/or faith-based motivated. Among other derogatory names that seem appropriate, I call them pretend-Atheists that merely act/react exactly like devout Semites. Go figure, because it's what we have to put up with, or best to ignore because they're just not worth the effort.

The "gravity pool we call earth" is actually the substance of matter of the earth displacing a bit of ether, the ether which has been displaced creates a pressure to attempt to fill the void created, this IS gravity.
Much like immersing a balloon in a tub of water, pressure exists on all points of the surface of the balloon ... so it is with the ether.

And, to see that, we have to agree, if you take an atoms from the case of my computer, blow those atoms up to the size of oranges, the next atom of the material will be a full football field away, or around there!

Our matter is mostly "nothing", however, ether fills this space, this "nothing." But, the actually substance of the particles composing the atoms DO displace their equal volume of ether.

Now, you won't find that in a textbook, will you? Think about it ... this is how the mechanics of the quantum nature of things can work, so invisibly. Or, another way to picture it, is all of the matter we can look at, feel, sense, etc. is simply "dissolved" in the ether ...

If something/anything is moving FTL, such as gravity, then we can't possibly detect it even though it is still there. Perhaps the matrix or flow of ether is simply FTL.

Right about that, and if this ether existence or whatever flow should be FTL, as such we're never going to detect it, unless freezing it to death at 0 K does the trick.

We can't see or otherwise detect the actual flow or existence of a gravity wave or that illusive graviton, perhaps because it's running at 2c or faster.

If an original monochromatic photon is not directed at the detector, can that original photon still be detected? (such as from a perpendicular, off to the side location)

Yeah, that is a whole nother' can of worms ... truly-mass-less-ether ... and, enters Michio Kakus' string theory.

And, if these guys have a hard problem with ether, just think about the jump into that cesspool!

Basically, then, you must say, "There is no such thing as "matter", there is only vibrations and frequencies ... I guess "vibrating ether"
... ;-)

Ether is a volatile organic compound at one time used as an anaesthetic.

If you intend to push the aether theory at least get the terminology right fer petes sake.

The "ether" described by those who hold to that view does NOT mean a mechanical medium whose deformations correspond to electromagnetic fields, but rather a locally preferred state of rest at each point of spacetime.

You clearly failed to grasp this major difference between classical views of the aether as a physical substance and modern aetheric theories that view it as an aspec of spacetime.

You aseem to be incapable of understanding even the most basic tenets of the subject.

Special Relativity clearly shows that an aether is NOT required and clearly states that an aether in the classic sense of a physical medium is nonsense.

Taking fragments of writing out of context and using them as 'proof' is not convincing.

What Einstein did was to write that a solid phase Aether "seemed" to be a necessary consequence" of light transmission. He then went on to demonstrate that something that "seemed" to be necessary actually was not.

He sums up saying "according to the General Theory of Relativity space is endowed with physical qualities; in this sense, therefore, there exists an Aether"

However he makes it clear this is NOT a physical medium, instead he states

"But this Aether may not be thought of as endowed with the quality characteristic of ponderable media, as consisting of parts which may be tracked through time. "

All I see is a nut telling me what they think, imagine, deduce, have visions of, psychically know, etc., and not a very inventive one, at that!

But, you have indicated to now go into the "hair-splitting-phase" of what "Einstein meant" ... gee, now where have I seen that before?

Ether is the single most important element in the form, structure and operation of our world and universe.

Without it, the "attractive" and "repulsive" components of atomic particles, would not, could not, exist. It is only because of ether serving as a medium for all the electric and magnetic "communications between these atomic particles, the nucleus, electrons, photons, etc., etc. that matter is able to form itself into the organized units it does, to hold these shapes, and to exhibit the properties it does.

You have backwards, it is NOT the matter which has the greater importance and you can ignore the ether, it is just the fact that NOTHING would exist as it does without this ether ...

What an idiot and an outright imbecilic slob! For awhile I wondered, but obviously, you are the MOST stupid here!

You know, John...in the 18th century, this thinking would be considered visionary.

But today, with General Relativity, String Theory, and a pretty good running start at a Grand Unified Theory, it's a little behind the times. Like Newtonian mechanics. Good for it's time. But in a universe of speeds that may be expressed as an appreciable fraction of C, not really all that precise. As described by Lorenz. And demonstrated at Princeton.

The theory of ether was rather undone by Michelson and Morely in 1887, when they devised an experiment to detect the ether wind with negative results.

The notion of a universally distributed inter-matter substance called ether has been replaced with the thinking that aether is a property of space, which Einstein demostrated through General Relativity was not only subject to bending, distortion and curvature, but was also finite without edge, curving back on itself, not unlike a Moebius band. Creating a universe in which travel in a single direction of sufficient duration will result in a return to the origin. Put another way, if you had a telescope large enough, if you looked in any direction long enough, eventually, you'd see the back of your own head.

Yeah, sure isn't visionary, been known about for a LONG time ... it is just where the cutting edge is taking us, at this point ... I agree, except for an absolute shape/size/form of the universe to be known ...

I'd keep all eyes on CERN in the future ...

Let me "more blunt." I am saying nothing, other than repeating Einstein, I just choose words to emphasize his meaning. Perhaps we don't agree on what he has said?:

"Recapitulating, we may say that according to the general theory of relativity space is endowed with physical qualities; in this sense, therefore, there exists an ether. According to the general theory of relativity space without ether is unthinkable; for in such space there not only would be no propagation of light, but also no possibility of existence for standards of space and time (measuring-rods and clocks), nor therefore any space-time intervals in the physical sense. But this ether may not be thought of as endowed with the quality characteristic of ponderable media, as consisting of parts which may be tracked through time. The idea of motion may not be applied to it."

He is the one placing the importance on the ether, the "standards" ARE the structure of our world and universe ...

He even stipulated this!:

"Therefore, instead of speaking of an ether, one could equally well speak of physical qualities of space. Now one could take the position that all physical objects fall under this category, because in the final analysis in a theory of fields the ponderable matter, or the elementary particles that constitute matter, also have to be considered as ï¿½fieldsï¿½ of a particular kind, or as particular ï¿½statesï¿½ of the space."

If you think I am attempting to represent myself as a "visionary", you are sadly mistaken, I meant no such thing. Read the masters words c-a-r-e-f-u-l-l-y!

Anyway, others fight with the meaning of all this here:

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

So it would seem, dipshit, since UBL was alive and well. Don't you feel stupid even bringing it up?

Hint: You have nothing. You keep citing people's OPINIONS as FACTS. Do you normally have such trouble separating fiction from reality?

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

You are becoming a drag. I am having to spoon feed this all to you because you are in ignorance of subjects you suddenly jump in on and start your rants which go in circles and tangents!

You could avoid all this by simply doing a bit of reading and research and be in a state of being able to make rational and usable comments and statements.

Actually, it was directed by banks and financial institutions which wanted to halt Kennedy from abolishing the federal reserve.

Soon as Johnson got in office, he reversed all progress and actions, done by John and Robert, and killed their destruction of the federal reserve ... look it up.

Hey, it makes me sad to be the bearer of bad news. But, due to your success in intimidating all the other morons here, you now live in a fantasy world believing that the educated consider you more than a lowly moron. I just do it and let the dust fall where it might ...

I take no joy in your upset caused by it being made apparent your posts are bogus bullshit! But, that is for you to fix, not me ...

I'm sadder that you take time to answer my posts.

You should lead the free world against the enemy of the TRUTH!

Go!

NOW!

Thanks!

Yeah, youth/ignorance is like that, expects everything to happen, all at once, in a BIG BANG ...

The reality is, you slay one moron at a time, even when the world appears to have an endless supply!

juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

When you finally except that Christopher Columbus was a sham and realy Vlad I SLAVE the 4th,you wil be ready for reality.
Command sense will kick in and you will slowly awaken from your trance!

The CIA monarh project,HAARPs mind altering EMFs,Monsantos genetically altered foods,poisons sprayed by Chemtrails and hitlers flouride in your drinking water has taken its toll on you.

"congratulations for your willingness to look at the proof about 9-11"

http://www.911proof.com/

Notice that the bushkultie won't be able to address
any of the facts from the above site at all.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks, which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

Notice that the bushkultie must ignore this fact, too.

Of course you can't name one item of admissible evidence

So what's your excuse for your inability to insist on a valid

Of course you hate America when you insist that those who murder Americans should not be prosecuted

The bushkultie has no admissible evidence, and doesn't even know what it is.

You always do.

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer
assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their offshore accounts.

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

"...incompetence cannot explain the suppression of efforts to prevent the attacks."

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before

Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

http://www.army.mil/cmh-pg/brochures/pi/pi.htm

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to "Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Of course.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,

It's undisputed.

That's what all these pretenders, rusemasters and FUD-masters want everyone to do, is have fun at doing nothing remotely constructive. The last thing they want is any investigative research to turn up revisions of history or to uncover anything new or improved, such as better, cleaner and even cheaper energy like Mokenergy, or discovering other intelligent life existing/coexisting on the planet Venus.

Here's the original cloudless GIF composite radar obtained image file (as raw and not having been enlargement processed):
http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/hires/mgn_c115s095_1.gif
Without even downloading the GIF monochrome image, you can still screen zoom-in on the area in question, so as to keeping the raw 1:1 pixel format and its limited resolution of 225 meters/pixel, and thereby have yourself a good look-see at interpreting whatever that 225 meter per pixel resolution has to offer.

Here’s one of my 10:1 enlargements of the same area that I’ve pointed out:
http://docs.google.com/View?id=ddsdxhv_0hrm5bdfj

This GIF image format is actually providing us with a terrific kind of composite image that offers 36 confirming radar scans or looks per pixel from the original 75 meter/pixel of SAR imaging FOV(frame of view), so at best it simply doesn’t provide the kind of resolution detail to see whatever is of less than 75 meter/pixel even when enlarged by 3:1. However, even at the least resolution composite image of 225 meters per pixel and 36 confirming radar scans/pixel, there are several large enough items that can easily be interpreted as is, involving a sufficient number of pixels that can tell us something about the surrounding natural and of those potentially artificial items. It's also an image as having been obtained at the perspective viewing angle of 43 degrees, so as to offer us a nearly 3D kind of look-see.

Enlarging by way of image resampling and filtering simply makes it easier for those unfamiliar with digital imaging and observationology (deductive image interpreting) to get some visualization interpretations or notions as to what looks so unusually artificial, (as though having been intelligently created), mostly because of its rational geometric shapes and the seemingly valid looking infrastructure that stands out from all the unstructured random happenstance of the surrounding natural terrain that frankly keeps looking perfectly natural at the same 10:1 enlargement as it does at the raw 1:1 original, which only proves that nothing is getting artificially introduced or excluded by the image enlargement software.

Of course those objecting to my deductive interpretations are as FUD-masters not even the least bit capable of ever accomplishing a resampled image of anything, much less capable of proving my interpretation as false or illusions because, they obviously don't want myself or anyone else causing a mainstream media fuss or imposing any revisions upon their published versions of science or history. In other words, it's imperative that myself and others of independent deductive thinking be disqualified and/or banished at all cost, regardless of any consequences.

Ask yourself; why would 1% of the image pixels within the small area that I've selected manage to keep their artificial looking patterns, of depicting their seemingly intelligent created infrastructure when enlarged, along with all those other surrounding pixels of the natural random happenstance of all that toasty mountainous terrain of raw geology that keeps looking perfectly natural at the same 10:1 enlargement?

Perhaps your having been systematically brainwashed by those of your family, peers and their mainstream status-quo authority of mostly public funded Qinetiq FUD-masters is what has your investigative deductions put on hold until they tell you exactly whatever to believe and otherwise how to think. This wouldn't even be unusual, because most American K-12s simply can't or wouldn't dare think for themselves, especially never outside of their closed social/political and faith-based conditioned mindset cozy box. Understandably, most of us simply don't like being informed that we been snookered and dumbfounded past the point of no return by their peers and others of their own kind, perhaps because it's downright embarrassing and humiliating at the same time. At least Dr. Brennan is given the illusion of understanding, so what's your excuse.

"Lava channels, Lo Shen Valles, Venus from Magellan Cycle 1"

http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/hires/mgn_c115s095_1.gif
Other thumbnail images, including mgn_c115s095_1.gif (225 m/pixel)
http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/thumbnail_pages/venus_thumbnails.html

Of course all of our usual FUD-masters (the same ones having spotted all of those Muslim WMD for us and claim they never expected 9/11 no maters how much we'd taken advantage of others or having provoked so many of them) can only manage to see a toxic planet of hot rock that looks as though it's all perfectly natural, so perhaps it is no wonder they seem to be unable to interpret anything about the planet Venus on behalf of accommodating any intelligent Goldilocks. I'm certain that eventually out of all the billions of potential planets capable of sustaining and/or accommodating intelligent other life, that a few wet and cold enough exoplanets teaming with only naked complex life will show up.

I doubt they are running a mere 5 KW if you are picking them up in Fresno (or whatever god-forsaken place you haunt). They are required to run Mexican PSAs and Public Affairs programming.

Ella Miller, Indiana County, Septicemia, Smicksburg, Trina Orlando

SMICKSBURG (KDKA) — An Amish woman from Indiana County died this week after an accident while she was doing laundry.

Ella Miller, 32, was doing laundry in a pot over an open flame early Monday morning.

State police say she threw some kerosene on the fire in an attempt to intensify the heat, but that caused an explosion which caught her clothing on fire.

Miller suffered first, second and third degree burns. At her request, she was treated with home remedies by family and neighbors.

Miller died Wednesday morning after an infection set in. The cause of her death is listed as septicemia and severe thermal burns.

State police say no foul play was involved.

People in Smicksburg say a viewing was held Thursday afternoon and a private funeral is planned for Friday.

Neighbors say Miller leaves behind a husband and six children.

Interesting that K-12s are not permitted to access or utilize Google Groups or much less contribute within these Usenet/newsgroups, perhaps because of folks like yourself that would topic/author stalk and bash at anyone suggesting alternative interpretations or acting the least bit independent, and thus capable of deductively interpreting on their own.

Obviously you want everyone to be as smart as yourself (but never any smarter), so why is this world of yours in such a mess?

Think about it. In doing any calculation, aether need not be entered as a value. In doing any calculation, god need not be entered as a value. Therefore, they can and actually MUST be treated exactly as if they do not exist.

Actually, that is a bit more than I am attempting to cause to happen ... or am actually stating.

D. Peter Maus is NOT an absolute moron of the common type found here -- I have NOT found diabolical-evil intent in his posts. Indeed, both you and he seem to have something(s) to offer, and at best, that is all which any of can do. Somehow, I think he has, and too quickly, moved over the fine meaning of what is delivered up in our institutions of "higher learning." I have made this error, and many times ... when I first found this out, I went back to my colleges, grabbed department heads and held their feet to the fire, and asked them why the material in their institution(s) never covered the detail/truths I was now finding in my area(s) of hire/employment, and to make these important truths dramatically apparent to me?

To cut to the chase, and almost to a person, all answers contained a common central theme, "It never was our intent nor obligation to teach you 'what you need to know', but rather to teach you how to learn what you need to know." (answers, condensed, 'averaged' and paraphrased, of course!) At that time, many decades ago, this angered me ... no longer.
I now see it was my errors which were the actual fault.

And, all this was tempered by the fact that I had been exposed to the same materials, as I was now showing them, as proofs -- but the error(s) were in the "interpretations" of that/those materials. Further, they pointed out, at any time, I could have chosen to argue any points I found relevant and with great meaning, and in opposition to that which is "commonly accepted" ... instead of "just worrying about the grade."

But, here, in NGs, we find REAL morons, and are forced into dealing with "those types" here (or, PLONK EM'! :-) ), it is easy to become cynical and just expect the next comment/statement out of next persons mouth (fingers, mind, etc.) to simply be a new serving of tripe.

I simply mean to remind some of the above of, my mistakes, others mistakes, etc. But, I don't mind getting "down and dirty" to cause this to happen ... the focus, the interest, is in "what-is-REALLY-goin'-on!" Those of us who can move in that/those direction(s) now will ...

JS

I see the point you make.

Akin to saying, "We can ignore time", and sometimes we can ...

And, normally, I would agree ... but, when attempting to discover what these things really are, or attempting to advance knowledge so we make a jump to FTL, new energy sources, new universes, etc., I don't.

And, ether becomes of primary importance, or is paramount to discussions on the subject ... let's just not develop a mental illness where we want to prevent all others from ignoring-it/discussing-it ...

Well, if anything ever gets stolen, you can always call a cop, and let him take a report!

Then move on -- without the stolen item(s.) And, let him get back to

If that were true you might have a point, but it's not.

Google "space" and "virtual particles"; too many hits to cite.

>Space doesn't bend, the ether does

There is no ether.

Space isn't "nothing".

NO, it isn't, because it is FULL of ether ... space, if possible, by itself is nothing.

What you are referring to IS ether, you simply name it space ... yes, there is precedent for calling "ether", "space", an error which has been repeated countless times, and you supply absolute evidence of.

Dave, thanks for this. IIRC (and my memory could be faulty) the WRTH discontinued this ascending frequency/callsign/TX power section for the United States, although they have massive tons of information for every other country. If anyone has a copy of the WRTH handy and can verify this one way or the other, the info would be most welcome.

Republican Health Care Plan, Part II

Governor Christie (R-N.J.) introduced legislation saying that if you make more than $103 a week (for a family of THREE), you make too much to qualify for Medicaid. (This amount is one-third of what has been defined as the poverty level).

I think that is just a scam ... the real plan being to steal all medical insurance and use it to fund wars which all the theft of other nations resources and allow them to keep on getting their tax breaks ...

Well, dammit man! If they just gave our criminal government what it wanted, they wouldn't have to attack them!

Now, that is a reasonable argument, isn't it?

PART 1: Striking the US where it hurts

A noted Chinese theorist on modern warfare, Chang Mengxiong, compared China's form of fighting to "a Chinese boxer with a keen knowledge of vital body points who can bring an opponent to his knees with a minimum of movements". It is like key acupuncture points in ancient Chinese medicine. Puncture one vital point and the whole anatomy is affected. If America ever goes to war with China, say, over Taiwan, then America should be prepared for the following "acupuncture points" in its anatomy to be "punctured". Each of the vital points can bring America to its knees with a minimum of effort

This sounds exactly like a discussion I had a while back on the astronomy group. Why some people just love ether is beyond me. If something (ether) needs not be used in any way as a value in a computation, why use it at all? ...If you kick the tires and look under the hood of these ethertards, you'll find a god believer as well.

From discussing WHAT? Since ether doesn't exist, or can be treated EXACTLY as if it doesn't exist, why bother to discuss it?

It amounts to mental masturbation.

Those two old antique iron/wire beds I have, I bought them at Goodwill many years ago.The wire/iron rods on them is bent up, most of one of the legs on one of them is missing/rusted away, they were like that when I bought them many years ago.Nobody in their right mind would want to steal them.I am thinking I might fix one of them up for doggy and I to sleep on.

Most of what seems like loose cannon or friendly fire is actually intended to be lethal from the very get go.

These mainstream status-quo minions, parrots and brown-nosed clowns have it in for anyone that doesn't follow their lead and worship each and every word they have to say. The last thing they want to allow is any revision of history or science/physics interpretations other than peer approved by those which they worship as gods. So there's a wee little problem with these FUD-masters whenever anything the least bit different, new or improved comes along, and should by accident any K12s show up, there's no way that this general K12 public is going to be allowed to see or interpret things any other way than their mainstream status-quo and/or closed mindset way.

Hitler as well as GW Bush needed that kind of blind loyalty, and for the most part got it and then some.

William Mook has some capability of publishing the best available truth(s) in K12 textbook format.

I thought I had once read at Internet Data Movie Base website or somewhere a few years ago that James Arness was a Bomber Pilot.I reckon
I was mistaken.

Ken Curtis (Festus) was in World War Two.I think so.

Well, makes more sense than throwing in the rotation interval of the earth into equations NOT dealing with the earth! And, it has nothing to do with anything, except the rotation of the earth. The UTF will probably be discovered right around the time we learn to understand the ether ...

Besides, we will never know how radio waves (or any other waves, for that matter) transverse and are propagated by the ether though space. Most likely, will lead to a whole new area of physics, math and devices which utilize the properties, once we understand them.

You argument sounds familiar, "You don't have to be a mechanic to drive a car." The areas where that argument fail are also quite apparent ...

Yeah, it was, but not in the way you think. Taken as the ridiculous mental processes of birthtardic "minds", it's priceless.

Oh, I'd say you can still create perfectly straight lines, however, NOT with any device which measures "straight", which exists in the same universe ... or, simply put, a perfectly straight line would appear curved to us ...

WrongTurnJoe, please put down the crack pipe and go into detox. You're amazing, as far as comedy gold goes, but we're all starting to really worry about you.

Sad and pathetic little protests of yours, drowning in the sea of TRUTH.

Hint: You lose, and you lose big-time.

You have cited NOTHING except people expressing GUESSES and OPINIONS.

EPIC FAIL.

The problem is you cant proove I've lied everything,Ive said has been documented as the truth and your shill job is about to end because you cant herd the people away from reality anymore so your as useless as tits on a boar hog!

Its like trying to find one thing in the NIST report that is fact and not fiction,you cant name just one thing Nist got right same as you cant find anything I've said to be a lie!

Best for you to change your name and start handing out resumes!

That powerful crack you smoke has you all confused. YOU are supposed to try to NAME ONE THING in the INST report that is incorrect, but as we all know, you CAN'T and you WON'T since NIST has been proven correct in every detail.

Cripes, moron, you can't even find a TYPO in the NIST report!

You're a pathetic loser!

As I proved.

I always kinda thought he looked like a manikin, and wondered how they moved his lips?

I look at old gunsmoke clips, and laugh, and wonder how that could have possibly entertained me, as a child. Then I realize there were adults with me, when I watched!

Lamerod if you drink more lithium you might not have to commit suicide! However that is like saying Hitlers Flouride was added to the drinking water to prevent tooth decay. Well Francis the Dentist (deadrat)has stated it has not helped in preventing tooth decay.

Francis the Talking Horse can also throw her voice; If you ask her how many ears of corn she wants and walk to her rear end she will answer :
Afeww

So I would not hesitate to say it probably will increase the amount of suicides.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Wayyyyyy back many Moons ago, little boys wore dresses.I have a book floatin around here somewhere about that.

I have some wimmins clothes I bought at Goodwill.I don't wear them though, I only like to have them hanging around in my house.I have some dolls too, I thought my sister would want them.They are to good to throw away, so I keep them too.

I listened and saw (in REAL LIFE) . On Sept. 11, 2001 . In case you are wondering -- the smell of dead people is not very pleasant , especially after they have been discovered several weeks after that date . The acrid , smoking air was persistent for months, by the way , all over downtown .You can take your fairytales elsewhere , not here . And that's the way it is . NYC .

I'm afraid I just don't follow your train of thought . Shall we go back and determine and ascertain who is this Vlad I slave the 4th ?

How did you get into China , especially in 1964 ? Or- maybe it was the British Crown Colony of H.K ?

No cadaver dogs alerted to dead people and your the only one that has said there was the smell of death there!

I listened and saw as much as you did and was nowhere around the stinch of NYC.It smells like that often when the garbage men go on strike,I'm told!

Most of the Government officials knew in advance the buildings were going to be brought down by demolitions and that this would bring about multiple law suits over asbestos exposure so the fake terrorist attack got the job done! The builds were schedualed to be taken down and rebuilt because they were about to collapse on their own due to Galvanic Corrosion.The shelacked asbestos coating to counter the galvanic corrosion was a piss poor idea by Brown & Root,as the salt water saturated the shalacked asbestos and in aided the galvanic corrosion prosess.

The electrolysis of the connection of different metals metals ate up the bonding agent in the concrete floors thus they turned to dustwhen jolted!

I'm sure there were some people that were killed in the demolitions but the buildings were evacuated and roped off befor the first bomb went off in the north tower said to be a plane,so silverstien could cash in on his insider trading$$$$

This is what it smells like when the fat lady sings!

http://www.bushstole04.com/911/statute.htm

What do the Statue of Liberty and WTC Towers have in common?

http://100777.com/node/1074

The Statue of Liberty had to be repaired due to galvanic corrosion in air. Not what most think is possible but in ocean environments, very possible. Normally galvanic corrosion is only a factor in an electrolyte such as sea water and the stern drive on the boat - having steel and aluminum components - erodes, turns brittle and snap - it fails - if electrolytic grounding plates are not installed.

"""The galvanic reaction between iron and copper was originally mitigated by insulating copper from the iron framework using an asbestos cloth soaked in shellac. However, the integrity and sealing property of this improvised insulator broke down over the many years of exposure to high levels of humidity normal in a marine environment. The insulating barrier became a sponge that kept the salted water present as a conductive electrolyte, forming a crude electrochemical cell as and Volta had discovered a century earlier."""

In 1989 - there were plans to erect scaffolding and disassemble the WTC towers and rebuild them. Cost projection was around $5.6 billion. One of the architects shows up to work one day and the MIB's were there - had confiscated all of the plans, specs, details, etc for WTC. They even confiscated their office cubicles and had tape on the floor outlining where they went.

Reason - the exterior cast aluminum WTC panels had been directly connected to the steel superstructure of the building, thus causing galvanic corrosion. In short, the "life cycle" of the WTC was not 200 - 300 years, more like 30 years or so.

The exterior skin of the building - in being aluminum and connected directly to the super structure - was making the building weaker every day.

That could explain why there appears to be explosives set only about every 25 floors. Once the failure started, the brittleness of welds, rivets, bolts, etc would fail much easier as the loads became progressively greater on the way down.

That same process would also explain why the concrete was "powderized" over time because electrolytic processes weaken concrete too by "debonding" the Portland that causes concrete to bond in the first place. However, bear in mind that the "concrete floors" were not load bearing reinforced concrete. They were supported by what was a weakening by the day superstructure and cross members.

There was a 1989 meeting and the folks at the architectural firm Emory Roth, the project architect that took over after the design architects completed the conceptual drawings that had their office, records, plans and specs seized - were told that the $5.6 billion "take it down, rebuild it" project was cancelled and in about "10-12 years" they would "blow it up and start over". Consider that - and consider that NYC and the US Govt could not stand the global embarrassment of being so stupid or negligent that they did not consider the effects of galvanic corrosion on the superstructure. That is structural design 101 in architectural school and why they want architects to take physics and chemistry for Christ's sake. I did.

I am an architect by the way, quit practicing in 1988.

Guess what?

The fat lady HAS SUNG. You know, the one in New York Harbor with the torch of Liberty and Freedom held high.

I want to find the sick bastard that thought it would be a cute idea to have close to 3,000 in the building and use that as an excuse to go take on a whole new energy policy, war policy, and lining the pockets of just certain people.

I think a Statute of Liberty hanging for that person would be most appropriate.

No just read this!

http://yahushua.net/babylon/liberty/pagan_statue.htm

For the No Clickers it reads like this!

IS THE STATUE OF LIBERTY PAGAN?

What is the history and origin of the famed "Statue of Liberty"?
Is it so innocent as millions assume? There is much more to this story than most believe. It is time we pulled aside the cloak, and took a good look at the real facts, and what they mean for us, today. You might be shocked to know the deception that has been pulled over the eyes of the American people!

William F. Dankenbring

It is very interesting that the great symbol that is situated in the harbor of New York City, the Statue of Liberty, is a woman carrying a torch. As we saw in a previous issue of Prophecy Flash, New York City itself represents the city of "modern Babylon the great." Just like its predecessor of olden days, modern New York is the finanical hub and capital of the world. It is the center of American and multinational finance, marketing, and the location of the headquarters of the United Nations.

Looking at the prophecies of the end-time Babylon in the book of Revelation, we find that it is associated with a "woman." In fact, she is called a "woman," and the prophet Isaiah speaks of her as "the daughter of Babylon." In Revelation we read:

". . . I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. . . And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH" (Rev.17:3-5).

And in chapter 18 we read, further:

"And after these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power . . . And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon
the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of demons, and the hold of every foul spirit . . . For all nation have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the MERCHANTS of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues" (Rev.18:1-4).

When we read all the facts, we discover that there are three components of modern "Babylon." It is a major world city and sea port of modern commerce and trade -- a "mighty city" (Rev.18:10-11). It is also a great religious system which dominates the world, and which is pagan at heart, teaching involvement with the politics of this world, abominable doctrines and spiritual fornication (Rev.17:3-4), and which is responsible for the martyrdom and death of many of YHWH's true saints (Rev.17:6). The third component of this modern "Babylon" is the great World Empire which it rides and rules --called the "Beast" in Revelation (see Rev.17:3, 8). The female Babylon is a great harlot or whore (Rev.17:16) which governs a "Beast" Empire which possesses "seven heads and ten horns" (Rev.17:3).

The Daughter of Babylon

The prophet Isaiah tells us more about this symbiotic relationship. He writes of the modern "daughter" of ancient Babylon, thusly:

"Come down, and sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon, sit on the ground: there is no throne, O DAUGHTER of the Chaldeans: for thou shalt no more be called tender and delicate. . . Thy nakedness shall be uncovered, yea, thy shame shall be seen: I will take vengeance, and I will not meet thee as a man. . . . And thou saidst, I shall be a lady for ever: so that thou didst not lay these things to thy heart, neither didst remember the latter end of it.
Wherefore, hear now this, thou that art given to PLEASURES, that dwellest
CARELESSLY, that sayest in thine heart, I am, and none else beside me;
I shall no sit as a widow, neither shall I know the loss of children.
But these two things shall come to thee in a moment in ONE DAY, the loss of children and widowhood: they shall come upon thee in their perfection for the multitude of thy sorceries, and for the great abundance of thine enchantments.

For thou hast trusted in thy wickedness: thou hast said, None seeth me. Thy wisdom and thy knowledge, it hath perverted thee; thou shalt not know from whence it riseth: and mischief shall fall upon thee; thou shalt not be able to put it off, and desolation shall come upon thee suddenly, which thou shalt not know . . .
Behold, they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them; they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame [nuclear holocaust] . . . Thus shall they be unto thee with whom thou hast labored, even thy MERCHANTS, from thy youth; they shall wander every one to his quarter; none shall save thee" (Isaiah 47:1-15).

New York City has been a merchant capital from its inception, from the time it was first settled by Dutch traders and called "New Amsterdam." From the time it was first settled, it was a place of rampant enterprise and merchandising, and grew to symbolize the entreprenurial spirit of America.

The world at large is totally ignorant of the occult symbolism which lies behind the famed statue of liberty which sits astride the harbor of New York, symbolizing its true inner character and purpose. The sculptor who made the great statue was Italian. His name was Auguste Bertholdi. His work was greatly influenced by the ancient sculptor Phidias who made gigantic statues of the ancient goddesses, particularly Athena, the "goddess of wisdom" and Nemesis (another name for Venus), a goddess who held a cup in her right hand. Before beginning the statue of liberty project, Bertholdi was seeking a commission to construct a giant statue of the goddess "Isis," the Egyptian Queen of Heaven, to overlook the Suez canal. The statue of Isis was to be of "a robed woman holding aloft a torch" (Statue of Liberty: 1st Hundred Years, Bernard Weisberger, p.30, quoted in Beyond Babylon, James Lloyd, p.103).

The Masonic Connection

Bertholdi never made the statue of Isis for the Suez canal -- but it seems obvious that he made it after all, fulfilling his life's ambition, when he constructed the Statue of Liberty for the United States!

Writes James Lloyd in Beyond Babylon:

"Auguste Bertholdi was a member of the cultic Masonic Lodge in Paris, a `. . . secret international brotherhood linked to the ancient builders of th pyramids

and the cathedrals' [quoted from Statue of Liberty, by Weisberger];
and as a result,
fellow members of the mysterious order of Masons `. . . were frequently involved with the creation of the structure, and the various ceremonies that were dedicated to it' [ibid., p.44]. For example, the pedestal was built by another mason named Richard Hunt, and the design came from his study of `. . . pyramids, zigurrats, and other . . . styles' [Statue of Liberty video]. You'll recall The Tower of Babel was a ziggurat; and of course, the Statue of Liberty is actually a tower" (Beyond Babylon, p.103).

As the obelisk was completed in the 1880's, a number of American clergymen were upset that a "pagan goddess" was being placed on American soil. The Masonic Lodge, in the meantime, kept a low profile to avoid unnecessary controversy, just as they did when they planned the Washington monument, another Egyptian obelisk symbolizing the rays of the Egyptian god shining down and enlightening mankind.

The Masons, of course, trace the origin of their secret society back to king Solomon, and from him back to ancient Egypt. Says Alexander Hislop in his magnificent book The Two Babylons, concerning the origins of Masonry:

"It is admitted that the secret system of Free Masonry was originally founded on the MYSTERIES OF THE EGYPTIAN ISIS, THE GODDESS-MOTHER, OR WIFE OF OSIRIS. But what could have led to the union of a Masonic body with these Mysteries, had they not had particular reference to architecture, and had the god who was worshipped in them not been celebrated for his success in perfecting the arts of forification and building. Now, if such were the case, considering the relation in which, as we have already seen, Egypt stood to Babylon, who would naturally be looked up to there as the great patron of the Masonic art? The strong presumption is, that NIMROD [the arch-rebel against Elohim -- Gen.
10:8-10] must have been the man. He was the first that ganed fame in this way.
As the child of the Babylonian goddess-mother, he was worshipped, as we have seen, in the character of Ala mahozim, `The god of fortifications.'
Osiris, in like manner, the child of the EGYPTIAN MADONNA, was equally celebrated as `the strong chief of the buildings.' This strong chief of the buildings was originally worshipped in Egypt with every physical characteristic of Nimrod" (Hislop, The Two Babylons, p.43).

As Hislop shows, Isis is the Egyptian name for the Babylonian goddess Ishtar, who is also the same as Athena (Greece), Minerva (Egypt and Greece), Astarte (Syria), Cybele (Rome), Ashtoreth (Israel), and Diana (Ephesus). This statue of the pagan Madonna, the Statue of "Liberty," is a statue of this same ancient pagan "Queen of Heaven," the wife of Nimrod, or Semiramis!

Goddess Diana of the Ephesians

The worship of this pagan goddess caused no small persecution for the true believers of the first century. Paul and his entourage, preaching the true gospel about the Messiah and the Kingdom of YHWH, in the city of Ephesus, ran smack into the powerful Diana cult, and were hauled before the authorities of the city. We read in the book of Acts:

"And the same time there arose no small stir about that way. For a certain man, a silversmith, which made silver shrines for Diana, brought no small gain unto the craftsmen; whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth. Moreover ye see and hear, that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, this Paul hath persuaded and turned away much people, saying that they be no gods, which are made with hands: So that not only this our craft is in danger to be set at nought; but also that the temple of the great goddess Diana should be despised, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whom all Asia and the world worshippeth. And when they heard these sayings, they were filled with wrath, and cried out, saying, Great is Diana of the Ephesians. And the whole city was filled with confusion: and having caught Gaius and Aristarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they rushed with one accord into the theatre. . . . And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people. But when they knew he was a Jew, all with one voice about the space of two hours cried out, Great is Diana of the Ephesians" (see Acts 19:23-41).

Who was this Diana, the goddess whose followers hated the true people of YHWH, and threatened Paul and his followers and helpers?

The First World Kingdom After the Flood

The story goes back to an ancient king and arch-apostate, by the name of "Nimrod." Nimrod established the first "world kingdom" after the Flood. We read: "And Cush begat Nimrod: he began to be a mighty one [TYRANT] in the earth. He was a mighty hunter before YHWH: wherefore it is said, Even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before YHWH. And the beginning of his kingdom was BABEL . . ." (Gen.10:8-10). Nimrod was a "mighty hunter against YHWH," which is the real meaning of the Hebrew word translated "before" in this verse.

Nimrod, in beginning his kingdom, sought to become known as the Liberator, or Emancipator, or "Deliverer," of mankind, taking the titles of the true Messiah to himself. Nimrod began to be known as "Phoroneus," which has several meanings. One signifies the "Apostate," truly what Nimrod was. However, it also means, "Emanipator," or "one who sets free," or gives liberty." Nimrod "delivered" the masses of people from the "fear of YHWH," from the worship of the true Elohim, and proclaimed his form of paganized "liberty" to the people, his paganized teachings setting people free from the laws of YHWH. The term "apostate" itself means "to cast off." Nimrod was the original "man of sin" who "cast off" the laws of YHWH, and rebelled against the Most High (compare II Thess.2:1-10). Says Hislop, the name "Phoroneus" comes from "Pharo, also pronounced Pharang, or Pharong, `to cast off, to make naked, to apostatise, to set free.'"

Nimrod's Wife and Consort

But Nimrod has a consort, a woman, a "harlot-mother," who became deified with him -- his mother-wife Semiramis. One of her names under which she was worshipped was "Feronia" in Rome, the goddess of liberty. Says Alexander Hislop:

"The Sabine goddess Feronia had evidently a relation to Phooroneus, as the `Emancipator.' She was believed to be THE `GODDESS OF LIBERTY,' because at Terracina slaves were emancipated in her temple. . . . The Chaldee meaning of the name `Fernonia,' strikingly confirms this conclusion. Her contemplar divinity, who was worshipped along with her in a grove, was, like Ninus, a youthful divinity. He was regarded as the `youthful Jupiter'" (p.52).

As we said earlier, another name for Semiramis or "Isis" was Cybele in Rome. As Nimrod was the "god of fortifications," so she was also an architectural deity -- the "goddess of fortifications." This version of the goddess is universally represented as wearing a crown of towers, like the Statue of Liberty! Alexander Hislop writes:

"But of the existence of a goddess of fortifications, everyone knows that there is the amplest evidence. That goddess is Cybele, who is universally represented with a mural or TURRETED CROWN, OR WITH A FORTIFICATION ON HER HEAD. Why was Rhea or Cybele thus represented? Ovid . . . says, why the STATUE OF CYBELE WORE A CROWN OF TOWERS was, `because she first erected them in cities.' The first city in the world after the flood (from whence the commencement of the world itself was often dated) that had towers and encompassing walls was BABYLON; and Ovid himself tells us that it was SEMIRAMIS, the first queen of that city, who was believed to have `surrounded Babylon with a wall of brick.' Semiramis, then, the first DEIFIED QUEEN of that city and TOWER [the Tower of Babel] whose top was intended to reach unto heaven, must have been the PROTOTYPE of the goddess who `first made towers in cities'" (p.30).

Diana of the Ephesians was this same dame -- the goddess of towers -- the original Semiramis, wife of Nimrod. Says Hislop,

"When we look at the Ephesian Diana, we find evidence to the very same effect. . . the Epesian Diana . . . was represented with all the attributes of the MOTHER OF THE GODS, and, as the Mother of the gods, she wore a TURRETED CROWN, such as no one can contemplate without being forcibly reminded of the TOWER OF BABEL. Now this TOWER-BEARING DIANA is by an ancient scholiast expressly identified with SEMIRAMIS. When, therefore, we remember that the Rhea or Cybele, the tower-bearing goddess, was, in point of fact, a Babylonian goddess, and that Semiramis, when deified, was worshipped under the name of Rhea, there will remain I think, no doubt as to the personal identify of the `godddess of fortifications" (Hislop, p. 30-31).

This pagan licentious queen of vice and prostitution, infamous for her flagrant wanton spirit, was the original "tower woman." The very same goddess, known as Ashtoreth, which is cognately related to Ishtar and Astarte, the "Queen of Heaven" and "Mother of God" of the pagans, the original "Madonna" and "Celestial Virgin" (although she was no virgin!), was the pagan prototype of the "Virgin Mary" or "Madonna" of the Roman Catholic Church.

"Tower Woman"

The name "Ashtoreth" itself contains the syllable "tor" [tau resh, or TR in Hebrew] which means "to be round," or to "surround," suggesting a structure of a wall, or turret. "Ash-turrit" literally means the "woman that made the encompasing wall," and the "tor" in Ashtoreth can signify "tower." In other words, Ashtoreth, Ishtar, or our modern EASTER or Eas-tor literally means TOWER WOMAN!

Does this description really fit the "Statue of Liberty" towering on an island in New York harbor, at the mouth of the Hudson River?

The Babylonian heritage of the "Statue of Liberty" should come as no real surprise to YHWH's people. Her identity is written in her shape. She stands on a base patterned after the Babylonian stepped-pyramids, or zigurrats, of old -- which themselves were designed by the "tower" woman Semiramis and her architects. She stands literally on a base patterned after the tower of Babel! She wears a turreted crown, like Rhea, Cybele, Diana, and the pagan goddesses who were counterparts of Semiramis. She stands as a universal symbol of "liberty," apart from the laws and commandments of YHWH. She represents the "emanicpation" of mankind, and "immigration" and "unity" and the coming together of many races to become one universal mankind, all peoples coming together to one land, uniting the nations as "one," with one language.

This is exactly what ancient Nimrod and Semiramis tried to do at the original "Tower of Babel," but El-Shaddai defeated their attempt by scattering the nations and confounding their languages (Gen.11:1-9).

A New Look at the "Statue of Liberty"

Consider for a moment: The "Statue of Liberty," standing on Liberty Island, is one of the largest statues ever made. Its proper name is "Liberty Enlightening the World." The statue represents a proud woman, standing on a huge pedestal, with her right arm extended, holding high a flaming torch. A turreted crown with huge spikes symbolizing the rays of the sun rests on her head. At her feet is a broken shackle symbolizing the overthrow of "tyranny." The statue stands 151 feet in height, weighs about 100 tons, and stands on a Babylonia style tower which is 154 feet high.

In her poem "The New Colossus," Emma Lazarus calls the "Statue of Liberty" the "Mother of Exiles." But the truth is, she is the "Mother of harlots andabominations of the earth" (Rev.17:5). The liberty she promises is slavery to this world's system.

El-Shaddai abhors this world's evil system, based on the system begun in ancient Babylon by Nimrod and Semiramis. New York City, the modern Babylon, and banking capital of the world, home of Wall Street, and every wicked vice and every financial fraud and deceit, is the symbol of this world's system of financial enslavement and captivity. It is only fitting, in a sense, that the statue of the original "Queen of Heaven," the "goddess of fortifications," the Queen-Mother of Babylon, also known as Isis, Cybele, Feronia, Ishtar, Astarte, Ashtoreth, and Easter, should sit astride an island at the mouth of her world-renown harbor, beckoning to the world, "Come hither."

But El-Shaddai, our Father in heaven, says, to the contrary, "Flee fornication" with this world's evil and corrupt system of rebellion against El-Shaddai and His laws (I Cor.6:18). Paul says, "Be not unequally yoked together with unbelievers: for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? What concord hath the Messiah with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of YHWH with idols? for YE are the temple of the living Elohim: as YHWH hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them; and I will be their Elohim, and they shall be my people. Wherefore COME OUT FROM AMONG THEM, and be ye SEPARATE, saith YHWH, and touch not the unclean thing [or crooked business deal, or pagan doctrine or practice!]; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith YHWH Almighty" (II Cor.6:14-18).

To come out from it we must first of all identify it. Babylon stands identified -- and the statue to the Babylonian Queen of Heaven, known as the Statue of Liberty, also stands revealed! May YHWH help us to "Come out of Babylon" in every way!

Do you live in Manhattan ? Have you EVER seen the layers of asbestos the WTC originally had ? ? Did you come to the WTC on a regular basis over the years ? ? ? Where did you hear about people being evecuated from the twin towers on 9/11 ? ? ? What ropes are you talking about ? ? ? ? The recovery crew (diggers) found an elevator (slightly melted) with the remains of 50 firemen inside in Ocober , 2001 . One of my co-workers lots his daughter on that day . Her body was NEVER found . . .

immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears
juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Shit #2 you are slacking!

You have let me misspell consequence!

THE CHERNOBYL EXPERIMENT

By J. Adams April 23rd, 1996

"...The third angel sounded and there fell a great star from heaven, burning, as it were a lamp, and it fell on the third part of the rivers and upon the fountains of water;

And the name of the star is Wormwood; and the third part of the waters became Wormwood, and many men died of the waters because they were made bitter."

(Revelations 8:10-11)

"The (Chernobyl) reactor was consciously driven into an extremely dangerous situation, a situation known for its dangers, and then on top of it all the complete security mechanisms were put out of operation - allegedly for the purpose of carrying through this experiment, even if the report additionally professes that at least some of these switchoffs were not at all necessary for this experiment. Under such conditions, according also to the knowledge of that time, one could not but know that one exposed the reactor to a dangerous situation, proceeding from which unknown big catastrophes became probable. Nothing, nothing at all has the (Chernobyl) catastrophe to do with a coincidence of unfortunate accidents. On the contrary, what was conducted there must have lead directly to a ruinous accident, exactly as driving a car with a speed of 140mph arround a corner very probably leads to carrying the car out of the track."

(From: 10th ANNIVERSARY OF THE CHERNOBYL CATASTROPHE: THE DECISIVE FACTS MUST AT LAST BE BROUGHT INTO THE PUBLIC)

The Chernobyl disaster in the Soviet Ukraine on April 26, 1986 was no accident. To the contrary, it was a sick, intentional experiment conducted by the "former" Communist government in Moscow to garner knowledge about the effects of radioactive contamination. For what reason? To prepare to fight and survive a global nuclear war.

For those who have difficulty believing that Chernobyl was not an accident, I suggest you first consider the rather profound connections the reported "accident" had to astrology and biblical prophecy.

On April 24th, 1986, just preceding the fire and explosion at the Chernobyl nuclear plant in the Soviet Ukraine, there was a total lunar eclipse conjunct Pluto (the astrolog chart for this eclipse and an excerpt from a related article I've written on "Kremlin Astrology" are below). At first one might simply pass off as a coincidence the fact that a lunar eclipse occurred in connection with the Chernobyl disaster, but what is key is that this eclipse was conjunct Pluto, a rare astronomic event. What is even more significant about this is that Pluto is the planet of explosive transformation and nuclear technology (consider the word "pluto"nium). Thus, Chernobyl happened at the time of an astrological configuration that seemed to specifically indicate an explosive nuclear event. This means people in a position of power, i.e., Kremlin leaders, may have ordered Chernobyl to occur at an astrologically appropriate time, i.e., just after the lunar eclipse conjunct Pluto on April 24th, 1986.

If the evidence from astrology doesn't convince you that Chernobyl was a planned rather than accidental event, consider the case that can be made using biblical prophecy. In the Bible's "Book of Revelation", which is supposed to depict the fiery conflict called "The Apocalypse", there is a "Seventh Seal" prophecy that many believe specifically predicts a future nuclear war (see the excerpt from my article, "The Truth", below). In this prophecy, there is a passage that mentions how the water will be poisoned by "Wormwood" (see above) after a fiery catastrophe. This is most interesting since the Ukrainian word for "Wormwood" is "Chernobyl" (or "Chornobyl", as is explained in Mary Myco's article, "A Legacy of Wormwood"- see below). What this means is that the same powers who ordered Chernobyl to occur at a time of ideal astrological significance also saw to it that the disaster occurred at a place of key prophetic significance.

Further evidence that Chernobyl was no accident comes from the suspicious circumstances of the disaster. As mentioned in the quote above from "The 10th Anniversary of the Chernobyl Catatrophe: The decisive facts must at last be brought into the public" (see below), the series of reported "mistakes" that went into the nuclear reactor explosion at Chernobyl are literally unbelievable. This is because what the world has been told is a lie. Soviet nuclear personnel intentionally took the steps necessary to generate a large-scale explosion at the Chernobyl nuclear power plant. As the author explains: "Nothing, nothing at all has the (Chernobyl) catastrophe to do with a coincidence of unfortunate accidents. On the contrary, what was conducted there must have lead directly to a ruinous accident."

Why would Kremlin authorities have staged the Chernobyl disaster?

Most likely to prepare for fighting a nuclear war. The events that have been occurring according to astrology over the past ten years, starting with the Chernobyl disaster, appear to be geared toward the outcome depicted in the Seventh Seal prophecy of a fiery Apocalypse, i.e., a future nuclear war.

Chernobyl would have been a logical starting point if, in 1986, Moscow started to implement a multi-year plan, say of ten years, geared to fight and win a nuclear war against the West. In order to prepare for surviving such a war, the Kremlin first wanted to test procedures and equipment that had been designed during the Cold War years to counter radioactive contamination and poisoning following a nuclear war. Also, Communist leaders realized the need to garner knowledge about the immediate and lasting effects of radioactive contamination on people, vegetation and livestock. Accordingly, during the mid-1980's, when Kremlin authorities decided to implement a multi-year plan that would end in a nuclear war against the West, they chose to first stage a major nuclear disaster in the Ukraine as a useful preparatory experiment. From this diabolical experiment, Russian scientists, assisted by the West, have gathered a wealth of knowledge about the short-term and longer-term effects of radiation on people, plants and animals. Furthermore, the most effective equipment and procedures have been developed for dealing with radioactive contamination and poisoning. This, of course, will be of tremendous value if, indeed, Moscow is planning to fight and survive a global nuclear war.

NOTE: For those of you who have a hard time accepting the idea that Moscow is planning to wage a nuclear war against the West based upon the evidence from Chernobyl, you might further consider the new underground command and control centre, known as Kosvinskiy Mountain, Russia is building in the Ural mountains (see the related article below or the recent New York Times article: "Despite Cold War's End, Russia Keeps Building A Secret Complex"; 4/16/96, p.A1). As US Navy Admiral William Studeman, former Acting Director of Central Intelligence, told the Senate Armed Services Committee last year: "Preparedness for nuclear conflict with the United States - not withstanding the end of the Cold War - remains a resource allocation priority (of Russia)." Why would this be so unless the Kremlin is planning to fight a nuclear war?

KREMLIN ASTROLOGY

'Zodiac and the Cross of Nero; How Astrology Guides Gorbachev's Russia'

By J. Adams December 15th, 1995 Updated: April 23rd, 1996

Astrology was originally developed in ancient Persia, especially by the Babylonians. King Zargon, for instance, had his scholars compile a seventy-two volume astronomical treatise called the "Illumination Of Bel (their god)", in which the prophecy above was included. Astrology was important to Babylonian Kings like Zargon because it was used for making important policy decisions like when and where to wage wars. The use of astrology by powerful dictators to make key decisions and time important moves did not stop with Babylonian Kings, however. It is now widely recognized that Adolph Hitler used astrology to guide his important moves. Hitler shaped his political moves and foreign policy decisions, like the timing of military campaigns in waging the second world war, according to the stars. (See, for instance, Wilhwelm T. Wulff's 'Zodiac & Swastika; How Astrology Guided Hitler's Germany', 1973). Today the evil dictators and conquerors of the world are again relying on astrology to guide their moves. Specifically, Gorbachev's Russia (I believe Gorbachev is still the leading figure behind the scenes in Moscow today), Saddam Hussein's Iraq and the other authoritarian powers of the East are likely using the stars to guide a multi-year plan to militarily destroy the West and thereby conquer the world. Thus, upon close examination, one finds that almost all of the key events in Russia, Iraq, the former-Yugoslavia, Chechnya, so on and so forth, over the past decade have coincided with significant, relatively rare astrological configurations. (Note that the leadership of the "opposing" factions in places like the former- Yugoslavia and Chechnya are former Communist elite. Thus, no matter how much the opposite may appear to be the case, they are still likely receiving their orders from the Kremlin. That the Kremlin may control all sides of "staged" conflicts in places like the Chechnya was revealed by KGB defector Anatoliy Golitsyn in his book 'New Lies For Old'.)

So that the use of astrology by the Kremlin and authoritarian powers of the East is clear, please consider the following examples of where key events coincided with significant, rare astrological configurations:

1. *April 24th, 1986: Total eclipse of the Moon conjunct Pluto.

The following evening the Chernobyl disaster, which was likely no accident but rather a sick experiment to garner knowledge for fighting a nuclear war, occurred in the Ukraine. Notably this configuration involved the planet Pluto which is supposed to represent explosive events and nuclear technology ("Pluto" is the root of the world "pluto"nium).

2. *July 22nd, 1990: Total solar eclipse.

Marked when Iraq began massing forces on the Kuwaiti border just prior to the 1990 invasion.

3. *August 2nd thru 7th, 1990: Lunar eclipse squares Mars and Pluto.

In the Market Watch section of the July 16th, 1990 issue of 'Barron's', there is an excerpt from the newsletter of financial astrologer Arch Crawford. It reads in part:

"...Aug. 6 (Lunar Eclipse squares Mars + Pluto). Expect some major catastrophe on that last one, Aug. 2-7, as something explodes in a big way... Astronomically similar to the Chernobyl disaster..."

On August 2nd, Iraq invaded Kuwait precipitating the Persian Gulf crisis.

4. *January 15th, 1991: Solar eclipse with rare 6-planet alignment in Capricorn (note: in astrology the Sun and Moon are considered planets).

January 15th, 1991 was the U.N. deadline for Iraq to pull-out of Kuwait before the allied attack a day later- the beginning of the Gulf War.

According to an ancient Babylonian prophecy, "when all the planets meet in Capricorn the world will be destroyed by fire". In January of 1991, there was a six-planet alignment in Capricorn, and Venus, Jupiter and Pluto were heavily aspected in Capricorn and in tension with each other. Thus, from the perspective of someone in Iraq and the site of ancient Babylon, their "world was destroyed by fire" exactly as forecast in this astrological prophecy (see Moira Timms' 'Beyond Prophecies and Predictions', pp.206 & 209).

5. *June 26th, 1991: Lunar eclipse of lunar/solar eclipse pair. Also, Pluto was squared (90-degree angle) by an alignment of Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Marked the beginning of the civil war in Yugoslavia.

6. *August 19th, 1991: Alignment of Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus and Jupiter in the zodiac sign of Leo.

A failed coup attempt by communist hardliners is staged in Moscow which supposedly brings an end to the Communist Party and Soviet Union.

7. *December 21st, 1991: Lunar eclipse on the winter solstice.

The Soviet flag comes down and the Russian flag is raised over the Kremlin as the Soviet Union is officially disbanded. A few days after this, on Christmas day (?!), Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev resigned.

8. *June 30th, 1992: Solar eclipse of lunar/solar eclipse pair. This eclipse was aligned with Venus, Uranus and Neptune and sextiled (60-degree angle) Mars and Jupiter.

First U.N. forces arrive in Sarajevo as Western military intervention in the former-Yugoslavia begins.

9. *October 4th, 1993: Pluto conjunct Moon squares (90-degree angle) Saturn and trines (120-degree angle) Venus, Uranus and Neptune.

Political chaos erupts in Moscow following Russian President Boris Yeltsin's disbanding of the former-Soviet parliament.

10. *December 13th, 1993: Alignment of Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus and Mars in Sagitarrius.

Communists and Nationalists win the elections for a new Russian parliament. Of particular surprise is the success of the "Liberal Democratic Party (?!) led by Hitler-like nationalist Vladimir Zhirinovsky.

11. *January 12th, 1994: Rare seven-planet alignment in Capricorn (five planets and the sun and moon). Tightest alignment of seven planets in 300 years.

U.S./Russia summit at which the superpowers sign an agreement to no longer target each other with nuclear weapons. Alignment also coincides with increased Serb shelling of Sarajevo and a NATO summit meeting at which the Western allies agree to use force in the former-Yugoslavia. Within a month the first NATO ultimatum was issued for the withdrawal of Serb heavy weaponry from around a Sarajevan "safe-zone".

12. *November 18th, 1994: Lunar eclipse of solar/lunar eclipse pair. Eclipse is aligned with Pluto and Jupiter, squares (90-degree angle) Mars and trines (120-degree angle) Uranus and Neptune.

Croatian Serb warplanes bomb the U.N.-protected Bihac enclave in violation of a NATO-enforced "no-fly zone". NATO responds by bombing Serb positions. This is the first major use of military force against the Serbs by NATO in the Balkan conflict and the first offensive military action ever taken by NATO in the 45-year history of the alliance.

13. *December 11th, 1994: Mars squares conjunction of Pluto & Jupiter.

Russia invades the breakaway republic of Chechnya.

14. *April 29th, 1995: Solar eclipse of lunar/solar eclipse pair. Eclipse squares Neptune and Uranus.

Croatian Serb warplanes bomb the U.N.-protected Bihac enclave in Bosnia in violation of a NATO enforced "no-fly zone" once again. The Balkan war heats-up as a five-month cease-fire comes to an end.

(Notably, this was the first eclipse pair subsquent to the pair in November of 1994 which marked the only other time Croatian Serb warplanes bombed Bihac- both before and since.)

15. *June 14th, 1995: Mars squares alignment of Mercury, Venus and and Jupiter.

Similar to configuration on December 11th, 1994 when Russia invaded Chechnya. This time, a large group of Chechen rebels attack a town in southern Russia and take several hundred patients hostage at a hospital. The incident ends violently with hundreds of Russians killed.

16. *July 12th, 1995: Alignment of Sun, Moon, Neptune and Uranus trines (120-degree angle) Mars and sextiles (60-degree angle) Saturn and Pluto.

Russian President Boris Yeltsin reportedly suffers a heart attack while Bosnian Serb forces overrun the U.N.-protected enclave of Srebrenica.

17. *October 24th, 1995: Mars and Pluto conjunct total solar eclipse.

Russian President Boris Yetsin suffers a second heart attack since which he has still not recovered.

18. *November 22nd, 1995: 7-planet alignment of Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Pluto in Sagitarrius.

Serbs do a total about-face and reach a peace agreement with Bosnian and Croatian representatives at peace talks in Dayton, Ohio. Some 60,000 NATO troops start heading into the former-Yugoslavia to take over the peace-keeping mission from the United Nations.

19. *December 21st/22nd, 1995: Clustering of all planets in or near Capricorn around the time of the winter solstice.

Communists and nationalists win Russian parliamentary elections.

20. *January 15th, 1996: Moon squares alignment of Earth, Sun, Mercury, Mars and Uranus.

Russian forces storm Chechen rebels holding hostages in southern Russia.

21. *February 26th, 1996: Sun conjunct Mars T-squares Pluto and the moon, which are in opposition (180 degrees apart).

Configuration is similar to the one that marked when Iraq invaded Kuwait in August of 1990. Notably, February 26th is also the fifth anniversary of Kuwait's liberation from Iraqi occupation and the end of the Gulf War.

Wave of terrorist bombings against Israel occur starting February 25th as the Arabs begin to unravel the false peace that has been established in the Middle East.

22. *April 3rd, 1996: Total lunar eclipse conjunct Mars and squared by Jupiter.

North Korea pulls out of the Korean War Armistice and then carries out a series of provocative armed incursions in the Demilitarized Zone separating the two Koreas.

Liberty Net: May 28, 2011

http://3950.net/2011/06/liberty-net-may-28-2011/

by Kevin Strom, WB4AIO

THE NOISE was down and signals were up this week on the Liberty Net, and check-ins continue to grow as the word spreads about the most exciting net on the ham bands.

Here is a sample of some of the ideas debated and discussed this time on amateur radioï¿½s longest-running discussion net:

ï¿½ Why not rebuild flood-ravaged Joplin, MO with veteran labor? If the regimeï¿½s troops were withdrawn from the multiple illegal wars in the Middle East, there would be plenty of such labor available. (1 hour 4 minutes)

ï¿½ One Congressman has gone on record advising Americans to move out of major metropolitan areas because of the possibility of ï¿½civil unrestï¿½ in the near future. (1 hour 8 minutes)

ï¿½ Why did the White House release a layered ï¿½ obviously altered ï¿½ ï¿½long form birth certificateï¿½ which can so easily be shown up? Is there more than one level of deception and manipulation going on here? (1 hour 24 minutes)

ï¿½ Investors holding US bonds should get rid of them quick ï¿½ and then, equally quickly, get rid of the dollars they get in exchange. Debt-free hard assets are the place to be. (2 hours 32 minutes)

ï¿½ Now that Congress is openly stealing from Social Security funds, and there is no chance that current taxpayers will ever get a pension worth more than one cent on the dollar, the only honest thing left to do is to stop all Social Security taxes immediately, and give large lump-sum payments to retirees ï¿½ funded by ending the illegal wars for Israel. (2 hours 35 minutes)

ï¿½ Americans should seriously consider the possibility of a currency collapse, and carefully study how other peoples survived them ï¿½ Russians, Germans, Argentinians, and others. How will you eat? ï¿½ how will you keep warm? ï¿½ how can you stay healthy? ï¿½ if the money system is totally out of commission for a year or two. Will cities with a high percentage of Third World genes be safe for White people under such circumstances? (2 hours 45 minutes)

ï¿½ Whenever states have the temerity to pass laws that go against the agenda of the regime in Washington, that regime responds by withholding Medicaid funds, or closing down air traffic there, or the like. Eventually such measures will lose their effectiveness. (3 hours 1 minute)

ï¿½ This week two Black women in New York City abandoned their newborns in dumpsters. The governmentï¿½s proposed solution is ï¿½better educationï¿½ and ï¿½baby drop-off stations.ï¿½ (3 hours 12 minutes)

The Liberty Net is a gathering that includes thoughtful, philosophical minds and well-informed sources every week, and any amateur operator can join in the discussion and debate. A big ï¿½thank youï¿½ to N2SAG and N2IRJ and especially W1WCR for their hard work which makes the Liberty Net ï¿½ and its Internet annexes ï¿½ possible. You can download an mp3 recording of the Net right here at http://3950.net and listen in your gym, or on your way to work, or anywhere you choose.

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before

Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

http://www.army.mil/cmh-pg/brochures/pi/pi.htm

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

I once read somewhere that Prostitution is the oldest profession in the World.
I don't doubt that.

Well, in the U.S., where the average number of SW sets per SW owner is probably 5 or more, that translates to a much smaller actual audience. In poorer countries, the tables may be turned - you may have 15 or 20 people listening to a single village radio.

Still in all, a pretty impressive war record...like so many others not as famous but just as great.

LOL, train of thought?

That's a good one!

Only kind of thought train Joe can do...

It appears that your knowledge of 9/11 is minimal (approaching zero) .
So -- you decided to switch the subject from the WTC destruction to Chernobyl , all of a sudden . Just how familiar do you claim to be on this venue ? Have you ever been/lived in the Soviet Union ?

You're saying that yourself, Hagar, BDK and rabbi Saul Levy are every bit as sane as GW Bush, Dick Cheney, Kissinger and Hitler?

Are you suggesting our mutually perpetrated cold-war for profits and public funded job security, with the USSR/Russia was sane?

How many listeners does the BBC World service have? I'd say that is your most likely source of a realish number. Add a correction factor for assholes who don't listen to the BBC (probably the same 20% who like Sara Palin and think Obama's from the country of Africa).

SB PROP @ ARL $ARLP022
ARLP022 Propagation de K7RA

ZCZC AP22

Propagation Forecast Bulletin 22 ARLP022
From Tad Cook, K7RA
Seattle, WA June 3, 2011
To all radio amateurs

SB PROP ARL ARLP022
ARLP022 Propagation de K7RA

Sunspot activity is up sharply this week, with the average daily sunspot number increasing over 55 points to 89.9. Average solar flux rose nearly 20 points to 103.1.

The latest forecast shows solar flux at 115 on June 3, 110 on June 4-6, 105 on June 7-8, 100 on June 9-14, rising to 105 on June 15 and 110 on June 16-26. Planetary A index is predicted to be 12, 20, 15 and 10 on June 3-6, 5 on June 7-10, 8 on June 11-13 and 5 on June 14-21. The next period of high geomagnetic activity is projected for Jun 22-27, at 12, 22, 18, 18, 15 and 8. Note that ARRL Field Day for 2011 is June 25-26, which should be just after the predicted peak in geomagnetic activity, currently predicted for June 23.

Geophysical Institute Prague sees unsettled to active conditions June 3-4, unsettled June 5, quiet conditions June 6-7, and quiet to unsettled June 8-9.

With the passing of May, we can look at some moving averages of sunspot numbers.

74.4 was the average daily sunspot number for the latest 3-month period, March through May, centered on April. The three month moving averages centered on May 2010 through April 2011 were 16.4, 20.4, 23.2, 28.9, 33, 35.6, 31, 30.1, 35.3, 55.7, 72.3 and 74.4.

The average sunspot number for May was 61.5, down somewhat from March and April. The monthly averages of daily sunspot numbers for January through May 2011 were 32.3, 53.5, 81.1, 80.8 and 61.5.

Currently there are eight sunspot groups visible. You can see a daily sunspot update at,

Don Tucker, W7WLL who lives in Yachats (pronounced YAH-HOTS) on the Oregon coast, writes "The bands, particularly 20, have been so hot that I worked WAC and probably could'a worked DXCC in one 24 hour period if I'd tried!! Antennas, antennas, antennas. Can't hear 'em, can't work 'em."

Check out Don's station and antennas at http://www.qrz.com/db/w7wll.

Bob Elek, W3HKK of Johnstown, Ohio reminds us of the upcoming ARRL
June VHF QSO Party, which runs from 1800 UTC June 11 through 0259 UTC June 13. See http://www.arrl.org/june-vhf-qso-party for details. Bob writes - concerning 6 meters - "My own observation over 2010 and 2011 is that during last year's Es season there were many more broad strong openings 1000 miles out, and therefore more double/triple hop openings than I've heard this year. In 2011, I often hear a handful of signals, often up and down into the noise, and that's it. How much of this is based on antenna height, and very low angle of radiation I have no idea. But it just seems like 6 meters has been a far tougher Es band this year."

Jon Jones, N0JK of Lawrence, Kansas writes: "On Sunday May 22, 6 meters opened via multi-hop Es to the Caribbean most of the day. I worked FG5FR at 1928 UTC on 50.105 MHz. Franz was a solid 559 on my dipole. Heard numerous KP4s, 9Y4D and P43A. FJ/OS1T was on earlier and gave many a new country on 6M."

Later Jon wrote: "I heard K0ZN EM28 working K0SBV DM42 on May 29.
K0ZN is in DeSoto, about 15 miles from Lawrence."

Kent Doucy, N0IRM of Galena, Missouri had a nice 15 meter opening.
He writes, "At 0454 UTC on May 31, 2011 I found 5W1SA from Samoa calling CQ on 21.020 with a great 579 signal. A little later at 0528 UTC I was also able to work Brad FO/N6JA on Marquesas Island on 21.018, he was a little harder copy with a 519 signal. Nothing else was heard after that but it was a nice short lived late 15 meter opening to the Midwest." See Kent's antennas at http://www.qrz.com/db/n0irm .

Rudy Hanau, K2EVY of Rye, New York had some interesting comments regarding backscatter: "Most of us have run into HF backscatter at one time or another. In my experience the other station and I find ourselves pointing our beams at some common point out of line with the direct path between us.

"However, this incident was a bit different. On May 29 the SFI was 101 and the A index was 36. Not your most common set of conditions and, I suspect the geomagnetic activity associated with the high A is involved. Twenty meters was very sparsely populated and K6ZA's S9 signal stood out. My QTH is Rye Brook, NY (FN31) and Barry is in Walnut Grove, CA (CM87). His bearing should have been 280 degrees, just a bit north of West for me, and indeed it was. He was just finishing another QSO and I called him. He told me he had been working KL7 and was looking North! I swung North and lost him. He looked East and lost me. We were both S9 or better when our antennas were about 90 degrees to one another. We scratched our heads and looked every which way for another path but there was none.

"I signed after about 30 minutes and Barry went on to work another station (more about that later). When working backscatter we usually think of some far off reflecting area such as aurora over Alaska or the pole. In mulling this contact over the only explanation I can offer is that the reflecting area was very near Walnut Grove and was omnidirectional, like a vertical. If it was 50 or 100 miles north of Barry it would be indistinguishable from Barry's QTH for me whereas Barry would have to point north to see it.

"Barry described his next contact as follows: 'After our QSO I was called by a Laughlin, Nevada station SE of me, also same scenario. He was seeing me at normal NW direction. He was strongest to the North. Then, during the 30 min contact, I found I could move the beam toward the east with no change in strength and then he began to peak more toward him and less to the North. By the end, he was 40 over at SE, and no propagation to the north at all."'

There is a slightly revised solar cycle prediction from NASA at http://solarscience.msfc.nasa.gov/predict.shtml. This month it says "Three consecutive months with average daily sunspot numbers above 40 has raised the predicted maximum above the 64.2 for the Cycle 14 maximum in 1907." Last month it said "Two consecutive months with average daily sunspot numbers in the 50s has raised the predicted maximum above the 64.2 for the Cycle 14 maximum in 1907."

I have gone back to AM DX'ing, just on John Plimmer's record! Man, I wish that I could get the AM DX that he does! But with his radios, mine look pathetic, i.e., mostly old tube boatanchors with a new CCrane SW, RF-2200, DX-440.

Since there is nowhere free from both matter and energy, there aren't.

Actually, that's what nearly every scientist names it;
"ether" was shown to be nonexistent (or to have zero effect century ago,

Even if she tuned in to BBC programs , I doubt she will follow what in the world they are talking about . Too complicated for her little

I am convinced that, more than anything else, location + antenna = relative luck with DXing anything. With the right antenna and a quiet locale, you can hear Alpha Centauri.

What language(s) does Alpha Centauri use for their 'broadcasts' ?

What's the all-inclusive population or average photon density per given km3 of ISM, or better to know that of the IGM? (I'm talking of accounting for everything from at least EIR/ELF [1km] to those extremely hard Gamma of .001 nm)

Exactly, whereas everything is in orbit around something, or being converted and/or reflected by something. Unless pi works out to an even prime number, there's no such thing as a straight line.

A kook can't really insult a sane person by saying they are crazy, so you need to go back to the always there "gay" stuff you kooks always end up going to anyway.

There you "gay" again! It's as dependable as the sun going up and down.
When a kooker can't think of anything to say to a sane person, they always "go gay".

James Arness had a real limp.Chester, (Dennis Weaver) in the Gunsmoke movies, before Festus (Ken Curtis) showd up, Chester had a fake limp.They wanted Chester to have some kind of a schtick, so Dennis Weaver 'invented' his limp.Sometimes he would fall down when he was practicing his limp, once in a while he would forget to limp.

EINSTEIN SAID:
"Therefore, instead of speaking of an ether, one could equally well speak of physical qualities of space. Now one could take the position that all physical objects fall under this category, because in the final analysis in a theory of fields the ponderable matter, or the elementary particles that constitute matter, also have to be considered as ï¿½fieldsï¿½
of a particular kind, or as particular ï¿½statesï¿½ of the space."

So, now, what is up? Is there a particular school which is mandatory where you people come from? Something like, "The University of Morons?"

In Einsteins words, above, you must first move ether into the area of "ponderable" ... as now we have no frame of reference to even begin to study or understand it. We need to secure our first sample in some sort of "bottle", with equipment which can detect it.

Einstein already acknowledges it, indeed, he acknowledges his theory of relativity is not valid without "gravitational ether."

Because we cannot "see" ether at this time is nowhere near proof of its' non-existence ... you are much like the "old doctors" who refused to believe in germs because they could not be seen nor detected.

Or, the state of science before x-rays were discovered, we simply lived in ignorance of them.

Only morons state the "non-discovery, to date" of something as "proof it doesn't exist!"

And, yet, you seem to have no problem that all that looks "logical" to you?

Indeed, let me get a smaller and finer spoon to feed you with:

The Michelson-Morley Experiment assumes their is a "physical flow" to ether (or, that it even exists in a static but detectable state), that this physical flow can be detected on waves, photons or other particles -- I say, this is ALREADY FAR TOO MANY ASSUMPTIONS!

The "physical" characteristics of ether may have little, or NO, relationship to its' properties of conducting/transporting/etc. waves and/or particles of light and radio frequencies.

The "particles of ether" could simply lack the mass/energy or ability to impede or accellerate photons and/or waves, and this is the base reason(s) the Michelson-Morley Experiment failed ... for just one example ... another quick reason, just off the top of my head, the simple rotation of the earth, which the Michelson-Morley Experiment is utilizing, could throw off the ability to detect -- and actually be moving in the same directions, as what the experiments orientation and direction are attempting to use as a measure!

I am sure, given any time, a myriad of errors could be thrown in for consideration ...

The shallowness of your questions, answers and arguments are your biggest obstacle(s!)

The fact that the universe is three-dimensional already makes it possible to have an infinite number of straight lines, and in seemingly infinite directions.

The fact that the ethers' smallest particles seems to make atoms enormous, in comparison, would suggest a very fine detail can be ascribed to these lines ...

For a minute, I didn't know if I could find this:

"In 1895, Lorentz Eric Weisstein's World of Biography concluded that the "null" result obtained by Michelson and Morley was caused by a effect of contraction made by the ether on their apparatus and introduced the length contraction equation where L is the contracted length, is the rest length, v is the velocity of the frame of reference, and c is the speed of light. Although the main interpretation of Lorentz Eric Weisstein's World of Biography for this equation was rejected later, the equation is still correct and was the first of a sequence of new equations developed by Poincarï¿½, Eric Weisstein's World of Biography Lorentz, Eric Weisstein's World of Biography and others, resulting in a new branch of physics ultimately brought to fruition by Albert Einstein Eric Weisstein's World of Biography in special relativity. Einstein's idea of space-time contraction replaced Lorentz's interpretation of the contraction equation, and once and for all relegated ether to the history books."

"http://scienceworld.wolfram.com/physics/Michelson-MorleyExperiment.html

So, does that seem to be affirmative to your question?

DAMN!

You think you develop a new idea and come up with a new invention, only to find someone has "BEEN THERE DONE THAT."

Now, I am left to wonder if my pig fat liquefied additive to fuel is of any interest to the military. You only needed to drop a quart into the tank of any vehicle/aircraft/watercraft and drive around defiling mooselums!

Next, I was going to work on an additive to paint ... will have to go do some market research now ...

I suppose the fact that Guth compared me to HITLER did

Let's do the math......

1- You and Guth agree that ether exists.

2- Guth is demonstrably wrong about everything.

3- Ether does not exist.

See how easy I make the study of cosmology?

Yes, but it is there that any similarity between you and I ends ...

You see, I actually read/understand them.

I can say that here in the USA the government is the same as National Socialism ever since the New World Order took over every country has the same government!

Look up "Jerusalem is a Masonic Shrine"

A case of Who Dunit shows that the jesuits were responsible for all the catastrophies thus far!
The Reichstag fire,the sinking of the Lusiatania&Titanic,The massacre at Pearl Harbor,Jonestown,Waco Davidians Compound even helter skelter,The Vietnam war,911,the civil war ,the revolutionary war,WWI,WWII,and are now working on starting WWIII.You have to jump around from one area to another to show who is at the helm.They werw also responsible for the 77 bombing in London!

The Jesuits are in command of all the governments and controll the media/news groups,Education,FBI,CIA ect... and all the religions world wide are off shuits of Sunworship.The connection of ancient Egyption Sun woeship is tied to the Free Masons/Knights Templar and the morgevian blood line of rulers.This is the big picture you are avoiding to take notice of!

Soo Why do you ask, Two Dogs?

Then you should remember Francis was a mule and Mr Ed was the horse,But you were close!

Francis had awful breath while she spoke out the other end!

No kidding, the Jesuits, eh?

And all these years, I thought it was the Illuminati...or the Jews...or the...

So now the Catholics get their turn in the barrel.

Anyway, I am glad you are practicing "Equal Opportunity".

Nope, yours. Not in dispute.

The fact that we killed UBL last month sorta means you're an idiot and he was not dead before that.

Hussein would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Your claim was that all these people who said bin Laden was dead are
"Moron twoofers".

I state again, you have NOT proved that and even you are not foolish enough to call the FBI's counter-terrorism chief a "Moron twoofer".

Game over.

So you are publicly stating that Dale Watson is a "Moron twoofer"?

Is that your FINAL answer?

I think you have no clue what constitutes a "twoofer".

>> Is that definitive applicable to the head of the FBI's own

> He did not claim UBL was dead, fuzznuts.

Ah so now the real squirming begins...he said he was "probably dead".

So we can say he was "probably" wrong.

But you will NEVER indict him as a "twoofer".

So stop trying.

>>> EPIC FAIL.
>>
>> Yours, yes.
> Nope, yours. Not in dispute.

Sorry you made claims you can't prove, sad it troubles you so much you can never admit it.

> The fact that we killed UBL last month sorta means you're an idiot and > he was not dead before that.

The "fact" changes nothing in hindsight. At each stage of his tape dissemination there have been credible governmental experts who claimed that the tapes were:

a. not him

b. composites

c. old recordings

And thereby questioned if he was still alive. The people who did this were not "twoofers" they were defense analysts and that was there considered expert opinion at THOSE times.

Nothing you can say here will rewrite history, so just quit acting like a petulant child.

Probably asign of good transpolar conditions. With sunspots increasing,
I'm hearing a lot more on the higher frequencies at night. Haven't seen conditions like this in a several years.

All truthful history that's not interpreted and recorded by the victors is different than anything you believe. Ask William Mook to fill you in.

Without devout minions and brown-nosed clowns like yourself and other FUD-masters, Hitler couldn't have accomplished 10% as much collateral damage and carnage.

Phil's Radio Articles and Radio Designs

Hi guys! I added 10 new articles to my site: I now have over 50 PDFs! The new ones include a 2011 Portable Buying Guide, a DE1103 help sheet, a PL390 help sheet, two English broadcasts graphs, an Si4831 overview, Offset Tuning the Si4734, Si4734 Digital Filters, calculating tube transconductance, a single-transistor MW design, detailed information on how to convert an SRF59 Walkman to shortwave, a QRP tube superregenerator, and spreadsheet screen shots of low power, space charge, and exceptional vacuum tubes. Hope you all are doing well. Have a great summer!

Regards,
Phil :)

What are the titles/authors of your books? And how do they describe the

I wouldn't exactly say that. Those in ghettos, morons, the retarded, those in mental institutions, the criminals in prisons, multitudes of undesirable of every type and kind, etc., would make no difference at all to them ... indeed, I would suspect it would even piss them off, as ignorance tends to attempt to pull everything else down to its' level.

I am sure most have noticed this ...

Well, I would not even expect anything worthwhile from an exchange with you, you have already proven that ... your constant moves to move the subject off topic and then to baffle us with your bullshit, while off on some tangent, is a prime example of this, and I have already pointed out.

I think most would point to John D. Kraus, and James Clerk Maxwell.

However, neither of these men truly understood the nature of the ether, since we simply don't know what it is, so obviously, they used "fudge factors" to work their way around that ...

You however, should be back in college, somewhere, as you stand at this point, these discussions are simply above you ...

Oh, boy ! It seems that I just hit the right button . In my line of work I did have to go some really serious wards/places . Rule number one : can't bring any sharp tools (like screwdrivers and chisels) Rule number two : if you do have to use them - can't put them down (even for a second!) and can't have it in a tool -pouch or the back pocket . Rule number three : always WATCH your back . . . From wahat I was told ,some of the slammers are even worse -- many of the people behind bars are insane . BTW, are you the one that keeps a gun under the pillow ?

Absolutely! It is quite common for those suffering the effects of mental illness to realize that "something is not in order."

It is also quite common for them to blame others and misinterpret what is happening to them to be caused by others actions ...

you are beginning to figure out the truth after all this time, right?

Yes, and that's why the case is closed. As it was in 2008 when Obama

They are.

He did not claim that UBL was dead. I said, as you noted, that those who claim he was dead before he was killed are moron twoofers. This is beyond dispute. People who expressed opinions or guessed that he might be dead prior to his actually being dead are not claiming he was dead.

Please acquire some comprehension skills and I might not have to

By you.

THANK YOU for kicking your own ass and saving me the effort. You just admitted you were wrong.

He was guessing. He was not asserting a claim, you fuckin' moron. NOW that you have kicked your own ass, do you see where you made your error?

> So we can say he was "probably" wrong.

We can say he was, in fact, since UBL was only recently killed.

> But you will NEVER indict him as a "twoofer".

Why would I? He isn't. He didn't claim UBL was dead. YOU claimed that he said that but now you admit he did not say that.

> So stop trying.

BWAHAHAHHAHAAHAAA!!! You're begging for mercy when I now have you backtracking so deliciously? No quarter, dearie.

I proved them of course, and you just changed your claim and admitted you lied.

I admit I kicked your ass as you now overtly admit.

No there weren't.

Thank you for ADMITTING once again that they did not CLAIM that he was dead, as you originally LIED.

O-P-I-N-I-O-N

Suggest you have mommy explain to you the difference between stating an opinion and asserting a claim.

(You're making this WAAAAAAY to easy for me!)

> Nothing you can say here will rewrite history,

Nor would I want to since history backs up my claims and contradicts yours, as you yourself just backtracked.

I just kicked your whiny goal-post-shifting ass, moron.

It was easy.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Sad, but America is in steep and rapid decline ... few, if any countries, are a real solution to the existing problems here.

Revolving door prisons and institutions are only to get worse, as the funds for even the existing ones disappear ...

How so many seem to have a strong ability to discard what their eyes are telling them and replace it with the lies of main scream media and a blind trust/hope that "things will get better" seems only another symptom of what ails "horrible places."

There's simply so much wrong with this once great nation that it's hard to even imagine where to start. Our "no child left behind" policy has as much to do with indoctrination and brainwashing as it does with general education skills.

JFK, RFK and a few others were right, whereas rogue private agencies like our Federal Reserve and Qinetiq (CIA/MI6) are essentially running the show regardless of who is in office. Their Skull and Bones has never had it so good.

They have been so pissed at me that they keep the pressure on, as to topic/author stalking in order to disqualify and/or banish everything I have to say. They even revised or having allowed others to revise how the internet search systematically stacks the cards against myself and others they deem as mission critical. I'm certain William Mook and his Mokenergy are on their NO FLY list, as will yourself become another target of their need to control this public mainstream media that we still have some limited access to via Google Groups and their

Usenet/newsgroups that’s global accessible (except not accessible by a great many intranets and most other nations that systematically block/filter out such unmoderated publishing).

If something really bad is about to happen, you can bet that our access to Google Groups and Usenet/newsgroups well be terminated, as well as any number of our archived topics and replies could be replaced and/or removed, at the very least blocked/filtered out of what our K12s and media get to see (mainstream media is currently forbidden to use any investigative reporting as based upon whatever we post). Around here in Usenet/newsgroups and Google Groups, investigating into matters of physics, science and history as for interpreting and telling the whole truth and nothing but the truth, only gets you into big trouble with those that would much rather the likes of you and myself never existed, and to a great extent it's the Semites (aka pretend-Atheists) that are in charge of keeping whatever you or I have to say as disqualified and inaccessible as possible.

99.9% of Americans don’t even know that Google Groups or this version of their Usenet/newsgroups even exist, as I’ve seen many other computers that do not even allow access unless you know exactly how to manually force their ability to access. Google and MSN each have the ability to deliver a custom page to each and every connected computer, so there no telling what others get to read, and more importantly there’s no telling what is excluded from their version of Google Groups or Usenet/newsgroups.

Other than that, at least Hitler would be proud of what those in charge have managed to get away with thus far.

BDK and other FUD-masters of their special social/political and faith-based kind are clearly part of the mainstream Borg collective of brown-nosed clowns, that's trying to tell us exactly how to interpret everything and what to believe.

It seems any planet or moon that's not perfectly naked Goldilocks approved as a wet and tropical kind of human friendly place is simply not a viable planet regardless of what physics and technology have to offer Goldilocks.

I'm not insisting that everything I've interpreted thus far about "Guth Venus" is exactly as I've suggested. However, there's certainly more than enough there to suggest that it's either the most advanced and complex kind of natural formations ever recorded by our best instruments, or something intelligent had an impact or influence on making those pixel patters stand out as though a community of complex structures and infrastructure had been created on the planet Venus.

Here's the original cloudless GIF composite radar obtained image file (as raw and not having been enlargement processed):
http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/hires/mgn_c115s095_1.gif
Without even downloading the GIF monochrome image, you can still screen zoom-in on the area in question, so as to keeping the raw 1:1 pixel format and its limited resolution of 225 meters/pixel, and thereby have yourself a good look-see at interpreting whatever that 225 meter per pixel resolution has to offer.

Here’s one of my 10:1 enlargements of the same area that I’ve pointed out:
http://docs.google.com/View?id=ddsdxhv_0hrm5bdfj

This GIF image format is actually providing us with a terrific kind of composite image that offers 36 confirming radar scans or looks per pixel from the original 75 meter/pixel of SAR imaging FOV(frame of view), so at best it simply doesn’t provide the best kind of resolution detail to see whatever is of less than 75 meter/pixel even when enlarged by 3:1. However, even at the least resolution composite image of 225 meters per pixel and 36 confirming radar scans/pixel, there are several large enough items that can easily be interpreted as is, involving a sufficient number of pixels that can tell us something about the surrounding natural and of those potentially artificial items. It’s also an image as having been obtained at the perspective viewing angle of 43 degrees, so as to offer us a nearly 3D kind of look-see.

http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/html/object_page/mgn_c115s095_1.html
http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/hires/mgn_c115s095_1.gif
Other thumbnail images, including mgn_c115s095_1.gif (225 m/pixel)
http://nssdc.gsfc.nasa.gov/imgcat/thumbnail_pages/venus_thumbnails.html

Of course all of our usual FUD-masters (the same ones having spotted all of those Muslim WMD for us and claim they never expected 9/11 no maters how many red flags or how much we’d taken advantage of others and/or having provoked so many of them) can only manage to see a toxic planet of hot rock that looks as though it’s all perfectly natural, so perhaps it is no wonder they seem to be unable to interpret anything about the planet Venus on behalf of accommodating any intelligent Goldilocks. I’m certain that eventually out of all the billions of potential planets capable of sustaining and/or accommodating intelligent other life, that a few wet and cold enough exoplanets teaming with only naked complex life will show up.

South Lake Union area in Seattle is an annual 50/50 crap-shoot, as to property damage or losing property, or simply being seriously accosted by those that want to take stuff from you.

It seems the Seattle police are too busy shooting unarmed and very small and kinda old as well as half deaf native wood carvers, as to bother with actual community policing. Of course in Arizona they use their well armed SWAT to accomplish community raids and proceed to execute anyone that has a family and a regular job with absolutely no public or military record of ever screwing up or being involved with any bad-guys, other than having served two terms in Iraq for us.

Sure thing, everything about your GOP/ZNR redneck kind of nation is just perfectly fine and dandy.

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

Those not involved in a crime would have no reason to lie about it.

A competent adult would wonder why anyone would lie about a crime.

Bush and Cheney lied about 9/11.

ObL denied involvement in 9/11.

Bush and Cheney never did.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and

Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer
assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

http://www.army.mil/cmh-pg/brochures/pi/pi.htm

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

http://www.antiwar.com/justin/j080801.html

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the

Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues,
"When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,
and electronic 'voting' will keep putting such into office.

If it's electronic, it's no election.

"congratulations for your willingness to look at the proof about 9-11"

http://www.911proof.com/

Notice that the bushkultie won't be able to address
any of the facts from the above site at all.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

http://www.tvnewslies.org/html/smoking_gun.html

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before

Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

http://www.army.mil/cmh-pg/brochures/pi/pi.htm

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."
quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues, "When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

http://www.antiwar.com/justin/j080801.html

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.

Not one contradictory fact has been presented.

The bushkultie isn't permitted to consider the facts.

Bush and Cheney are fascists, traitors, and war criminals,

If it's electronic, it's no election.

Make a note of that.

It's significant.

It's undisputed.

oh yeah...it's MUCH more interesting to listen to regular hams on shortwave..... rig, antenna, weather, weather, weather, age, weather, rig, rig, rig, antenna, antenna, weather...such interesting banter. or even better the contest idiots. so much better than current events and critiquing the things that are affecting our lives.

yeah, arky, you are so right...hearing a ham net with guys actually communicating and expressive about something other than mundane stupidity is such a waste.

bet you're a ball at parties.

by the way i am sure you will be fascinated to know yesterday it was warmer than the day before and we could get rain on tuesday.

Problem is, HVAC is only impressed with physics popup books that talk to you and make funny noises at the same time. The best is always the scratch and sniff parts of his physics books, especially the physics of flatulence and sperm.

He mentions a book which attempts to throw a "religious flavor" on hard physics ... lots of wiggle room and controversy. Indicative of those attempting to baffle with BS ... seems he lives for that sport.

His claim, sans a corpse, was that he was "probably dead".

His claim was totally unambiguous.

Written by political analyst and philosopher Professor David Ray Griffin, former emeritus professor at California's Claremont School of Theology, it is provoking shock waves - for it goes into far more detail about his supposed death and suggests there has been a cover-up by the West.

The book claims that Bin Laden died of kidney failure, or a linked complaint, on December 13, 2001, while living in Afghanistan's Tora Bora mountains close to the border with Waziristan.
His burial took place within 24 hours, in line with Muslim religious rules, and in an unmarked grave, which is a Wahhabi custom.

Written by political analyst and philosopher Professor David Ray

You really do like getting your ass kicked:

Researchers in Switzerland have questioned the authenticity of the recent audio recording attributed to Osama Bin Laden.

A team from the Lausanne-based Dalle Molle Institute for Perceptual not feature the voice of the al-Qaeda leader.

"probably dead" is NOT the same thing as "is dead".

Until you can separate fact from assertion and factual statement from opinion, you're never going to be able to recognize when someone is telling you what is true from what they simply hope is true.

Yes, I have noticed you use the same "Baffle With Bullshit" tactics as the children you associate with ... your thinking being, "I'll take the topic away from hard physics into religion. Then, using strawman arguments, I will attempt to use a persons personal beliefs to attack their credibility. Now, once succeeding in that, I will "transfer" the fact I appear correct over to the hard science -- effectively winning the argument in hard science with less than truthful arguments."

Gee, where have we seen that before?

God doesn't play dice, obviously the rules and laws over our portion of the universe are very fixed and rigid ... although in some far flung corner they may differ ... only God would know, at this time.

But, as to Einstein, we have watched quacks hunt and attempt to interpret, expand, etc. his words to allow various "fudge factors" which he never intended ... usually with attempts to move discussions into religious areas and begin debate on such books as the bible ... most always the sign of the unethical and immature.

Interesting you would attempt to take a reading, understanding and analysis of Einstein and surrounding physics into the realm of "the religious." Once the lines are blurred between hard physics and religion, you should enjoy a much larger platform for the directions of your obfuscations ...

There is a Village on the Coast of Chile that uses very large Plastic Sheets [Sails]
"Dew Condensers" on the Cliffs above the Village to Collect the Dew from the Daily Coastal Fog for Fresh Water and channel the Dew-Water down in to Cisterns near the Village for the People or use to live and survive.
http://www.opur.fr/angl/Secheresse-angl.pdf
The Coastal Village had a Salt Water Ocean in front and Cliffs with a Dry Desert above and beyond that; with lots of Over-Night
Coastal Fog; but little rain and no streams.

I don't know William Mook. When I searched for him all I got was some

I really wonder what drugs I would have to be on to be able to see this stuff on Venus you claim is so obvious. It looks like plain old dried up riverbed to me, but I'm no expert, in Geology, sane or Guthballian.

I am sorry you feel that way, I am a great believer that if you can't say something nice, don't say anything at all ...

I was simply attempting to emphasize your strong points.

HOWEVER, THIS:
"In the past few years numerous scientists, scientific journals, and popular authors have published a slew of articles and books ripping the concept of Intelligent Design. While not specifically denying the theory of evolution, the theory of Intelligent Design postulates that the incomprehensible vastness and complexity of the Cosmos are the result of design on the part of an inconceivably intelligent being.

Many scientists dismiss any concept of an intelligent designer as unscientific, and claim that any recognition of or belief in such a designer does harm to the scientific method. However, the greatest scientist who ever lived, Albert Einstein, did not share this outlook.

His years of studying the universe not only led him to come up with the Theory of Relativity, but also led him to believe, in his own words, in a "spirit manifest in the laws of the universe," in a "God who reveals Himself in the harmony of all that exists" (Isaacson 2007: 44). He once wrote:

The religious inclination lies in the dim consciousness that dwells in humans that all nature, including the humans in it, is in no way an accidental game, but a work of lawfulness that there is a fundamental cause of all existence (ibid. 46).

In a 1930 essay entitled "What I Believe," Einstein wrote:

To sense that behind anything that can be experienced there is something that our minds cannot grasp, whose beauty and sublimity reaches us only indirectly: this is religiousness. In this sense, and in this sense only, I am a devoutly religious man (ibid. 47).

He also made the following statement in an essay entitled "The Religiousness of Science," which appeared in a collection of his essays published in English under the title "The World As I See It":

The scientist is possessed by the sense of universal causation....His religious feeling takes the form of a rapturous amazement at the harmony of natural law, which reveals an INTELLIGENCE of such superiority that, compared with it, all the systematic thinking and acting of human beings is an utterly insignificant reflection. This feeling is the guiding principle of his life and work, in so far as he succeeds in keeping himself from the shackles of selfish desire (Updike 2007: 77 [emphasis added]).

These statements are highly significant, considering that no scientist of any worth would dismiss Einstein as superstitious or unscientific. Moreover, the above quotes can't be dismissed as the product of a religious bias on Einstein's part, because, except for a brief period of "deep religiousness" when he was twelve, Einstein rejected organized religion (ibid.)."

TAKEN FROM HERE:

http://www.biblearchaeology.org/post/2008/01/16/Einstein-and-Intelligent-Design.aspx

Causes me to think Einstein was, in the VERY LEAST, open to intelligent design, indeed, he appears dependent on it for his understandings.

Funny, all the real nuts usually appear to turn out atheists ...

The fact is that god, much like the ether that you love so much, has zero value to any computations. They can both be treated EXACTLY as if they do not exist at all.

That's a hint-and-a-half for your ass.

The only fact here is that your theory of spontaneous generation fails in the most minor of analysis ... hence, the reason for Einsteins logic.

Your religious beliefs involving the particular leap of faith you take has been noted, already ...

Have you come up with something new?

An interesting reference, did you read it ?

It concludes by stating

"Einstein's idea of space-time contraction replaced Lorentz's interpretation of the contraction equation, and once and for all relegated ether to the history books. "

In fact it says you are wrong !

I taught mine to see the secrets of the universe in a rainbow.

Yep, the Luminous ether, and replacing it with the gravitational ether in ~1920.

You need to read more ... you have become dependent on my spoon

We aren't speaking about the qualities/properties you assign God(s), we are only speaking of intelligent design. You really need to step up the development of your powers of logic and reason, if you still have room ...

However, since points which just a few sentences develop, along the course of a logical discussion, already dependent on past points made, elude and confuse you, this text is sure to confound you beyond help.

They are officially FUD-masters of the ZNR/GOP faith-based kind. So right there you can't hardly trust a thing they have to say.

If I were Hitler and in charge of this nation, I'd seek out and hire the likes of HVAC, Hagar, BDK and their rabbi Saul Levy, and that's with no boot camp requirements because they is already over-qualified.

"It" is all they have. Their arguments will now become circular and aimed at going off towards tangents they wish will support their absurd claims.

The only clear point they have made are that, they are complete morons and have no meaningful education or understanding of the the concepts they attempt to have voice in ...

... sad, so very, very sad ... but quite common these days ... again, perhaps mainly due to the quality of our educational system(s.)

No, it is not a physics textbook . However -- some of Velikivsky's ideas were found to be correct , several years after it's publication . Real genius is seldom recognized during his/her

Yeah, I can see that.

Akin to, "The real geniuses, here, won't be noticed during their lives ..."

Indeed, long after, gawd forbid, NEVER!

Exactly, and even if only 1% of Velikivsky's stuff was correct, that's at least 100% more than anything contributed by HVAC, Hagar, BDK and their rabbi Saul Levy combined.

It's becoming mainstream accepted that planets and moons can be captured, though not common or easily.

Pup galaxies or molecular clouds of stellar creation potential have been captured by our galaxy, and rogue intergalactic stuff isn't as rare as once thought, not to mention the 1e12 or more rogue items of Sedna or larger within our galaxy that are eventually going to join up with something or terminate.

No such qualification exists in that article. It simply and accurately the theory of SpaceTime.

Yeah, the part I referred to dealing with the either, and the URL I gave doing the same ... no wonder your confabulation reaches such abysmal depths!

Of course, you really can't be expected to be able to read more than one, attempting to deal with two is beyond your capabilities ...

You only need to concern yourself with the statements on the ether ...
baby steps ... you need a smaller spoon, huh?

Definitely better last night. I worked Akita City, Japan and somewhere around Sydney, Australia on 15 meters between 0000 and 0100 UTC. That was right about the time the Kp index hit 6.

I did concern myself with the statements on the ether which it states was "relegated to the history books"

I think the baby was thrown out with the bath water.

Good, then we agree Einstein recognized the ether in 1920, and after.

And, there is plausible reason the Michelson-Morley Experiment could/would fail to detect the ether ...

But then, those in the field have known this all along ...

Like I'd said, combine all of your intellectual flatulence with the other FUD-masters and pretend-Atheists that only act/react exactly like Semites here, and my 1% correctness is at least 100% better than all our yours combined.

So, how many extra credit points or air miles do you get for intellectual treason?

Is it worth more or less than terrorism?

If I were DHS or better yet Qinetiq, you and other FUD-masters wouldn't be having any Usenet/newsgroup chats, not even with fellow inmates.

Last night, I noticed some 15 meter activity on the DX cluster. I checked it out and I could hear only the DX station and no stateside stations. Only took one call and he came back, so conditions were unusual to say the least.

It appears that if you catch it (high Kp) at the initial peak, you can get good results on the higher frequencies. The low bands do suffer most from this activity. The two days after the peak seem to be the worst. Especially in the higher latitudes.

One of the most amusing things over the years has been decoding what the terms used by the kookers. They just assume that other people know what the hell they are raving about, and then get angry when they are asked about it. With Guthball, it's a trick to decode just one entire paragraph, let alone one of his multi paragraphed Rothschild and pretend atheist raves.

No need to.

The document speaks for itself and is certified as authentic by the sovereign state of Hawaii and the Constitution requires that you STFU and accept it. Case closed.

EPIC FAIL.

DOD files DO NOT get released to the public and prove eligibility for the office of PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. This LIE of yours exposes how DESPERATE you racist nutbags have become.

You CANNOT and WILL NOT produce ANY prior president's birth certificate that was made public prior to his taking office.

You're a snarky boy. You're male - nominally - and due to your immaturity, you're a boy, and due to your snarky, wet-behind-the-ears juvenile demeanor, you're a snarky boy - live with it, boy.

> Yes, he

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

I have "prooven" everything I have said; all of my claims are the accepted and proven FACT of the matter. Reality completely supports my caims while the laws of physics tell the world that your claims are physically impossible. This is simply how it is and there is nothign you can say that will make the impossible possible.

You are called "WrongTurnJoe" for a reason, insane nut job.

So you are going to CONTINUE to be a short-bus rider by failing at reading comprehension? Is THAT your final answer?

Hint: As you yourself ADMITTED TO LYING, he did NOT claim that UBL was dead. Now you are BACTRACKING on the only honest admission you have made? BWAHAAAHAAAAHAHAHAAAA!!! I have to admit, you are the most stupid kook I have bashed in quite some time!

Aha!! So once aganin you are swinging back to my side and ADMITTING that he DID NOT CLAIM UBL was dead byut only proposed a guess, a speculation, an OPINION.

I've been suggesting that, as your hero Bush would say, you "edjumacate" yourself on the differences between asserting a claim and stating an opinion. You might spare the need for me to kick your stupid kooker ass.

> which in the absence of a corpus delecti is the > same thing.

It is not even close to the same thing. Stating a claim would cross the line between opinion and factual assertion. I understand that to someone as dense as you who constantly fabricates and lies, they seem like the same but to people with what we like to call "brains," they are not.

By you.

It is simply FACT that people stating an opinion are not stating a factual claim but asserting their GUESS.

Gawd, but you're a stupid one. Is it from a lifetime of sniffing glue or from a lifetime of being a rightarded moron?

When he expressed his "opinion" in 2009, after Obama took office, that UBL most probably was dead? I didn't see an actual claim from him.
You're good at finding things that aren't there... why don't YOU try?
BWAHAAHAAAHAHAHAHA!!

Incidentally, he does seem to be one of your fellow rightards so perhaps he IS a moron twoofer. Does he believe Bush blew up the twin towers too? <snicker>

Your statement in itself is a lie. You cannot point to one single word statements as fatally flawed. You have ONLY lied.

More dancing away by you, in your complete and utter inability to point to one single thing I have said that is a lie, while I have been proving all of your statements to be lies. Hint: Your desperation is palpable.

Yep.

Uh, moron. Clue? Hint:

"Believed..."

There's that troublesome word again that proves you wrong.

They did NOT say that he was dead. they stated their OPINION.

They did NOT make the factual assertion that he was dead.

You DID admit you were wrong and it seems you're too stupid even to know it.

> > He was guessing.
> Nope, a "guess" is an uneducated speculation.

"Speculation."

Look it up, shit-for-brains.

> The people I listed were educated analysts.

Stating a belief and opinion but not making factual assertions.

I know that you want ever so much for this to be different but no amount of repeated assertion by you will ever change an opinion to a fact.

Opinion. Not making a factual assertion.

Turns out his opinion was wrong, on top of it.

He does seem to be, like you, a rightard however.

> >> So we can say he was "probably" wrong.

No we don't. It is proven historical fact. Denial is not doubt, sweetums.

Which is an opinion and nothing more. you jeep stating this but it will never become a factual assertion.

> His claim was totally unambiguous.

His opinion was not a claim. His look at available evidence led him to "opine" that UBL was "probably dead." That does not even come CLOSE to making the flat out assertion that UBL was dead at the time.

He was certainly entitled to his opinion. Note however that it turns out he was wrong.

Holly SHIT.

Griffin is like "Lord of the Kooks." Of course David Ray Griffin is a moron twoofer. He is a nutbag. Like you.

Griffin is Supreme Idiot among the twoofers. Nothing he has said is correct.

Correct, it's an unambiguous statement of OPINION, not fact.

Since I have never been "trapped," this is yet one more proof of your insanity. I won. ALl of my claims are clearly spelled out and proven fact. None of them can be refuted by your fabrications and lies.

"Payroll?" WTF? I am retired and a grandmother amusing myself by making sport of insane nut jobs like you. You provide more daily comedy gold than watching Maury. Kooks like you make it easy for people like me to get jollies out of insulting your stupid kooker asses.

Where they actually teach that EM waves do propagate in the vacuum of space.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

No, he would not have been a citizen had he been born abroad (which he very well may have been.) The McCarran Walter Act, aka the Immigration and Naturalization Act of 1952, specified in Title III, Ch. 1, Sec. 301(a):

The following shall be citizens and nationals of the United State at birth:

(7) a person born outside the geographical limits of the United States and its outlying possessions of parents one of whom is an alien, and the other a citizen of the United States who, prior to the birth of such person, was physically present in the United States or its outlying possessions for a period or periods totaling not less than ten years, at least five of which were after attaining the age of fourteen years

Hussein's one citizen parent was only 18 at the time of his birth, which means she arithmetically could not have met the physical presence requirement. Had he been born abroad, he would not have been born a citizen. As he may very well have been born abroad, and never naturalized, then he may not be a citizen at all.

Old country boy from Edwards,Missy Sippy, (he lives catty corner across the street from doggy's couch) he done went to a store and he done bought a Coleman bug zapper thangy.Looks kind of like the shape of a Yapanee lantern.Most people don't realize all those electric bug zappers really do is ATTRACT MORE bugs.

Yeah, old country boy, he once told me he knows all about chainsaws, he BROKE my chainsaw! He couldn't even find the oil drain plug on his lawn mower.He pushed his lawn mower (that one of his sons picked out for him at a pawn shop, $65.00 plus Missy Sippy RIP OFF sales taxes) over here, he rattled my front door, he said, SHOW ME WHERE THAT OIL DRAIN PLUG IS! Only took me about two seconds to wipe the crud off of there, that oil drain plug was RIGHT THERE.He was too STUPID to look for it.

Nice attempt to waffle (plus interesting snippage of the context). Do you agree that Einstein wasn't referring to an actual deity, or not? And do you agree that his use of the term "ether" (which was the context you snipped) referred to something other than the sort of physical "ether" refuted by Michaelson and Morley, or not?

I am not prepared to discuss the supernatural/magical properties you ascribe to a vacuum or nothing ... this would be better dealt with in a

What "theory of spontaneous generation" is that? I assume you're not referring to the notion of the instantaneous appearance of multicellular life directly from non-living matter, since that was debunked by science (Pasteur) over a

I think Einstein, absolutely, considered a unbelievably intelligent creator a strong possibility! His very words define this ... but, everyone should read them, his words, for themselves, as the notion of "thinking for someone else" is hazardous, at best ...

propagation/transmission of light, to be science and obeying the laws of the universe ... I find you simply doing obfuscation. And, attempting

I agree everyone should read his words. Here they are.

In 1927

"I cannot conceive of a personal God who would directly influence the actions of individuals, or would directly sit in judgment on creatures of his own creation. I cannot do this in spite of the fact that mechanistic causality has, to a certain extent, been placed in doubt by modern science.
My religiosity consists in a humble admiration of the infinitely superior spirit that reveals itself in the little that we, with our weak and transitory understanding, can comprehend of reality. Morality is of the highest importance-but for us, not for God. "

In 1945
"From the viewpoint of a Jesuit priest I am, of course, and have always been an atheist.... I have repeatedly said that in my opinion the idea of a personal God is a childlike one. You may call me an agnostic, but I do not share the crusading spirit of the professional atheist whose fervor is mostly due to a painful act of liberation from the fetters of religious indoctrination received in youth. I prefer an attitude of humility corresponding to the weakness of our intellectual understanding of nature and of our being."

In 1954
"It was, of course, a lie what you read about my religious convictions, a lie which is being systematically repeated. I do not believe in a personal God and I have never denied this but have expressed it clearly. If something is in me which can be called religious then it is the unbounded admiration for the structure of the world so far as our science can reveal it. "

Shortly before he died
"The word God is for me nothing more than the expression and product of human weaknesses, the Bible a collection of honourable, but still primitive legends which are nevertheless pretty childish."

Your constant attempts to work the edges, to peel up the logic and reason is dishonest.

Einstein simply, in looking at the structure(s), laws and principals which he sees, and is overwhelmed at the mind and intelligence it would take to create such, and that such is the only reason conceivable for its' existence ... I know of no comments or text of his which ventures to understand "the creation of the creator", or claim he has a theory on where the creators mind comes from, of from what it is formed.

He is simply forced into accepting things as they are, appear, and what proofs exist in these observations ... and why he was brought to allow for intelligent design.

The religion of atheism, and a specific definition of "atheism" encompasses the denial of a creator, an intelligence which designed and constructed all which we see, keeps those who have found a religious belief in atheism of allowing for anything, other than accident, chance, luck and spontaneous generation ... obviously, Einstein refused to make the leap of faith into that/those principle(s.)

To make any progress in any direction, one must first see the reality and truths of what lie before their senses, to refuse simply because "you can't believe what your eyes and senses tell you, is a religious belief in and of itself!

Agreed. But the beauty is in the secrets that rainbows reveal.

The reason I even mentioned this was because when my daughter was about 8-9 years old, she asked me about a rainbow...Actually a prismatic effect on the wall from sunlight coming in my office window and refracting through my aquarium. When I told her that a very sensitive thermometer would read different temperatures for the different colors, she was captivated.

She graduated cum laude from Saint Anslem's, and 2 years ago from Boston College with a PHD in physics.

Secrets indeed.

LOL...My youngest daughter recently announced to me that she was a Buddhist. She claimed it wasn't a religion. I asked her if the Buddha had superpowers. She said that he did. That was case closed for me. I do like the Buddhist idea that what happens after you die is of no concern of you NOW.

Yes, here you come with your religious obfuscations, beliefs, denials, acceptances, etc., again!

I don't remember anyone mentioning such things as Jesus, church, mormon, catholic, jehovah witnesses, protestants, miracles, doctorine, the great flood, angels, jews, etc.

In our discussion, God = Creator = Intelligent Design = structure = logic = etc.

For some reason, your hatred or wish to attack religion makes it central to your life and beliefs, and you attempt to inject it into any discussion that exists here and have us participate with you ...

You start off on tangents of primitive legends and childish persuasions, and wish to start discussing biblical beliefs!

Since you have injected these things and claim to have a knowledge of them and that your ideas on them have bearing on what we discuss, you develop them, you explain how, you develop text around them ...

To me, your moronic blathering is nothing more than an insane background noise which is annoying ... if others wish to engage you in this, have at it ... I have no time for whatever you think you are doing. I simply have no interest ... you do, or you wouldn't not maintain such central focus to it ...

I look around with eyes open and I see absolutely zero evidence for and gods. If you have evidence for these mythical creatures, bring it forth. If not, you're merely reciting fairy tales.

Excellent article, and points out:

1) Jerry Brown need to, immediately, be removed from the governors office and put before a firing squad.

2) The college tuition you pay is funding free college for illegal aliens -- and causing an increase in your costs.

3) The courts think it entirely fitting that they be allowed to break and ignore the law, at Americans expense.

4) Illegal aliens are generally considered to be above the law.

5) Identity theft is legal for illegal aliens.

6) Illegal aliens are allowed to pass though security checkpoints at airports.

7) Etc., etc.

The answer is either the removal from office, and imprisonment, or death of the criminal and treasonous public servants involved ... I favor neither above the other, and find either acceptable.

Sounds like you need something to help your ignorance, before you continue making a fool of yourself, here, hope it helps:

http://www.mu6.com/einstein.html

I'd say it was pretty obvious what Einstein was describing, and this was not only an impossible universe WITHOUT ETHER, but also impossible without A CREATOR, refer to that creator as a God, or not, makes little difference to its' importance ... until someone offers better, than Einstein, I am with him.

The glaring errors of the NIST 9/11 fiasco remain undisputed.

The bushkultie doesn't know much, and doesn't know the difference, either:

"UPS and Computers

The letters stand for ï¿½uninterruptible power supplyï¿½ ï¿½ batteries ï¿½ not United Postal Serviceï¿½ which NIST actually confused ï¿½ and confuses! See this letter from NIST to the Enrico Manieri:"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

That's quite an error, too.

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

http://911conspiracy.wordpress.com/2010/07/11/nist-ara-error-speaks-volumes/

It's a study in treachery.

They're all too weak to compete honestly/fairly.

The Bush crime family of treacherous wimps has never been on the same side as the USA.

ObL couldn't affect the USA's air defense system.

Cheney did.

""The U.S. government has consistently blamed me for being behind every occasion its enemies attack it.

"I would like to assure the world that I did not plan the recent attacks, which seems to have been planned by people for personal reasons," bin Laden's statement said."

Yes, the bushkultie is so stupid as to believe faked videos and disregard direct statements to authentic news organizations.

Can't expect a bushkultie to understand geometry, either:

"the angle was nearly perpendicular, between zero and four degrees.
Somehow, NIST and their associates missed by ten full degrees"

The bushkultie doesn't believe in actual admissible evidence.

The bushworshipper is so uncivilized as to prefer
assassinations to trials.

It's not difficult to fool a bushkultie.

The bushworshipper has been tricked repeatedly.

The bushkultie is pitied, while a useful example.

The bushkultie is a mere dupe.

The bushworshipper was fooled easily by faked videos.

Others could see the discrepancies quite clearly.

The real perps were 'incompetent' all the way to their offshore accounts.

The claim of "incompetence" is ludicrous.

"If a group of people made a public statement saying that having a new Pearl Harbor would be the only way the public would support their agenda, and these same people were in positions that would allow them to conduct, permit or enable such an event when that event actually took place...would they deserve your suspicion? Well this is EXACTLY what happened. The very people with established motives for conducting an event like the one that took place on 9/11/2001 were responsible for national security when we had that most unlikely, unrealistic and implausible complete catastrophic failure of every single defense procedure in operation."

The Japanese weren't permitted to surrender when they were ready to do so.

That was in order to intimidate the Soviets via the gratuitous use of the bomb.

It helps to understand the real situation, including that of Pearl Harbor.

The US goaded Japan into attacking, and then let the attack occur despite warnings of it, indeed even made itself more vulnerable to that attack than it should have. The US government at that time wanted to gain public support for war, and 'improve trade' in the east. They accomplished that, but threw in the added threat to everybody else by escalating to the use of nuclear bombs on civilians, when many who knew a great deal about the situation considered that excessive.

"The duty officer at U.S. Asiatic Fleet headquarters in Manila first received word of the Pearl Harbor attack at 0230 on 8 December 1941, but a full hour passed before Brig. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, heard the news from commercial broadcasts. He immediately notified MacArthur and all commanders that a state of war now existed with Japan. MacArthur ordered his troops to battle stations.

Despite this warning, when the Japanese pilots of the 11th Air Fleet attacked Clark Field nine hours later, they caught two squadrons of B-17s lined up on the field and a number of American fighters just preparing to take off. The first wave of twenty-seven Japanese twin-engine bombers achieved complete tactical surprise and destroyed most of the American heavy bombers. A second bomber strike followed while Zero fighters strafed the field. Only three P-40s managed to take off. A simultaneous attack on Iba Field in northwest Luzon was also successful: all but two of the 3d Squadron's P-40s were destroyed. The Far East Air Force lost fully half its planes the first day of the war. ..."

Were you unaware that Japan was provoked into that attack? The US froze Japanese assets (treaty violation) and embargoed their oil. Roosevelt was tired of supplying only materials to the war, and he saw Japan as the easiest way in, via an attack on US soil.

Why did Roosevelt order the pacific fleet to relocate from the west coast to Hawaii in the summer of 1940? Why was the commander, Admiral Richardson, removed after complaining that Pearl Harbor didn't offer sufficient air or topedo defense?

Didn't Roosevelt receive a memo in the fall of 1940, from a Navy analyst, describing eight ways to force Japan to attack the US (one of them an oil embargo), and all of them eventually implemented? Didn't Roosevelt's advisor Ickes tell him that an oil embargo would be an "easy" way to get into the war, the day after Hitler attacked Russia in the summer of 1941?

"President Franklin D. Roosevelt wanted to enter the war in Europe, especially after the fall of France (June 1940). In this desire he was supported by the old elite ... After meeting FDR at the Atlantic Conference (August 14, 1941) Churchill noted the "astonishing depth of Roosevelt's intense desire for war." But there was a problem: the President could not overcome the resistance to
"Europe's war" felt by most Americans and their elected representatives.

The mood of the country was a problem, and Roosevelt therefore resorted to subterfuge. He systematically and deliberately provoked the Japanese into attacking the United States. His real target was Hitler: Roosevelt expected the German dictator to abide by the Tripartite Pact and declare war on America, and hoped that Hitler's decision would be facilitated by a display of America's apparent vulnerability. Accordingly, even though Roosevelt was well aware of the impending attack on Pearl Harbor ..."

The US Army Signal Intelligence Service had cracked the Japanese codes before December of 1941. Although a British obsession with secrecy allowed the US to claim it had first deciphered JN25, it was actually done first by the British and Australians.

"The "true heroes" of the Allied codebreaking effort, Smith says, were Eric Nave, an Australian officer attached to the Royal Navy, and John Tiltman, a British cryptographer. Although the Americans claimed that they broke JN25, the Japanese navy's operational code which contributed to the destruction of the Japanese carrier fleet at Midway, it was the work of Tiltman -- only a few weeks after it came into use in 1939."

http://www.fpp.co.uk/online/00/09/Codebreaking2.html

"In 1979 the NSA released 2,413 JN-25 orders of the 26,581 intercepted by US between Sept 1 and Dec 4, 1941. The NSA says "We know now that they contained important details concerning the existence, organization, objective, and even the whereabouts of the

Pearl Harbor Strike Force." (Parker p 21) Of the over thousand radio messages sent by Tokyo to the attack fleet, only 20 are in the National Archives. All messages to the attack fleet were sent several times, at least one message was sent every odd hour of the day and each had a special serial number. Starting in early November 1941 when the attack fleet assembled and started receiving radio messages, OP-20-G stayed open 24 hours a day and the "First Team" of codebreakers worked on JN-25. In November and early December 1941, OP-20-G spent 85 percent of its effort reading Japanese Navy traffic, 12 percent on Japanese diplomatic traffic and 3 percent on German naval codes. FDR was personally briefed twice a day on JN-25 traffic by his aide, Captain John Beardell, and demanded to see the original raw messages in English. The US Government refuses to identify or declassify any pre-Dec 7, 1941 decrypts of JN-25 on the basis of national security, a half-century after the war."

Many people disagreed with the nuclear bombings of Japan:

"...in [July] 1945... Secretary of War Stimson, visiting my headquarters in Germany, informed me that our government was preparing to drop an atomic bomb on Japan. I was one of those who felt that there were a number of cogent reasons to question the wisdom of such an act. ...the Secretary, upon giving me the news of the successful bomb test in New Mexico, and of the plan for using it, asked for my reaction, apparently expecting a vigorous assent.

"During his recitation of the relevant facts, I had been conscious of a feeling of depression and so I voiced to him my grave misgivings, first on the basis of my belief that Japan was already defeated and that dropping the bomb was completely unnecessary, and secondly because I thought that our country should avoid shocking world opinion by the use of a weapon whose employment was, I thought, no longer mandatory as a measure to save American lives. It was my belief that Japan was, at that very moment, seeking some way to surrender with a minimum loss of 'face'. The Secretary was deeply perturbed by my attitude..." - Dwight Eisenhower, Mandate For Change, pg. 380

In a Newsweek interview, Eisenhower again recalled the meeting with Stimson:

"...the Japanese were ready to surrender and it wasn't necessary to hit them with that awful thing."
- Ike on Ike, Newsweek, 11/11/63

(Chief of Staff to Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman)
"It is my opinion that the use of this barbarous weapon at Hiroshima and Nagasaki was of no material assistance in our war against Japan. The Japanese were already defeated and ready to surrender because of the effective sea blockade and the successful bombing with conventional weapons.

"The lethal possibilities of atomic warfare in the future are frightening. My own feeling was that in being the first to use it, we had adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages. I was not taught to make war in that fashion, and wars cannot be won by destroying women and children." - William Leahy, I Was There, pg. 441.

On August 8, 1945, after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Hoover wrote to Army and Navy Journal publisher Colonel John Callan O'Laughlin, "The use of the atomic bomb, with its indiscriminate killing of women and children, revolts my soul."

quoted from Gar Alperovitz, The Decision to Use the Atomic Bomb, pg. 635.

MacArthur biographer William Manchester has described MacArthur's reaction to the issuance by the Allies of the Potsdam Proclamation to Japan: "...the Potsdam declaration in July, demand[ed] that Japan surrender unconditionally or face 'prompt and utter destruction.' MacArthur was appalled. He knew that the Japanese would never renounce their emperor, and that without him an orderly transition to peace would be impossible anyhow, because his people would never submit to Allied occupation unless he ordered it. Ironically, when the surrender did come, it was conditional, and the condition was a continuation of the imperial reign. Had the General's advice been followed, the resort to atomic weapons at Hiroshima and Nagasaki might have been unnecessary." William Manchester, American Caesar: Douglas MacArthur 1880-1964, pg. 512.

Norman Cousins was a consultant to General MacArthur during the American occupation of Japan. Cousins writes of his conversations with MacArthur,
"MacArthur's views about the decision to drop the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki were starkly different from what the general public supposed." He continues,
"When I asked General MacArthur about the decision to drop the bomb, I was surprised to learn he had not even been consulted. What, I asked, would his advice have been? He replied that he saw no military justification for the dropping of the bomb. The war might have ended weeks earlier, he said, if the United States had agreed, as it later did anyway, to the retention of the institution of the emperor."
Norman Cousins, The Pathology of Power, pg. 65, 70-71.

A panel set up by President Truman to study the Pacific war issued a report, the United States Strategic Bombing Survey, in July 1946, which declared,
"Based on a detailed investigation of all the facts, and supported by the testimony of the surviving Japanese leaders involved, it is the Survey's opinion that certainly prior to 31 December 1945, Japan would have surrendered even if atomic bombs had not been dropped, even if Russia had not entered the war, and even if no invasion had been planned or contemplated."

By 1945, Japan's entire military and industrial machine was grinding to a halt as the resources needed to wage war were all but eradicated. The navy and air force had been destroyed ship by ship, plane by plane, with no possibility of replacement. When, in the spring of 1945, the island nation's lifeline to oil was severed, the war was over except for the fighting. By June, Gen. Curtis LeMay, in charge of the air attacks, was complaining that after months of terrible firebombing, there was nothing left of Japanese cities for his bombers but "garbage can targets". By July, U.S. planes could fly over Japan without resistance and bomb as much and as long as they pleased. Japan could no longer defend itself.{6} After the war, the world learned what U.S. leaders had known by early 1945: Japan was militarily defeated long before Hiroshima. It had been trying for months, if not for years, to surrender; and the U.S. had consistently rebuffed these overtures. A May 5 cable, intercepted and decoded by the U.S., dispelled any possible doubt that the Japanese were eager to sue for peace. Sent to Berlin by the German ambassador in Tokyo, after he talked to a ranking Japanese naval officer, it read:

Since the situation is clearly recognized to be hopeless, large sections of the Japanese armed forces would not regard with disfavor an American request for capitulation even if the terms were hard...

As far as is known, Washington did nothing to pursue this opening. Later that month, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson almost capriciously dismissed three separate high-level recommendations from within the Roosevelt administration to activate peace negotiations. The proposals advocated signaling Japan that the U.S. was willing to consider the all-important retention of the emperor system; i.e., the U.S. would not insist upon "unconditional surrender"...

According to Manhattan Project scientist Leo Szilard, Secretary of State Byrnes had said that the bomb's biggest benefit was not its effect on Japan but its power to "make Russia more manageable in Europe"...

Of course, this was also the time in history when Prescott Bush, grandfather of the POTUS, was making a fortune in banking for the Nazis.

The truth is that the Bush regime deals terror. Wasn't the first Bush president involved in Iraqgate and Iran-Contra?

Anyone recall that the guy who shot Reagan was a Bush family friend?

Will anyone complain when anything branded a 'conspiracy theory' by the Bushites leads to arrests and asset forfeitures, without due process, of United States citizens?

The Bush regime benefits directly and substantially from that [9/11] attack, via entities such as the Carlyle Group.

'Born-again' Bush called it a 'crusade' against 'Islam', a 'war' against 'terrorism', as he let the postal workers die of anthrax.

Then why the hysteria against 'Islam' and not against 'Christianity' for the likes of the abortion-clinic bombers and the KKK?

Isn't ['Dubya'] the one who approves of groups associated with the KKK?

So US war machine propaganda means that the US military is terrorist. That's no surprise to folks in Nicaragua, and so many other places with similar histories ...

If only a true superpower would just win over populations by letting them farm their farms and work their trades and build schools and hospitals and medicine factories and roads, instead of destroying helpless innocent people in droves until there is no one with the strength left to complain.

The illegal invasion of Iraq is also a war crime of massive proportions.
